"The Seigneur de Beaufey" is a romance by Hamilton Drummond. It tells the adventures of the proud and powerful Seigneur de Beaufoy and throws a striking sidelight on the political and social condition of France during the time of Charles VII and his crafty son, Louis XI. How Beaufoy ruled his wide domains, warred with his neighbors, succored the weak and humbled the powerful, opposed priest and abbot, made terms with dauphin and king -all this is told with a dramatic force that makes the book exceptionally interesting. There are three short stories in the last of the book. Published by L. C.

merly president of the department of geography, Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, author of "A Text Book of Commercial Geography." has prepared a new text book for school use entitled "An Elementary Commercial Geography." This book is a valuable aid to a practical education, as it Americanizes a boy and provides him with just the equipment essential for success in a business country. It brings out the commercial powers of the United States in a way that is entirely within the realization and intelligence of grammar school maturity. Published by D. Appleton & Co. 1.

We have received from Ginn & Company a copy of Cyr's Advanced First Reader. This book is alightly higher in grade than the Cyr "First Reader," so that it may be used to advantage as intermediate between the first and second readers, or even as an alternate first reader. It aims to supply not only interesting material for supplementary reading, but also to cultivate in little children an appreciation of some of the world's best paintings. The reader contains more than a score of engravings. each attractively printed on a tinted background, reproduced from paintings which deal with the beauty and innocence of child life. In addition there are neveral reproductions from original drawings made especially for this book by well known artists. The reading matter is closely related to the pictures. The author, has endeavored not only to interpret the artist's conception wherever it comes within the grasp of the child's mind, but also to lead him to observe the detail, to admire the beauty, and together what he can comprehend of the underlying thought. The lessons, in the main, are closely allied to the study of nations, geography and customs for the illustrations represent artists of many different nationalities. By the introduction of a number of stories the limitations of a single line of study have been avoided, and a pleasing variety secured.
