

ALLOWS NO FOOLISHNESS

Commander McCrea Takes a Firm Stand Against Revolutionary Interference. NO INTERFERENCE WITH RIGHT TO FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Navy department has received from Commander McCrea of the battleship Oregon a report dated Cape Hattien, August 16, setting out in detail the operations that he had to prevent interference with the world's commerce as a result of the bitter revolutionary struggle now in progress in Haytian waters.

Commander McCrea was, from the nature of the case, obliged to move without opportunity to consult the State or Navy departments, but it is stated that his vigorous measures are thoroughly approved.

MAYBE IT IS A VICTORY

U. S. S. MACHIAS, CAPE HATTIEN, Sept. 5.—The commanding officer of the M. Machias, U. S. S. Machias, is reported to have sent an officer out to him with the following letter: "I wish to give you notice that I am charged with the protection of British, French, and other interests, as well as those of the United States, and as also informed that an attempt is being made to bombard this city without due notice, and to prevent the interruption of commerce either by the interruption of the telegraph cables or the stoppage of the steamers engaged in the trade, I have taken a friendly note. All interference excepting with Haytian interests shall endeavor to prevent. Hoping there will be no necessity for extreme measures and also that a peaceful solution may yet be arranged to save the republic from civil war, I am addressed to the commanding officers."

He further told the boat officer that he had that morning tried to fire a shot from the steamer not showing any colors by firing a blank cartridge, but it turned and ran away. He said he would carry on his communication to the American consul, but afterward by a messenger he learned that the ship had returned to the harbor.

After receiving his note I was boarded by the confidential interpreter and clerk of General Nord Alexis, who, in the latter's name, asked me to give him a receipt for the capture of Crete-A-Pierrot, as it had stopped a steamer carrying munitions of war for the provisional government. I declined to do so, but he said he would do so if I would give him a receipt for the capture of Crete-A-Pierrot.

Minister Powell called me to the "Gonaves" government and demanded that I should declare blockade of port; inform him; give your protection to any American, Cuban or foreign vessel; and if you do not do so, my reply to which was: "Conditions threatening blockade of port, and I am unable to do so, but I will do so if you will give me a receipt for the capture of Crete-A-Pierrot."

The consul came on board and I delivered to him the notice, advising a formal protest, with the following conditions: "I am unable to do so, but I will do so if you will give me a receipt for the capture of Crete-A-Pierrot."

Later, on August 11, I received department cable regarding the effectiveness of blockade, and was informed that I should be held responsible for the blockade of the port, and I should be held responsible for the blockade of the port.

Every ship was enveloped in sheets of flame, while all along the shore from Port Wertheim to the left and Adams on the right there was a continuous cannonade. Brooklyn reached the head of the harbor at 10:30 and the battle was on for a few minutes later. The battle was one of the most spectacular affairs ever seen in this vicinity and the roar shook Newport to its foundations. The attacking ships kept up the harbor until they were almost upon the walls of Port Adams and nearly abreast of the torpedo station. There they appeared to anchor and everyone thought the fight was at an end. Within half an hour the five vessels suddenly steamed out of the harbor in the same formation as that in which they came. Off Cape Hattien throughout the battle the smaller craft in squadron formation, Indiana was not in sight.

On the way out the battleships were attacked by Fort Adams and Fort Greble opened for the first time tonight. All the ships used their searchlights, but did not respond to the guns, which were all outside by 11:45 and in column it steamed toward Block Island.

The battle tonight is considered by unofficial observers here to be a decided victory for the navy. The chief point is that Brooklyn was able to reach the mouth of the harbor before it was fired at, and searchlight. It was claimed, with the ships in such close formation, they had the forts at their mercy, and to prove this it is pointed out that the gunners in Fort Adams had to desert their guns.

NEW LONDON EXPECTS REVIEW. Late Evening Report Was That Fighting in that District Would Now Cease.

NEW LONDON, Sept. 6.—With the night attack on Port Adams closed the warlike maneuvers in the game which has been played in the New London and Narragansett districts. The grand finale will be witnessed tomorrow afternoon, when the ships will pass in review before the forts which have been attacked, beginning at Fort Rodman and ending at Port Terry.

Although hostilities do not cease until noon tomorrow, it is expected that the fleet will be in the harbor by 10 o'clock, and the review will be held at that time. The fleet will be in the harbor by 10 o'clock, and the review will be held at that time.

While practically all of the fleet is located at or near Newport, one gunboat was seen off Montauk point.

LIVE HER OLD SELF

THE STORY OF A GIRL ON THE PACIFIC COAST.

Both she and her mother are enthusiastic over the wonderful event in their lives.

Miss Maud E. Cable of Chico, Butte Co., California, is a bright, vivacious girl of fifteen, with the glow of health in her cheeks. A few months ago, however, she was sick and weak. How this wonderful change came about is best told in the words of her mother, Mrs. Rose Cable, who says: "My daughter was in a miserable state of health and I feared she could not live. It began with irregularity in the natural functions of her system, accompanied by severe headaches, heart and stomach trouble, and finally she broke down entirely. The doctor said she had anæmia, which, he said, meant that her blood had turned to water."

"The pain in her head was so severe that she was hardly able to bear it; her stomach so weak that she could eat nothing but soup. Her liver was congested and torpid, her nerves all unstrung and her complexion just like a dead person's. She grew worse in spite of the doctor's care and finally her hands and feet began to swell."

"An advertisement in the papers led me to have her try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and she began to feel better almost immediately upon taking them. She grew better every day. When she had taken them two weeks she had gained eight pounds, and fourteen by the time she had taken five boxes. Her color has come back and she looks like her old self. She has gone to work again."

"I feel very grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for her, for I am sure they saved her life. I have seen no other cure for my only disease, which amounts to the point influence of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion and all forms of weakness either in male or female. They are sold by all druggists, or direct from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50."
