GRANDSTAND PLAYER IS OUT

Mercer Beats the Atmosphere Three Times and Then Retires.

HE IGNORES REPUBLICAN MEETINGS NOW

Nonresident Congressman Attends Only Three Out of Nineteen Club Meetings Since the Opening of Congressional Campaign.

"There has been some comment on my failure to appear before the republican club meetings, and I want to explain that the reason I haven't attended any of these meetings up to this time is that I wanted to make my first appearance before this—the club of my own ward. From now on I will be wherever there is a meeting of republicans in this city, and I will be so much in evidence at club gatherings that some people will wish that I had stayed in Washington or Minneapolis."

The above declaration was made by David H. Mercer at the meeting of the Seventh Ward Republican club on the evening of August 21. It was a part of the attempted speech by the nonresident congressman, made in a moment when he felt confidence in his ability to discuss the issues of his campaign publicly. A few moments later, however as he listened to a scholarly and pointed address by John P. Breen, it must have occurred to Mercer that he had no business on the stump, but had best rely on the quiet political methods of the railroad corporations and the tricky tactics of Tom Blackburn and Will Gurley. So, Mr. Mercer very readily forgot his promise to "be so much in evidence at club gatherings." Since the night when he made the promise there have been just nineteen club meetings and he has attended only three of them.

Aside from making another appearance in his "own ward" Mercer has ventured out only in the Sixth and Eighth, appearing in the latter ward under the special protection of the Broatch-McDonald clique of professional bolters, and in the Sixth only to see the honors of the evening carried off by Nelson C. Pratt. The First, Second and Fifth ward organizations, the McKinley club and the colored republicans have sent him invitations to attend their meetings, but he has not even had the courtesy to send his regrets. At Wednesday night's meeting of the colored republicans Mercer got as far as the bottom of the stairs, and then, hearing that the sentiment of the meeting was strongly against him, turned on his heel and hurried away.

"It is easy to understand why Mercer does not appear at republican meetings," said a well known politician. "He has been ordered by his managers to keep away because they realize that he has no argument whatever to advance for his renomination and re-election. His boasting tactics are away below par in this campaign. When he tries to tell the people that he is the one and only great man to secure public buildings and other government favors for Omaha he reaches the end of his rope, and it's not a very long rope at that. There was a time when a good many intelligent people were inclined to give Mercer the credit for Omaha's splendid postoffice building, but the fact that $1,200,000 of the appropriation for that structure was secured by John A. McShane, a one-term congressman, has been published so conspicuously of late that Mercer's attempt to sop up all the credit for that work doesn't go now."

The following notice, signed by Charles A. Goss, chairman, and W. A. Messick, secretary, of the republican county committee, has been sent to the members of that committee resident in the country precincts:

There have been so many inquiries that we think it proper to issue general advices to all country precincts that the county central committee has done away with the filing and the printing of official ballots by the committee for any and all of the country precincts. You will hold your primary election on Friday, September 19, 1902, to select five delegates to the county convention, three to the congressional convention and one to the judicial convention. You must vote by some form of ballot to be determined upon by yourselves and must keep the polls open from 7 to 9 p. m. Give the delegates elected their certificates of election to the respective conventions and report the results of the vote for county and judicial delegates to us, as usual, and the result of the election of congressional delegates to the congresstonal committee, as decided by the county committee on August 30, 1902.

The populist party of Douglas county held primaries yesterday, apparently in the coat pockets of the ward leaders. Nine delegates from each Omaha ward, five from each South Omaha ward and five from each country precinct were to be named for next Saturday's county convention in Washington hall. The county convention will choose the delegates to the congressional and judicial conventions, both of which will convene immediately after the county body adjourns.

The principal business of the day appears to be the double-crossing of one Peter Hofeldt, democratic nominee for county commissioner. The complaint is made that three years ago the populists wanted the place for Frank B. Hibbard of Arlington and that Hofeldt and the democrats then agreed that if Hibbard would step aside then for Peter the Silent he (Hibbard) should have the nomination this year. As a side-stepper Hofeldt has proved a failure and now the populistic axe is whetted for his political neck. A prominent populist said yesterday that Hibbard stands ready to spend good money to get even.

"The rest of the democratic county ticket will be endorsed probably," said the same authority, "although John O. Yeiser and some others are for putting up an independent ticket clear through. L. J. Quinby, Pat McArdle and Judge Langdon are talked of for places on the legislative ticket in addition to Hugh McIntosh, nominated by the democrats. I haven't any objection to McIntosh and he is a good populist, but I and a good many others do object to the democrats doing all our nominating for us. The judicial convention will endorse Read, but I have my doubts about its endorsing Day. The congressional convention will endorse Hitchcock."

The First Ward Republican club will meet this evening at Lincoln hall, corner of Sixth and Pierce streets, for the purpose of transacting club business.

J. A. Easton and a few other socialists have decided to organize a local section of the party on Walnut Hill and will meet at Fortieth and Hamilton streets for that purpose. These socialists are followers of Bernard McCaffery, who is said by the Baird faction to be out of line with the regular organization.

David Anderson, an old wheel horse in the republican party, and the man who cast the first vote for David H. Mercer ten years ago, is not among the congressman's present supporters. In an interview yesterday he said:

"I believe the nomination of Mr. Mercer would prove a temporary calamity to the party and citizens generally of the Second congresstonal district because I believe it would mean the election of a democrat from a republican district to a republican congress—which all loyal and patriotic republicans would deplore.

"Ten years ago I cast the first vote in the convention that gave Mr. Mercer his nomination and proved steadfast to him until he exploited himself as a candidate for the United States senate and joined in the crusade against and defeat of Mr. Rosewater, whose claims were far above those of any other individual in the state and who for thirty years proved to be the most able and best exponent of the grand old party and its beneficent policies west of the Missouri river. Our friend Dave seems to have lost his political equilibrium and sagacity. His record in congress has given pretty general satisfaction to his constituents; the argument advanced that he has served long enough and should be retired contains no logic whatever, as most eastern and southern states retain their senators and congressmen almost indefinitely on account of the knowledge, large experience and influence acquired in that school of statesmanship. No business man or employer of labor would think of dismissing a worthy and competent employe so long as he performed good service to make room for a new and inexperienced one.

"However, I hold the interests and success of the republican party to be of far more importance than the political aspirations or ambition of any individual and therefore believe it would be very impolitic and unwise, considering the present unfortunate status of our party in this district at present, to give Mr. Mercer another nomination."

For a good and sufficient reason the Seventh ward republicans washed no dirty linen at their meeting scheduled for last night. The good and sufficient reason was that enough linen was strung around on clothes lines in their hall at Twenty-seventh and Leavenworth streets to clothe everyone present—136 pieces in all, and every piece was spotless white.

This revelation was not made until almost 9 o'clock, and it was too much for the crowd and the meeting was called off. By 8:30 o'clock over fifty republicans had congregated in front of the place, awaiting the arrival of President Thomas to open and light the hall. Mr. Thomas arrived. "Come on boys" was his greeting, and armed with a lighted match he lead the way up the dark stairs. He unlocked the door by the flickering light and stepped in the hall. He stopped, the light went out and then he came out. His hat was gone and across his shoulders was a pillowcase with the water recently wrung from it. Reinforced with more matches and more men Thomas again made entrance to the room. The gas was lighted and the room by gaslight was certainly startling.

From the southeast to the northeast corner was a long rope upon which was suspended wearing apparel. On the west side of the hall, running the entire length, was another rope, and this was heavy with its load of recently washed linen.

Next Thursday night it is expected that the tent will be ready for the Seventh warders and President Thomas has promised that it shall not be turned into a drying room before the first meeting is held.

CHRONIC DIARRHOEA

Cured by One Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"My father had for years been troubled with chronic diarrhoea and tried every means possible to effect a cure, but all to no avail," says John H. Zirkle of Philippi, W. Va. "He saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Republican and decided to try it. The result is one bottle of it cured him and he has not suffered with this disease for over eighteen months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well and, although 60 years of age, can do as much work as a young man. These are facts and you can use the above if you desire." Mr. Zirkle and his brother publish the Philippi Republican.

SHE LOSES GOODS AND MONEY

Why Emma Fogeslong Sues a South Omaha Justice of the Peace.

Hazel Manning has gone into district court to make trouble for Justice of the Peace Jacob Levy of South Omaha. She alleges that Emma Fogelsong started to replevin $50 worth of household effects which she (the plaintiff) had and that to retain the goods she gave Constable Michael Linahan a $77 check made out to her and which she endorsed with the understanding that it was to be retained until the settlement of the suit; that Jacob Levy compelled Linahan by threat of imprisonment to give the check to Isaac Levy, a brother, and that Isaac cashed it at the Packers' National bank. Later, the petitioner avers, Emma replevined the goods anyhow, leaving Hazel $77 loser. She wants the Levy brothers and Linahan made answerable to her for the money.

DELEGATES WILL KEEP HOUSE

Many Visitors to Christian Convention Look for Unfurnished Residences.

HOTEL LIFE IS DISAGREEABLE TO THEM

Daily Papers in Large Cities Are Beginning to Devote Much Space to Advance Stories on Big Convention.

Letters from prospective delegates to the Christian church convention indicate that not only will the hotel and boarding house space be filled, but that there will be an active demand for unfurnished houses during the time the convention is in session.

Writing from Minneapolis a prominent attorney asks the committee to secure for him a large vacant house and to ascertain what furniture can be rented for during the convention time. He will form a party of friends who will attend the convention from the first to the last day, and they take this method of securing the comforts of home in a strange place. From other parts of the country comes word that there will be several such parties formed and the entertainment committee is not only securing a list of private houses where board and lodging can be secured, but is also ascertaining where unfurnished rooms can be found during the convention.

This plan of housekeeping in the convention city is almost exclusively confined to the religious gatherings. There are many delegates who are averse to mixing with the haphazard crowds at hotels and do not like the accommodations at private boarding houses. They therefore move their families or party of intimate associates to the city and set up establishments, renting from supply houses the necessary furniture.

Economy Not the Object.

Economy is no object with these people, as the furniture rent will generally cost as much as the entertainment of the party at a public house, but they have absolute freedom of action and can have their meals prepared as desired and also have a place where they can entertain friends while in the city.

In addition to those who desire to rent vacant houses for the convention dates there are several who are looking for furnished houses, and this list will probably increase as the convention day approaches. Most of the inquirers desire to get locations near the convention hall, and the efforts of the entertainment committee will be largely centered in that part of the city at first. It is expected that the subcommittees of the districts will report to the chairman of the entertainment committee next week, and that by October 1 the entertainment committee will be ready to begin to assort the house cards for use during the convention.

The convention is beginning to attract the attention of the metropolitan press of the country. Last week one Chicago paper devoted half a page to the meeting, illustrated with half-tone pictures of the Coliseum and some of the active workers on the local committee. Other papers are now requesting advance stories, so that the meeting will be advertised in the larger cities as it has never been advertised before.

SON GETS OSTRANDER ESTATE

Understanding is that He Pays Minnie Abshire Five Thousand Dollars.

County Judge Vinsonhaler yesterday appointed W. B. Ostrander, second, administrator of the estate of W. B. Ostrander, who died about a month ago leaving a saloon on Fifteenth street and other property sufficient to make a total of about $20,000. The brother and sisters of the deceased, resident in Cedar Rapids, Ia., consented to the appointment of the son with the understanding that he give a good bond, to secure them in case they should be able later to find the will which they believe Mr. Ostrander left, but which no one has been able to discover since his death.

Minnie Abshire, common law wife of Mr. Ostrander at the time of his death, is understood to have relinquished all claim to the estate for a consideration, reported to be $5,000, paid her by the young man. Special Administrator W. W. Connoran is released and the son, upon furnishing bond, is free to proceed with his father's business. His mother, who married Mr. Ostrander when she was but 15 and was later divorced from him and returned to her mother to live, has been the wife of John Shaver, manager of the Continental Biscuit company in Cedar Rapids, Ia., since 1882, but still is loyal to her son and has been with him here for some time.

FINED AFTER FIGHT WITH FIRE

Unlucky Boarder Has Trouble with Gasoline and His Landlord.

G. C. Crawford, who rooms at 719½ North Sixteenth street, the house presided over by Frank Johnson, believes that he is a much-abused man and the following incidents recited in police court yesterday show that he was the victim of some hard luck.

Crawford began the night by cleaning a pair of trousers with gasoline, or rather he began to clean. After rubbing at a grease spot for some minutes Crawford lighted a match to see if the spot was gone. It was, in a very few minutes, and the blaze threatened to do away with the rest of the trousers. Crawford made a heroic effort to subdue the flames by striking the trousers on the floor. The second strike hit the bottle of gasoline, which upset and caught fire. By this time the entire floor of the room was one big blaze. Crawford beat out this fire with the trousers and then began to make for the bottle. Failing to subdue this blaze, he gave the bottle a kick which sent it downstairs. In its flight the bottle reached the bottom of the steps as the proprietor of the house began the ascent to Crawford's room. This created some little nervousness on Johnson's part, and as he made a grab for the bottle he barely missed Crawford, who was hot on the trail of the flaming bottle.

After the fire had been extinguished and the remainder of the roomers had quieted down, Johnson demanded an explanation from Crawford. It was the wrong time to demand anything from Carwford. Crawford was mad. As Johnson repeated his demand for an explanation, Crawford was picking up pieces of charred trousers on the floor of his room, but Johnson didn't take warning. Crawford finally told Johnson it was none of his business and heated words were exchanged.

Johnson then had Crawford arrested for fear that he would burn his house. Judge Berka put the finishing touches to Crawford's run of hard luck by fining him $3 and costs.

HUSBAND NOT UP TO BILLING

Caroline Frazer Says Man She Married Falls Short of His Promise.

Caroline Frazer of South Omaha appeals to the district court for the relief of divorce. She relates that she married Benjamin F. Frazer at Stuart, Ia., in February, 1900, on the representation of Frazier himself and one M. Cotton that he was a real nice man, with good habits and a perfect willingness to get up first in the morning. Since then, she avers, she has discovered that he has no such industrial inclination, that he even decamped from the home place when there was hay to put up, that he squandered the little money she had to depend on, that he used her money to buy stock of cotton at exorbitant prices and in fact that he and Cotton deliberately conspired against her, first to win her affections and then her money. She says that after Frazer obtained the latter he became so nagging that to live with him in her poor health was impossible and that they have been apart some time.

REGULAR RAINY DAY AFFAIR

Mrs. Rain, Mr. Day and Mrs. Rain-Day in State of Terror.

FARMER TAKES ON SOME WAR SCENERY

Then Deputy Sheriff Buckles on His Shooting Irons and Starts Out to Prevent an Expected Exhibition.

Armed with a short-barreled arsenal and a brace of warrants from Justice Foster's court, Deputy Sheriff Joseph Sherry started to Brigg's station yesterday to bring in Nels Jargens, a Dane, whose occupation heretofore has been farming, but who is said to have put in the last few days shooting at targets in the timber, preparatory to some time sending Charles Day to the land of eternal night. The history of the trouble is a history of a love affair, a rich widow and a burned barn.

Jargens, who is about 30 years old, is said to have fallen in love with Christiania the 20-year-old daughter of Elizabeth Rain, who has a farm near Florence and not many more years to live. Charles Day, a brakeman, 25 years old and living at the station, recognized the charms of Christian at about the same time, and the girl found herself suddenly possessed of two suitors who didn't suit each other at all. Eventually, she chose the one with the sunnier name and they were married, taking up their residence near the home place.

Significant Blaze in Barn.

Previously, Jargens made a contract with Mrs. Rain to put up her hay on shares, but after the daughter threw him over he discovered that the contract was not to his liking and wished to throw it over. Mrs. Rain demured and insisted that he fulfill it. He hauled in several loads, including one on September 2. Immediately after he had deposited this latter, and while still only a short way from the barn, Mrs. Rain heard the horses in the stable in great commotion, and upon investigating the cause found the hay in the barn afire in the extremity of the building farthest from the house. Weak with her 80 years, she could do nothing, and as she was alone, the building and its contents burned. Jargens is said to have driven rapidly away without looking back and to have hurriedly passed a neighbor near the place without stopping to talk—which is considered a very unusual, if not suspicious, proceeding in that vicinity.

Mrs. Rain told her daughter and son-in-law and the three came into Omaha to see Deputy County Attorney Abbott. He counseled them to bring no action until certain of Jargens' guilt and to go back for more evidence. It is said that Jargens heard of the call and the plans and avowed that the county of Douglas is too small to hold both him and Day.

Looks Like War.

It is further told that he came to Omaha, but to see a gunsmith, not a doctor of laws, and that when he got back home he had more war scenery on him than a Texas ranger. Since then, the Rainy-Day combination has been informed by neighbors, he has been occupied with some military maneuvers of his own, the eventuality of which is to be another little job for the undertaker with Day riding horizontally in the front hack. The latter doesn't want the honor and is losing sleep over the prospect of having it thrust upon him, so he came in Wednesday to tell Attorney Abbott of the later developments. Two complaints were immediately filed, one to have Jargens put under bond to keep the peace and the other charging arson, with the deputy sheriff's trip as the result.

Jargens was brought in late in the afternoon and released under bond.

CERO-FRUTO

"An All-Day Food"

Wheat and Pure Fruit Combined.

Never before in the history of concentrated and predigested foods have manufacturers been able to prepare any cereal in a manner that would be at once highly nutritious, satisfying to the appetites of the strong as well as the weak, delicious to the taste of nearly everybody, and equally well adapted to serving at breakfast, dinner and supper. These four essentials, from the standpoint of the manufacturer, have been attained in CERO-FRUTO. There is simply no other prepared cereal food like it—

NONE THAT WILL COMPARE

with it. CERO-FRUTO is sustaining to a wonderful degree, containing, as it does, 200 PER CENT NUTRITION. Through its use the digestive apparatus is not overworked. Instead of experiencing a feeling of uncomfortableness after eating, one feels refreshed by this food, because the greatest amount of nutritive energy with the least degree of digestive exertion is obtained. This is a food, moreover, equally well adapted to old and young, weak and strong. It is delicious to the taste; it purifies the blood, it is a being at the same time a tonic for the nerves and a remarkable muscle-builder.

CERO-FRUTO is a combination of the best wheat with the best fruits. It requires no sugar in serving and the flavor is decidedly "fruity." The manufacturers claim, and physicians attest, that CERO-FRUTO is easily assimilative in all conditions of the digestive system. It does not produce satiety. It is ready to eat when wanted.

Sold by all grocers. Samples free for the asking. Address
