should take no action on the app al. The pending appeal is from a decree renaside the probate of a will. It presents guilty. for the continuance John L. Webster, attorney for the plaintiffs, says to the court:

It is my opinion that the hearing of the pending appeal is unnecessary, for the reason that when the said case was tried the appellants were not able to produce the person who wrote the last will of the deceased nor any witnesses who could testify to the contents of said will from the actual seeing or reading thereof, and the failure to produce said evidence was one of the most potent reasons in the mind of the district judge in rendering the decree from which the pending appeal was taken.

Since the date the appellants discovered the person who wrote the will and there-upon flied their petition for a new trial and upon the hearing thereon produced a large amount of additional testimony touching the execution of the will and produced as a witness Paul T. Gadsen, who was then an attorney-at-law in the city of St. Louis, and be further testified to the contents of the said will and that it contained a clause revoking all prior wills. The appellents also produced the testimony of Mrs. Willson, who was the stemographer in the said Gadsen's office, who testified to the fact of making a copy of said will on the type-writer and to the fact that said Miles and another person called at the said Gadsen about the said will. Appellants also produced Judge Wind of St. Louis as a witness, who testified to consultations of Paul T. Gadsen with him regarding the said will and particularly with reference to the revoking clause therein, which consultations were had about the time by the said will and the said will son and the said Wind; that the defendants have not produced any witnesses who contradict any of the above statements made by the said Gadsen, the said Willson and the said Wind; that the date of the writing of the said will by the said Gadsen and the execution the residence I am persuaded that the district court will grant a new trial and vacate the decree.

Sunday next, September 14, is the first anniversary of the death at the hands of a Godless assessin of William McKinley, then president of the United States, an event that flooded with sorrow the heart of every patriotic citizen of this country and called down upon the act the grief and execration of civilized people throughout the world.

It is fitting and proper that the people of this city should in some manner appropriately observe this solemn anniversary, and therefore, in accordance with the proclamation of the governor of Nebraska, asking such observance, I, as acting mayor of the city of Lincoln, request the churches of the city to observe the day with appropriate services and urge that all our citizens attend and tenderly do reverence to the memory of one whose purity of life, the memory of one whose purity of life, whose herolem in death, whose patriotism and ability as a citizen and statesman commands the admiration of every right-thinking person in this country and throughout the universe.

I also suggest that wherever practicable flags be displayed at half-staff during the day.
