REPROVED BY POPE

Head of Church Does Not Endorse Catholic Action in France.

FORGET MODERATION AND SOUND SENSE

Regrets Obtusity of Those Who Confuse Politics and Religion.

DISOBEDIENCE TO LAW IS ANARCHY

Aside from Question of Principle, Action is Held to Be Bad Policy.

LIKELY TO PROVOKE RETALIATORY ACTS

Republican Majority May Be Provoked and Expel Orders Which Have Never Meddled with Politics.

[Copyright, 1902, by Press Publishing Co.] PARIS, Sept. 20.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—The republican has been created among the clerical anti-republicans by the pope's utterances upon the religious troubles in France. According to Cardinal Rampolla, Pope Leo said: "The politically inclined Catholics in France too often have forgotten recent moderation and moderation in the face of the obtusity of Catholics who confuse politics with religion and always entrust their legitimate claims to those parties opposing a republican government. We reprove also the sterile and disgraceful agitation which is being substituted for legal action. Such a policy, feeling sure that when the Chambers meet the republican majority, being irritated, will refuse a residence and authorization to many orders, which, never having exerted themselves in any secret political action, would otherwise have remained unmolested. The call issued by the clerical press to boycott Switzerland, Jersey and Guernsey because of measures passed by their respective councils forbidding the expelled French congregations to settle there, has fallen perfectly flat, despite a most fervid campaign."

ARCHBISHOPRIC OF CHICAGO

Dr. Spalding of Peoria is to Have it and Keane Will Not Be Transplanted.

[Copyright, 1902, by Press Publishing Co.] ROME, Sept. 20.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—Father Braudi, who was at one time theologian to Cardinal Gibbons, made the following important and decisive statement to the World correspondent concerning the alleged desire of the American hierarchy and clergy to be transferred from the jurisdiction of the propaga to that of the vatican on the ground that such a step would raise the status of America from that of a missionary country and place it on the level with the other great centers of catholicity. Father Braudi said: "This question first came up for discussion when Cardinal Staffoli assisted at the opening of the catholic university in Washington. He thought, as the American hierarchy had been established a century, it was entitled to be placed on a par with the European hierarchies. Cardinal Gibbons took a vote of the episcopate on the point with the unexpected result that seventy-two of the eighty archbishops and bishops pronounced against the proposed change. "The American hierarchy and clergy enjoy many privileges so long as the United States remains under the jurisdiction of the propaga which they are not disposed to surrender. In America they are being treated like the Latin countries that are subject to the direct supervision of the holy see. Every American clergyman from simplest curate to the cardinal is regarded as a missionary. An American parish priest enjoys more authority than a bishop in Italy or Spain. All their transactions with the holy see, too, are conducted without trouble or cost through the propaga, whereas the more favored countries have to go through the costly routine of the different congregations. There is, therefore, no prospect of a change in the existing order of things."

SHAH IS DIFFICULT TO PLEASE

American Sculptress Makes a Bust for Him and Gets a Musical Instrument for Pay.

[Copyright, 1902, by Press Publishing Co.] PARIS, Sept. 20.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—Rosalyne Verlan, an American sculptress, was permitted to make a bust of the shah while he was in Paris. She got three sittings, but the monarch was not satisfied with the result. He hated the woman's cheeks and said: "You are a pretty and fascinating girl, but you cannot give good likeness. What can I give you as a souvenir. Here take this and go away, because I am busy." Thus saying, he picked up from the table a clarinet wherewith a member of his suite usually plays, handed the strange present to the astounded girl and left the room.

He was a bookkeeper in Brooklyn and was shanghaied while passing along South street, New York, after a spree. Dickson, who was a busy accountant, is now a sturdy sailor and loves the new business. He will sail for home aboard the first sailing ship that is willing to engage him as mate.

ARMY LEARNS FROM CIRCUS

Barham & Bailey's System of Organization an Object Lesson to French Generals.

[Copyright, 1902, by Press Publishing Co.] PARIS, Sept. 20.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—Under orders the general staff of the French army were all present on the scene of the battle of Sedan today, when Barham & Bailey's circus arrived, for the purpose of receiving an object lesson in American organization in moving, housing and feeding an army of people. At 5 o'clock the four big trains arrived and the others followed in rapid succession. At 9 o'clock a hot and elaborate breakfast was served, with seats at nice tables for the 700 circus people. Every tent had been erected, manure and every seat mounted. The costumes had been unpacked and 400 horses stabled, curried and fed. The general staff declared that even the crack regiments of artillery could hardly duplicate the performance. It is to be noted that the Thirty-sixth regiment of field artillery was ordered out of barracks, and the guns, horses and all were ordered to entrain and detrain. Many faults in the tactics were pointed out to the officers by Mr. Barham, the general superintendent of the circus, and Mr. Bailey himself. The suggestions were thankfully received by the generals, who had a stenographer taking down their remarks, to be later embodied in a report to the minister of war. The staff were served with supper in the circus dining tent, after which they received a practical demonstration of American agility. The whole circus, where vast multitudes were entertained during two performances, was pulled down, entrained and sent away toward the next town in three hours.

Young Mr. Robinson of London is Left a Fortune that He Is Trying to Lose.

[Copyright, 1902, by Press Publishing Co.] LONDON, Sept. 20.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—E. A. Robinson celebrated his coming of age and succession of £1,600,000 under the will of his father, the famous man milliner, Peter Robinson, who left £1,600,000, by entertaining sixty guests at a banquet Thursday night at the Ritz restaurant. The cost, £2,000 and the guests included not only his particular friends, but the tradesman who obligingly gave him unlimited credit during his minority. Except the champagne, which cost $2 a bottle, the dinner was not extraordinary. There were three piano accompanists and the fun kept going furiously until after dawn. Young Robinson's future career will be awaited with pathetic interest, as he swears he will spend his fortune in eighteen months.

Young Man Who Committed Murder Escapes, but Meets His End Under Arrest.

[Copyright, 1902, by Press Publishing Co.] ROME, Sept. 20.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—The Count Bon Martini murder is now monopolizing the attention of all Italy. It recalls in its horrid cruelty and depravity the historic tragedies associated with the Italian tyrants in the dark ages. Count Bon Martini, a wealthy nobleman, married Zolindina, the handsome, all-dewy-eyed daughter of Prof. Augusto Murri, a medical man of European celebrity. Zolindina is a typical Italian, passionate and ungovernable, and even at the time she was married to Bon Martini, though only 19, she had developed a morbid taste for sensational and vicious literature, obtained for her by her brother Zullo, a medical student, known in Bologna as a young man of singularly disolute character. Zullo's influence over his sister was always exercised for evil, and after her marriage he did all in his power to entangle her from her husband, having also got his father to prevent her marriage to a young friend of his own, with whom she had fallen in love. Zolindina, in her strength of mind and surroundings and propensities, seems to be the reincarnation of Lucretia Borgia, as pictured by some of the medieval chroniclers. She had numerous admirers, and one of them, twelve months ago her husband, a patient, forgiving man, separated from her. She had two children, but Bologna rang with stories of her amours, and she was literally a public scandal.

SCHWAB HELPS TO PAINT TOWN

Compelled to Remain Over Night in French Village, He Has a Merry Time.

[Copyright, 1902, by Press Publishing Co.] PARIS, Sept. 20.—(New York World Cablegram—Special Telegram.)—Charles M. Schwab, while going to visit the Croiset iron works, the largest in Europe, stopped his automobile at Chagny, where, having missed his luncheon, he had, he said, the best dinner of his life. Being too late to proceed, he decided to stay the night in that small town. With his party, all feeling rather gay, he entered a small local cafe adjacent, where he saw a girl, a girl and the waiters by his lavish tips. Afterwards Schwab forbade the owner to accept money from anybody but himself in the place and forbade everybody in the audience to drink anything but champagne. The result was that Chagny never saw such an amount of red paint since the Romans founded the place. Long after Schwab and his party retired squads of jolly natives were serenading along every street. Before leaving the next day Schwab left $500 at the local hospital as an atonement for his mischievous lark of the previous night.

Mme. Loubet, who is a great friend and admirer of a number of American women here, is decidedly an impetuous girl, protegee to Vaasar and Wellesley fell. She has often expressed the belief that female education in the United States is better in every way than in Europe.

London Reports that American Meat Companies Will Start Representatives South This Week.

[Copyright, 1902, by Press Publishing Co.] LONDON, Sept. 20.—"The extension of the American beef trust" continues to be a fruitful theme for the English press. The British government is roundly abused for its refusal to open the ports to the importation of Argentine live cattle. There is no question that the consumer in London is paying 10 per cent more for beef than a year ago. One official of the Swift company declares that the price is due to the shortage of the American supply, and, contrary to general belief, he says his firm has frequently sold meat in London this summer below what it costs in Chicago, as the English would not pay beyond a certain price. He added: "So far as the Argentine business is concerned the closing of the ports to live South American cattle does not matter a particle, because more refrigerated beef has been shipped from Argentina this year to England than live and refrigerated meat combined during any previous season."

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—As an opponent of tariff revision and as an advocate of reciprocity, Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw spoke to a great crowd in Mason park tonight.

Under a protective policy we have built up our manufacturing interests until now our factories turn out more in value than all the shops and all the factories of any other two countries on the map by more than $2,000,000,000. We have now a surplus of manufactures as well as food products and the all-important question confronting us is what shall we do with it? For the more common articles of manufacture, like iron and steel wire, and the products of the loom and the spindle, we need more markets. In fact, we must have them, for if the ability of our people to consume should be materially checked either by prolonged and arduous tariff agitation or by failure of crops, the result would be a surplus of labor will again seek employment in vain.

NO ADVOCATING FREE TRADE.

"If I have made my promises clear the conclusion is irrefragable. I am not advocating opening our markets to the unrestricted trade of foreign countries. That must never be so much as thought of. I am simply making a strong argument as I am able to formulate in favor of swapping trade privileges.
