COR. 17TH AND FARNAM STS. COURSES

STENOGRAPHIC, COMMERCIAL, ACADEMIC, PHARMACY.

This is an institution which offers a complete business training for both sexes. It not only teaches the fundamental commercial branches but imparts a broad knowledge of the principles governing business transactions and familiarizes the student with the best and most modern methods.

It prepares its pupils to enter the business world with a knowledge of commercial usages which could otherwise be acquired only by many years of actual business experience. Its graduates are thus enabled to start in advanced positions. The officers of this institution are all college, normal and university men and they devote their entire personal attention to the teaching done in their school. This school can thoroughly prepare you for stenographic work in much less time than any other school in the west. You may enter this school for one month, and if at the expiration of this time ou are not entirely satisfied, your money will be refunded you. Within the last six weeks this school has had 20 calls for competent stenographers that it has been unable to fill. The salaries of the positions range from $40 to $100 per month. Night school will open October 18, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, We will teach you anything you want.

Students are admitted to either day or night school at any time. For particulars call or write,

ROHRBOUGH BROS' PROPS.

POINTER NO. 1-New classes in all departments tomorrow morning. You should begin then POINTER NO. 2-If you intend to become a stenographer it is very important what system of shorthand you learn. The Pitman, Graham and Munson are back numbers. The best schools no longer teach them. The Gregg system, in its purity, has long, cumbersome outlines and must drop terminations in order to get any speed, and when this is done its legibility is destroyed. The Improved Gregg is the only system ever yet devised which eliminates all the bad features of all other systems and utilizes principles which enable the writer to write rapidly and yet so he can read his notes. Improved Gregg is extremely simple. It has but one position, one slant, no shades, but few wordsigns and has the highest degree of speed. It is as much superior to Gregg as Graham is superior to Pitman. Students who learn it

POINTER NO. 3-Our text book on Improved Gregg is now out. It will be sent to any one for $1.50. Every Gregg writer ought to have a copy. POINTER NO. 4-No answers have yet been received from our ad. in last Sunday's Bee offering $175 in prizes. Even Mr. Gregg has not won any one of them. You will find the same prizes offered in today's Daily News at top of page 4. If you have not seen them, get a paper at once. POINTER NO. 5-Our Business department had several new students last week. Several more enter tomorrow. This department is operated upon an original plan of Prof. Lampman and wonderful results are obtained. The course of study has been mlarged and all stereotyped methods discarded. Our Board of Trade is a new and valuable feature. Profs. Lampman and Savage are wide awake to the interests of this department, and both are professional penmen. No other school in Omaha employs even one expert penman.

POINTER NO. 6-Our Telegraph department is forging to the front. New students enter each week, and the work grows more interesting. If you want a course in POINTER NO. 7-Our new Catalogue is out. Send for a copy. It is free.

SOME PLAIN TALK about

SHORTHAND SYSTEMS

We have been asked to review a book called "Mosher Shorthand," by Fred W. Mosher—or, as he is usually described in the announcements of the college with which he is connected—"Professor" Mosher. The book reached us a day or two ago, and we have not yet had time to carefully examine it, but when we do so we intend to give the public a fuller and more entertaining account of it. For the present we will content ourselves with a few brief remarks.

Another "!mprovement"

"Mosher Shorthand" is put up in a brilliant red cover, exactly the same style as the "Practical Stenographer," by the same "author," which made its appearance about ten years ago. The "Practical Stenographer" was published by Messrs. Rohrhough Bros. as an "improvement" on the Graham text book; but this is a hard, unappreciative world, and the "Practical Stenographer" died young. "Mosher Shorthand" professes to be an "improvement" on Gregg Shorthand, but its career will be as brief and inglorious as that of its predecessor.

Pity the Poor Student!

The alphabet of the Mosher "system" is taken bedily from Gregg Shorthand without acknowledgment, and probably without shame, but the "author," after introducing some arbitrary vertical (which, in the original spelling with which the Mosher book abounds, appears as "verticle) strokes and hocks of various lengths and sizes. Anyone who has had any practical experience in Gregg Shorthand will instantly recognize what must be the inevitable consequences of such radical violations of the fundamental principles of the system when there is any attempt at speedy writing. Any writer of Gregg Shorthand could adopt the so-called 'new principles' if he desires to do so, and this fact in itself manifestly renders it impossible for the "Mosher system" to survive. But no PRACTICAL, writer would ever dream of adopting these far-fetched expedients and fine-drawn distinctions any more than he would think of adding a fifth wheel to a wagon.

The Humor of It

This time we will not aliude to the many absurdities and contradictions occurring (which word is spelled "occuring" in four places on the second page of the Mosher book) in every plate of shorthand, but will merely give a few illustrations which are characteristic of the whole "system."

On page 71 is a sign given for the termination "ocity" (which is taken from Gregg Shorthand), yet on page 130 the word "reciprocity" is written "recipros." This word proves three things; first, that "Professor" Mosher never knew how to write the word correctly in Gregg Shorthand; second, that he does not know how to write it correctly in his own "system." third, that his claim that terminations are not dropped in his "system" cannot be substantiated—but the latter fact could be demonstrated from every page of the text book.

In the next plate of shorthand the first word, "ambition," is written "ambish;" but on page 141 it is written "mbish." Evidently the "author" should take a few lessons in his own "system." We could go on quarting example after example, but what is the use? Our sympathy goes out to the poor student who is attempting to reach any real efficiency by such a mixed-up jumble of Pitmanic and Gregg Shorthand. What aid can he expect from an "author" or teacher who does not know how to write even simple words consistently in his own text book?

Incidentally, we would suggest that "Professor" Mosher get someone to revise the English of his book. As an illustration: On page 125 he informs the student that "the past tense of verbs are sometimes represented by the disjointed "t;" "the past tense ARE" is a good illustration of "English as she is wrote!"

System Making While You Wait

At this point we deem it well to make public some things which are not generally known. Some six months after they introduced Gregg. Shorthand into the Omaha Commercial college. Messrs. Rohrbough Bros. threatened that unless we would grant them the exclusive right to teach Gregg Shorthand for the entire state of Nebraska they would bring out a "Mosher Shorthand," which was then in preparation. The letter in which this threat was made lies before us as we write. The point we wish to make is that after teaching Gregg Shorthand less than six months and without having had any practical experience in writing it. Mr. Mosher was preparing an "improvement" on it, as he had previously done with the Graham method. In the summer of 1901, Mr. Mosher attended a convention of Gregg Shorthand teachers held at Chlcago (at which the principles of the revised edition were given to the teachers in sdevance of its publication, and it is recorded in the report of the convention, which appeared in the Gregg Writer for August. 1901, that one teacher only left the room when the examination for teachers' certificates was given. That teacher was Mr. Mosher, and our readers can readily conjecture from what we have aiready written why he did not desire to take the examination.

To the Shorthand Student

We earnestly urge those students who began the study of the "Mosher System" under the impression that it was "Gregg improved," to attend some school where the system is taught in its purity and not in an adulterated and impracticable form. By so doing they will save time, 'abor, mone y and 'nuch disappointment.

Their Last Resort

Since writing the foregoing, we have received a paper containing some heroic challenges from Messrs. Robrbough, and we note them as a gratifying evidence that our campaign is having its effect. The shorthand outlines given as representing Gregg Shorthand are welcome, indeed, as proving the point we have made as to Mr. Mosher's lack of knowledge of our system. They are written just as we should expect Mr. Mosher to write Gregg Shorthand, and every writer of Gregg Shorthand will laugh at these preposterous forms.

While we do not like to bring business education down to the level of the prize ring, we are prepared to meet Messrs. Rohrbough Bros. on their own ground, and fight them with their own weapons if necessary, so long as they continue to use the name of Gregg Shorthand to boost "Mosher Shorthand." The name GREGG has an honorable record, and for obvious reasons we will not permit it to be used in this way. Next week we will attend to the challenge. The Gregg Publishing Company, Chicago.
