Where Deadwood Breaks In.

To make it doubly fierce last night the Black Hills bunch showed up. Bobble, child, you have never had what's coming to you coming to us. It's great, Robbie! People till you've seen that herd in action. When stand around rubbering with their mouths they light, overything else climbs trees. We butted into them at Roltair's and went the whole route with them. Roltair's is a kind of delirium tremens parlor, Robbie. able and timely hunch. You see 'em, only you don't see 'em. The tenser out in front piped it off that his bill-of-fare included "Pharoah's Daughter a beautiful illusion worked with lights." An old timer from Deadwood, away back in the crowd, thought he said "Faro Dealer, worked with lights," and the way he stampeded that herd to get into the game was something ferocious. A cop was still carrying ice to the cashier when we came Doc Pierce put us against the Eruption of Mont Pelee, next door. Said it was in the interest of science; that every man with bad blood ought to see what a real eruption is like. Billy Penn said he sposed that was "Doc's kind of humor," which it the first time I ever heard Willie joke. The show? Well, it's pretty bully from a Young Men's Christian association standpoint and a good safe place to take the offspring.

In at the wild animal show we hit the Black Hills again. Fast music! Colonel Somebody was on the mat with a bruin. Graeco-Roman, for gate receipts and a side bet of three bourbons. Jim Weaver was feeding a lion from his naked lunch hook and Dave O'Brien was boosting the candy business with the snake charmer. The show's got its own wind jammers and altogether it's worth looking into.

He was Hahn, after which she was removed to a general favorite among the operators her home near Eighteenth street and Poppleton avenue. Mrs. Mearaschi was picking up coal on the tracks when the accident occurred. As the engine approached her she started to leave the tracks and when it was almost upon her rushed back and tried to grab a lump of coal directly in front of the engine. She was struck and dragged several feet, the wheels badly mangling her fingers. It is likely that amputation will be necessary. Her other injuries are not serious. After her injury those who were in that vicinity ran to her assistance and the police were notified.
