Rev. Robert Bell Makes Initial Appearance in Good Shepherd Fulpit.

TAKES FRIENDSHIP FOR HIS SUBJECT

Dwells Upon Potency of True Friendly Relation and Hopes it Will Exist Between Himself and His Congregation.

Preaching for the first time as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd Rev. Robert Bell spoke upon the subject of "Friendship," and in the course of his sermon touched in a feeling and earnest manner upon the friendship which he hoped and felt assured would exist between himself and his hearers in their future relation as pastor and congregation. Choosing for his text the words of the Savior as given in the fifteenth chapter of the gospel accord-"Henceforth I call ye ing to St. John: not servants, for the servant knoweth not what the master doeth; but I call ye friends." He dwelt at some length upon the sacredness of the term friendship and the great potency of the true friendly relation. Religious devotion, he said, should not consist of mere form and ceremony; and he urged his hearers to make a friend of Christ and go to Him in time of adversity as they should to a friend. Friendship, as portrayed in the bible in various places, signified more, he said, than the meaning ordinarily given to it in modern times, and true friendship would endure in spite of almost any counter influence. Friendship in the highest acceptance of the word meant complete trust and confidence

Speaking of his future work in the parish of the Good Shepherd, Mr. Bell said that he had come there inspired with a determination to work earnestly and to the best of his ability and he hoped the members of the congregation would give him their true friendship and their full trust and confidence. Each branch of the church would have its part to do. The vestry would have its part, the congregation its part and the pastor his part, and if they all worked in harmony the result would be success.

TALKS OF CHILDREN'S TRAINING.

Says Sunday School is the Church's Strongest Part.

A children's rally to be held at the Knox Presbyterian church next Sunday morning inspired Rev. M. D. Long, pastor of that the training of children and in his sermon he brought out the fact that children are societies are being organized and the affairs of the societies are being conducted by children.

"It is well," said Rev. Long, "that the energies of the Christian people of the country be devoted to the proper training of the children. If this is done it makes unnecessary the training of the man. Therefore I hold that the Sabbath school is of more importance than the church. It is in here that the child gets his first training and it depends upon his teachers which end of the road of life he will reach, worthlessness or worthy manhood. His teaching should be systematic and alow. Step by step he should be taught of God for years, and his old friends, who are has the right Sunday school teacher.

"Too much money cannot be expended for the employment of Sunday school teachers of the right character, for in this school there should be the best talent that can be secured. We need teachers who will teach sound doctrines. I mean by tion, to follow the Master. Make up your minds that the true way to achieve the living that Christ would have you is to do and to face Christ and let His glory outer into your soul-not to turn your back and any I will simply not do certain things and thus become holy.' Pointed Out by Hev. J. W. Conley at First Baptist.

"The way to put out the darkness is to let the light in," said the Rev. J. W. Conley from the pulpit of the First Baptist church Sunday morning. This was the key- running horse races daily by the best thornote of his sermon on "A Separated Life," taking his text from Corinthians II, vi. 17, 18, beginning: "Therefore come out from mong men and be ye separate."

"The Lord wants His people to be a separate people," said the pastor. "I want to talk to you on the essential features of a separate life. False ideas as to this separate life have existed from the early days of the church and have done much harm and injury. There are those who believe that the essential thing is withdrawal from the sight of men. That idea is a pernicious onc. The separate life the Savior meant is the separate life in the midst of business and social activity-not retreat from the actual world in monasteries and the like.

"A negative position toward the things of the world is not the separate life. A separation founded deeper than on mernegation is meant. It is not right to think that the separate life comes through a peculiar and extraordinary experience such as that marvelous and aesthetic physical state which some persons call 'sanctification.

"The first essential of a separate life is a correct spiritual understanding-the power to grasp the real meaning of the book of God. There would not be so many defections from the churches if the people were grounded in the truth. Fads and passing sophistries could not successfully assail them.

"Secondly, he who would live the true separate life must have supreme trust in God. The adversities of life, I believe, are to achool us, that we may trust. In this manner do we become children for salva-
