CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

COUNCIL MAKES ITS POSITION, PLAIN

Willing to Find a Way to Meet the Emergency, but Insists on the Commission Assuming Its Share-of Responsibility.

At its meeting of last evening the city council reiterated formally in the shape of a resolution the frequently expressed determination of its members that the city fire department must not be disorganized for lack of funds and that a way must and will be found to continue the department to the end of the present year. The council insists that the responsibility for exceeding the charter limit of $125,000 for fire department expenditure shall not be saddled upon its body alone, but must be shared by the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, the Commercial club and the taxpayers generally.

The resolution as adopted is the outcome of a report from the judiciary committee to which was referred the communication of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, asking for an additional appropriation, and a resolution submitted last evening by Councilman Lobeck.

The committee in its report thoroughly reviewed the situation and in its recommendations submitted the proposition that the council, if urged as before by the Commercial club and other important interests to continue the fire department at its full strength, could well afford to do so. To that, however, was added the following qualifying paragraph:

The city council stands ready to co-operate with the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, the mayer, Commercial club and taxpayers and insurance men to keep the fire department in good and effective condition for the remainder of the year, but all must share in the responsibility.

Mr. Lobeck's Proposition. Mr. Lobeck's resolution was to the effect the past, take care of the fire department of the touches are bold and true, and many and see that in some manner the present of the lines get near to the mark. It has need is met. The resolutions directed the the unquestioned merit of cleanliness, and "perform their duties in the usual manner" of efficiency."

This resolution, with the addition of the ommittee, was adopted,

Schwartzchild & Sulsberger's Shed. Among the communications from the mayor was one calling attention to the business methods employed in this city by the Schwartzehild & Sulsberger Co., which had been the subject of a former communication sent by him to the council. He referred to the vacation of a part of Leavenworth street for trackage facilities and the erection of a temporary platform for the use of the firm mentioned, and also the fact that the firm had erected no buildings. He reminded the council that the lease expired October 19 and suggested that the time had now come when the Kansas City firm should be required to either 'fish or cut bait" and should be required by the city to either construct or rent a building or discontinue business. He submitted that it is not fair to permit this concern to sell meat from a car pulled in on its tracks with no other business establishment then a shed used as a receiving and distributing depot, and to compete with local firms who are paying taxes in this Amusements.

"All On Account of Eliza" is hard to classify. One hesitates to apply the muchabused descriptive adjective "pastoral," for it lacks many of the essential points of a comedy that breathes of green fields and clover-white meadows. It is comedy all right, and it aims to present some rural types, but like the shot of the tallor, it is not true to its aim. Only a city man, unfamiliar with country life, would draw some that the council will in the future, as in of the characters and call them types. PROBLEMS OF ALL TAXATION Subject in Discussed in Lecture by aregational Church. "Problems of Taxation" was the subject of a lecture delivered at the First Congregational church last night by Prof. Edward A. Ross, under the auspices of the University of Chicago, being one of the regular series of lectures of the extension course

Prof. Edward A. Ross at Con-

The lecturer said, in part:

The fiscal problems that perpiex us pertain to the raising of state and local revenues. Our federal system of taxation is not seriously criticized as a means of raising revenue and its success is attested by its supplying ample funds with little sensible burden to the people. Our first problem of taxation arises in connection with the sharing of state expenses among the various counties. Most of our states have no taxes of their own, but raise money by lovying certain additional mills on the valuation of property as ascertained by local assessors, Our endeavor to spread the state burden evenly over the entire mass of property locally assessed is an invitation to counties to keep their assessment low and thus dodge some of the state tax. There will be no local objection if all the property in a county is assessed at a quarter of its true value and its citizens will thereby succeed in dodging three-fourths of their just share of the burden of the state government. But other counties are equally shrewd and thus there is between localities a rivalry which brings assessment down to an absurd figure. In the same state we find property assessed all the way from par to one-twenty-fifth of its true value.

One remedy for this unbearable state of things is the "Oregon plan." This provides that after 1966 the counties shall contribute to the state treasury a certain percentage of their local expenditures. A The lecturer said, if part:

things is the 'Oregon plan.' This provides that after 1906 the counties shall contribute to the state treasury a certain percentage of their local expenditures. A county that raises for its own purposes twice as much as another county must pay twice as much as another county must pay twice as much as another county must pay twice as much to the state. This might do if there were not other considerations which urge the state to open up for itself distinct sources of revenue. The favorite and time-honored source of our local revenues is the general property tax. The foundation of this tax is the common sentiment of fairness in a democracy. This system appeals so much to the average man, it is so rooted in American tradition, that only recently has the mountain of adverse evidence that, has been piling up the last twenty-five years begun to shake faith in it. Now, however, there is a unanimous opinion among all students of American taxation that the general property tax as actually administered has come to be one of the worst taxes known in the civilized world. The tap root of the svil is that with the growth of cities, the multiplication of new forms of wealth and the increasing complexity of economic relations, personal property, which constitutes nearly one-half of all property, more and more escapes assessment until the system has become a farce.

The tax puts a premium on dishonesty and debauches the public conscience. Men who make honest returns perceive that the tax rate is so much the higher on account of the evasions of others and therefore they are paying not only their own dues, but also the dues of their dishonest neighbors.

worth to him. New, in the case of a corporation these two values may greatly diverge. The poles and wires of a telephone company are worth a great deal when wrought into a line and equipped for telephony; they are worth very little when disintegrated into reels of rusty wire and stacks of second-hand poles. Yet the latter is all the value that the courts of Ontario allow them under the general property tax.

Owing to the fact that the market value of corporate securities reflects prospective profit rather than present profit it has been argued that the true basis for the taxation of corporations is their net earnings. But in such case, of course, they must be put in a class by themselves and taxed at a different rate from that on property. This special treatment gives a fine chance to hoodwink the people. Michigan, after trying the plan several years, has gone back to property—including franchise—as a bacis for railroad taxation.

Hy means of taxes on inheritance, on corporations and on incomes it would be possible for the commonwealth not only to pay its own expenses, but to come to the relief of the local units. The revenues received from the public service corporations, for instance, might be returned to the municipalities they operate in, and that from the railroads might be distributed among the counties in proportion to mileage. poration these two values may greatly diverge.
