MITCHELL PREPARES STRIKERS' CASE

Will Present Personally All Claims to Commission, but Support Himself With Experts in Anthracite Coal Getting.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Acceptances have been received by the president from all of the members of the coal strike arbitration committee.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 22.—Thousands of men began work today, repairing the mines and placing the collieries in condition for the general resumption of coal mining.

While there were thousands of men who were able to begin their work today, there were many who were disappointed when they applied to the superintendents of the collieries where they were formerly employed.

These men wanted their old places back, but in many instances the company officials refused to discharge those who stood by them during the strike.

During the strike the companies were compelled to employ many incompetent men to help keep the mines free from water or from "squeezing."

More Men Than Required. A mine worker who came into the union headquarters from South Wilkesbarre today said:

The superintendents are turning down a good many men who are not needed. This is only a bluff and they will be glad to get our men in a day or two.

Although the strike is over, the path of the nonunion workman is still a thorny one. They are disliked by the unionists and it is not expected the relations between them will be improved when they get into mines together.

President Mitchell today began the work of preparing the miners' side of the case for presentation to the arbitration commission.
