"Two Vanrevels." Both Tarkington's New Romance, a charming love story.

HEROME APPEARS IN ENTIRELY NEW FIELD

"The Flight of Pony Baker" is the title of a delightful juvenile story by W. D. Howells.

Booth Tarkington's new romance, "The Two Vanrevels," which has been running serially in McClure's Magazine, is out in book form. The tale is cast during the 40's and is laid in the proud aristocratic town of Rome.

Jerome K. Jerome has appeared in an entirely new field in his last book, "Paul Kester."

Did you ever think and plan about running away from home? How many genuine American boys have not? If you are among the number that have planned you will probably find some of your old reasons for such plans in W. D. Howells' new story, "The Flight of Pony Baker."

John Oliver Hobbes' (Mrs. Craig) latest novel is "Love and the Soul Hunters." Prince Paul of Urevelite, Byulestein, a "sentimental libertine" who is "consumed by the desire for beauty—in nature, in art, in souls, is lost by death the dearest of all his many favorites among the cause he follows through it, the outcome being that Paul, the rivalship of these two and the many plans of the secretary to win her hand form this interesting tale.

"Like Another Helen" is by Sydney C. Crier. The story is all written in letters from Miss Sylvia Freyne to Miss Amelia

Warner, and is a story of the California "Gold Rush," with a close description of California society. This is all prepared by an account of the voyage from England there. We read of interesting scenes, in which merchants and the government are involved of encounters, etc. It is not without its little love trials and the latter scenes because "the minute histories" must go to her "epicure." Published by L. C. Page & Co.

"Two Wilderness Voyagers," by Franklin Weller Collins, is a tale purely of Indian life and character. It is based upon the experience of two Sioux children, Zin kals and Erpa, son and daughter of Fire Cloud of the Ogallala, who escaped from a mission school in Minnesota about the year 1867.

"Job Hutton," by James B. Connolly, is a story of the south. The hero is a Georgia boy who is assisting a captain of a vessel against the captain's attention to his active brain and fine build, and was thereby brought to the attention of the United States engineer's office at Savannah and enters its service. Job's experiences in connection with No. 6 dredge at the mouth of the Savannah river make a story that will hold the attention and enlarge the outlook, intellectual and moral, of any boy. It is a story of adventure and of character-testing episodes, in which original and racy touches of river men figure. The best scene is near the close of the story, where Job shoots and kills a negro who had shot his chum, then, when others told him there was no hope, jumps into the water where his chum fell after being wounded and saved from drowning. Published by Scribner's Sons.

"Doctor Robin," by Harriet A. Cheever, is a story for children, told in the first person, by the bird-hero, "Doctor Robin." The conception of a bird who understands the concepts of art, and applies healing herbs and cooling vegetable juices to the wounds of injured songsters, furnishes a very original story. But Doctor Robin, dealer in powders, drops, pills, poultices, plasters, strings, etc., is such a bird. It is intended to inspire a greater sympathy for the birds, and with that thought in mind, the author has the best and dearest known words to them. Published by Dana Estes & Co.

"The Story of a Living Temple," by Frederick M. and Mary Henry Rossiter, although written for the young, appeals to vigorously until he is in possession of the body and to arouse in young people a deeper interest in its care. The author says: "To regard the body as a temple is not vital, but to see the bearing of practical hygiene upon yourself as an individual is the object of the book."

Laird & Lee have published an account of the career of "Harry Tracy," the famous western outlaw. It is by W. N. Carter, but with the thought that freedom and liberty are the best and dearest known words to them. Published by Dana Estes & Co.

MEDICS GO INTO ATHLETICS

All Students at Creighton Unite in Organizing a New Association. The organization of a permanent athletic association comprising the entire Creighton university student body is on foot. The medics have never taken part in the management of the university athletics, but under the new organization they will have an equal chance with the classical and scientific students. The plan is expected to give a great impetus to athletics at Creighton. Several husky doctors have appeared in foot ball suits and are doing all in their power to strengthen the team for the Haskell Indian game next month.

BURT HOST TO DICKINSON

Invitations are out for a dinner at the Omaha club to be given Saturday night by President G. B. Burt of the Union Pacific railroad in honor of the retiring general manager, Edward Dickinson. Mr. Dickinson leaves the service of the Union Pacific Friday, terminating a career of thirty-three years with that railroad, and Monday morning at his new position, vice president and general manager of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient, with headquarters at Kansas City.

SHIFTS CHANGE NEXT MONTH

The change in the shifts of the police department as ordered by the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners Monday night will not be put into effect before November 17. "It will require that much time," said the chief, "to get things in shape for the change. We don't want to do anything in regard to changing until after election and the regular details as made out the first of the month will be made out as usual for November, but I think by the 17th we will be able to make the changes without any trouble."

ROADS AS OBJECT LESSONS

Colonel Richardson Returns from Long Tour With Good News Train.

WANTS OMAHA TO BID FOR HILL'S LINE

Says This City Should Make Determined Effort to Become the Southern Terminus of the Great Northern Railway.

Colonel R. W. Richardson, government highway commissioner, has just returned from Boise City, Idaho, where he ended a four months' trip of the special good roads train over the Great Northern railway. During the four months it has been out this train has been carrying the people of the entire object lesson roads in Minnesota, North Dakota, Washington, Oregon and Idaho. The train was in charge of Mr. Richardson and James W. Abbott, commissioner of the Rocky mountain and Pacific coast states, and under the direction of Hon. Martin Dodge, director of the highway division of the department, and Frank H. Hitchcock, associate of Mr. Dodge and head of the bureau of foreign markets. A. W. Machen, superintendent of the free delivery, accompanied the party on the eastern end of the trip and J. W. Irwin, superintendent of the free delivery on the coast, was with them on the latter half of their journey.

"The development, enterprise and progress of the northwestern country is wonderful," said Mr. Richardson yesterday. "The railroads are extending immigration by low rates, and they are succeeding in excellent style. Large numbers are flocking to that territory and many timber claims are being taken up in Washington and Oregon. Seattle, Everett and the cities of the Puget sound are booming. The railroads are concentrating their efforts in promoting the oriental trade, and is extending the railroad system with the idea of assisting in the development of that country."

Likes Hill's Methods. "Omaha should make a determined effort to bring the Great Northern railway into this city. It is now in operation as far south as Sioux City, and a heroic effort would no doubt bring the road here, making this the southern terminus. It would put Omaha in direct connection with the greatest traffic road in the country. Mr. Hill not only builds the very best railroads, but he develops the trade and commerce along the line. He's now constructing several ocean vessels for carrying the trade across the Pacific, and he is determined to have the oriental trade. He is far-seeing in this. He would carry the food products of the Mississippi valley to the Orient and bring back the oriental products to the northwest, thus giving freight both ways, enabling his road to minimize the cost of transportation."

"The business interests of Omaha should take up this question at once and push it vigorously until he is in possession of the body and to arouse in young people a deeper interest in its care. The author says: "To regard the body as a temple is not vital, but to see the bearing of practical hygiene upon yourself as an individual is the object of the book."

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

County and City Have White Elephant in Emergency Hospital Contract.

PUZZLE TO GET ROAD TO INSTITUTION

Some Litigation Will Be Necessary Before the Situation Will Be Satisfactorily Adjusted, but Settlement is Expected.

The county and city evidently got a white elephant when a contract was entered into last spring for an emergency hospital on the river bottoms between O and P streets. When it became imperative that something should be done to secure secluded quarters for smallpox patients and one or two temporary post houses had been burned by indignant citizens the city authorities looked about for a new location. Some land was found east of the Burlington tracks and a tract comprising fifteen acres was rented for a term of years. The county erected a building costing $1,000 on the ground with the understanding that the city was to maintain the institution. Then came the question of a roadway to the hospital. Arrangements were made with Henry Kountze for the use of a road through his ground and also with R. S. Berlin of Omaha. These arrangements were considered satisfactory and are supposed to be still in force.

Monday when the first case of smallpox was called to the attention of the city physician, the patient was ordered to the Emergency hospital, J. D. Homan, the tenant on the place, did not want to receive the sick man as he said he had a steady job and would not quit to take care of one patient. There came a clash of authority and the agreement between Homan and the city had to be brought forth to show that he was under bonds to perform the duties he agreed to do.

In the end Homan took in the patient, although he did it against his will. Homan is, according to the contract, to receive 50 cents a day for each patient and some perquisites which the city allows. This does not seem to suit and the chances are that other arrangements will soon be made.

The most serious problem is a road to the hospital. Selger, who looks after the Kountze property on the bottoms, has placed a lock on the gate across the road leading to the hospital and declines to allow any one to go through the ground unless paid for it. This is in direct violation of the contract made with Mr. Kountze and the city authorities will take the matter up at once and see that Selger takes off the lock on the gate.

While Berlin offered to dedicate half of the roadway to the city the details have not been arranged and consequently the city is now at the mercy of Selger, who demands a fee for passing along the road to a building erected by the county and maintained by the city.

"Mugging" Suspects.

A number of suspicious characters arrested in South Omaha within the last few days were taken to Omaha yesterday for the purpose of being photographed and going through the measurements of the Bertillon system. The police of Omaha and a number of railroad detectives visited the city jail yesterday and saw the prisoners. With one accord they declared the men under arrest good people to keep their heads down and their mouths shut under lock and key at night and this will be done pending the police judge of the sentence. Every effort is being made by the police of South Omaha to get rid of the crooks in this vicinity and all that is needed, so the officers say, is the co-operation of the police judges of Omaha and South Omaha.

Excavating for the Anthes Hotel at Twenty-third and F streets was completed yesterday.

H. B. Fiehraty is home from Idaho, where he spent some time making political speeches. Max Everts is out again after having undergone an operation at an Omaha hospital for appendicitis. G. W. Lewis is back from a trip to San Francisco and is here temporarily with friends at Fort Crook.

INDEPENDENT MARKET HOUSE

Commission Men and Gardeners Form Stock Company to Erect It.

FOR WHOLESALE BUSINESS EXCLUSIVELY

New Company Has Capital of Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars and Will Build Near the Present Market Place.

Articles of incorporation of the Omaha Wholesale Produce Market company have been prepared and signed by a number of the leading commission men and gardeners, as well as by one grocer. The object of the association is to create and maintain a market place where vegetables and provisions will be sold at wholesale only. The capital stock of the corporation is $25,000, divided into shares of $10 each. It is the intention of the company to lease a tract of ground near the commission houses, upon which will be erected a number of sheds, under which the gardeners may display their products, and in the course of time erect such a market house as may be desired by the persons engaged in gardening for the wholesale market. The incorporators who have so far signed the articles are H. G. Straight, J. R. Snyder, David Cole, Peter Grogan, August Packmann and George P. Munro. The three first mentioned are commission men, the next two are market gardeners and the last a retail grocer.

Final Estimates Made.

City Engineer Beal has made the final estimates on the grading of Twenty-seventh street from B to F streets. This work has been completed by the contractors at a cost of $1,915. Now that the grading is finished the gas company will proceed as rapidly as possible to lower its mains and put in new service pipes. All of this work will be completed before cold weather.

Petitions Filed.

Petitions were filed yesterday with the city clerk for the grading of street from Twenty-third to Twenty-fourth streets and of C street from Twenty-sixth to Twenty-seventh streets. These petitions will have to go through the regular process, and there is little hope of the work being done this season unless the weather should remain exceptionally good. In case the grading cannot be done this year it will be first on the slate for next season.

Lighting Company Serves Notice.

Yesterday afternoon the Thomson-Houston Electric Light company served notice upon the mayor and council that lights had been placed at Twenty-first and Y streets and at Seventeenth and Z streets. This notice was followed by a statement that no more lights would be placed until money for the payment of the same was available.

No Competition with Grocers.

"The grocers naturally object to our selling goods to their customers at the same rates that we sell to them, and the consumers would not buy from us if we offered them goods from the present center of the market place, and while the deal has not been closed, it is expected that preliminary arrangements will be made to begin work on the necessary buildings in time to have them completed before the spring trade begins.
