Cannot Close Butcher Shops. The agitation begun by certain butchers to have the authorities enforce a city ordinance passed in 1877 which called for the closing of all meat markets on Sundays bctween October 1 and May 1 came to naught yesterday afternoon when the case was called for hearing before Judge Scott in the superior court. The case was promptly dismissed, for the reason that City Solicitor Snyder and the attorneys appearing for the warring vendors of meat mutually agreed that the city ordinance in question was invalid and could not be legally enforced, as it discriminated against one class of mer-

The feature of the opening session last evening in the auditorium of the High school building was the address of Superintendent E. G. Cooley of the Chicago schools. His subject was "The Significance of Some Recent Additions in School Programs" and was a defense of the introduction into the public schools of the socalled "fads"-drawing, music, bookkeepand natural sciences. Prof. Cooley took the position that the teaching of these branches was essential to modern progress and that as the conditions, social and economic, change, so must the schools of the country change with them. He said: Defense of Fads.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) DES MOINES, Oct. 30 .- (Special.) -The Iowa supreme court filed today a number of decisions in appealed cases, though the other of having robbed him of $25. This the term closed yesterday for submissions. A very important decision was rendered involving the right of express companies to handle liquor on the C. O. D. plan in the state. In those countles where prohibition prevails it has been customary for the agents of jobbing houses in other states to go about taking orders for liquers, which were to be delivered by express and to be paid for at the time of delivery. This cusperhaps the money might be in some other | tom has become so well fixed that a large pecket. The fellow insisted that he had business has been carried on and practithoroughly searched every pocket and had cally the express agents have become in this way agents for the jobbing houses in liquors. Two cases went to the supreme court involving the right to continue this business, one from Tama county, by Judge From about the first pocket be put his hand | Burnham, and one from Washington county, by Judge Dewey. The companies claimed the right to do business under protection of the interstate commerce rule in regard to original packages. The court today declares that the actual sales are made at the time of the payment of the money on delivery of the goods and therefore the companies are not protected by the interstate commerce rules. The decision will compel some changes in the method of doing business.

Another interesting case, though not of public importance, was one from Clay county, or, rather, six cases, relating to disposal of the estate of John Irwin, who died a few years ago at the age of 94, having about 55,000 acres of land in northwestern Iowa and in Nebraska. He was for some years a resident of Nebraska City. Numerous lawsuits grew out of the disposal of the property and the supreme court today affirmed some of the cases and reversed others.
