HARD ON TOBACCO DEALERS

Trust Puts the Screws on Jobbers and Prepares to Pinch Retailers.

SELLING GOODS FOR COMBINE IS EASY

Game Warden Serves Notice on Fishermen That it is Time to Put Away the Rod and Line for the Season.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Oct. 31 .- (Special.)-Local tobacco dealers are earnostly agitating an organization for the purpose of fighting the exactions of the trust. None of them, however, will talk openly for publication for fear that the trust will execute reprisals upon them, but if all of the jobbers can be induced to join in the movement the trust is going to have hard times ahead in Lincoln. Said one of the men who is leading the movement:

"Just now the retailer does not seem to be so much at the mercy of the trust as the jobber, who is as much the slave of the trust as if he had mortgaged his existence. So completely does the trust dominate the market that it is a privilege to be able to buy of it, and the trust is making the utmost possible out of the fact. It does not walt for its jobbing customers to buy of it upon selling them just what it wants them to buy whether they want it or not. There the cudgel." are eight or ten jobbing houses in Lincoln that buy largely of the trust, and for each of them the trust has fixed a figure representing the amount of goods that must be bought during each four months of the year. For one firm the amount is fixed at $20,000, which means that the yearly sales is $5,000 each, for another $6,000 and so on down the list. This amount must actually be sold if the jobber would enjoy the rebate which the trust allows, and which af- few hours. fords practically the only profit on many of its goods.

Has a Cinch on Sales.

"The trust maintains eight traveling salesmen in this state who make the jobbing houses quite often. When they visit a jobbing house they do not inquire what goods the jobber wants. They ask rather how much of the quarterly allotment of tobacco or cigars the particular jobbing house has bought during the quarter, and if it is not already up to the trust requirements, goes forth after this day with his rod and the agent simply declares that he will send line to tempt the finny denizens of the in an order for a big bunch of stuff of his own choosing. With money of this sort belonging to every jobbing house in the State Board of Irrigation, closed his term ountry in its hands, the trust does not of service in that espacity too have to have much capital of its own upon which to do business.

Retailer Comes Next.

"But it is not alone the jobber that is harassed. The retailer is getting his eyes of the preliminary work of the irrigation opened to the methods of trust operation, not yet so much in the west as in the east. It is evidently the intention of the trust to put the jobber first out of business and then the retailer. In New York the trust opened up over 400 cigar stores, selecting the very best locations, buying out some of the old dealers, and where they refused to sell, forcing them by ruinous competition or by renting their places of business away from them. In Chicago the trust has opened sixty stores, paying rentals therefor aggregating $136,000 a year. If it found a dealer with a good location it would go to the owner and secretly agree to take the place at the close of the dealer's lease at a rental double that which he had been paying. If it found a dealer who was obdurate it would open a store in his immediate neighborhood and for a time conduct ruinous competition, selling standard brands of its cigars at one-fifth the price at which he could sell many western cities, and local dealers deem t but a matter of a short time until it shall invade Lincoln.

After an Omaha Man.

Lou L. E. Stewart, a real estate man of Omaha, is charged in a petition filed in district court today by the State Savings bank of Dea Moines with trying to defraud it out of a portion of the value of a 240-acre farm in this county, and an injunction was issued restraining Stewart from attempting to dispose of it.

Put Away the Fishline.

"It will be unhealthy for the man who goes forth after this day with his rod and line to tempt the finny denizens of the deep," said Chief Deputy Game Warden Simpkins this morning. This error was, of course, as much a fraud against me in law, if done innocently and by mistake, as though done purposely and fraudulently. This error, however, was corrected before the certificate of election was issued and Judge Norris received no benefit from this change, which was made by the canvassing board without the intention of harming anybody. It is also due to him to say that he never claimed these fraudulent votes, but always frankly admitted that they should not be given to him, and as a matter of fact they were not given to him, and he received absolutely no benefit therefrom.

Threshing Over Old Straw,

Threshing Over Old Straw.

There were many charges of fraud made both ways in this fight and contest which followed, but there is no doubt but what Judge Norris went through it all in an honorable and upright manner, and that he came out of it without any dishonor or disgrace, and after a fuh investigation of all the charges that were made pro and con, and running them down to the end, I am fully convinced and satisfied that at that election Judge Norris was fairly and honestly elected.

At the expiration of the judge's first term he was renominated and in that election the same charge was made by the democrats against him and the campaign was fought out on that issue alone; the matter was fully discussed by the people and the newspapers of that districe and as a result of much investigation and discussion Judge Norris ran 1,10 votes ahead of his ticket and was re-elected, while the district was carried by an overwhelmingly majority by the fusionists.

For four years Judge Norris practiced law constantly in the district was these

There are understood to be one or two dealers in Lincoln who do not incline toward a fight with the trust, and until they are scorched it may be impossible to line them up. Norris was in poer voice, as he was suffering from a cold, but povertheless he made to the possible for every person in the house to hear every word. He opened his address by stating that so far the campaign had been conducted in a gentlemanly manner and so far as he was concerned he intended to bring it to a close in just the same manner and appear to have sympathy for me on account of my having been, as they charge, fraudulently cheated out of the fire of tools and appear to have sympathy for me on account of my having been, as they charge, fraudulently cheated out of the made to cause the people to believe that position. Yet it would be impossible to suppress the trusts with one thrust without doing great damage to the country. He believed in the hand of the law going out against certain corporations and saying,

"Thus far shalt thou go and no further." Mr. Andrews was late in arriving, but he soon warmed up and talked upon the prinin by giving the amount of receipts and disbursements of the United States under democratic hard times and republican prosperity. If the people want a surplus in the treasury, they must vote the republican ticket; if they want a deficit, they know how to get it, as they had a little experience of that kind. He said that it was a matter of fact that no party in the history of the country ever did so much for this country as did the republican party. Politics is nothing more than public business, and we should all look at it in that manner and everything should be taken up just as a business man takes up his duties. He said there has not been a populist party since the year of 1900, when it was devoured and taken into the Croker-Altgeld-Bryan stomach.

been any difference in the vote whether or not Bryan was at York, as he is generally considered an unsafe prophet and is not the spellbinder he was in 1896 when he lamented William McKinley were elected. The few faithful who attended the meeting asked each other: "What is the paramount issue that Mr. Bryan will have this time?" He hammered at the trusts, and then he touched up the subject of imperialism. On taxation of railroad corporations in the state he claimed all credit for his party in trying to regulate and readjust railroad taxation, and at no time in his speech did he mention Mr. Rosewater's active part and that of The Bee. RED CLOUD, Neb., Oct. 31 -- (Special.)-

W. J. Bryan spoke on the street here yesterday afternoon, but the "rally" must certainly have been disappointing to the fusionists. The crowd did not extend forty feet from the stand facing the speaker, and this scattered gathering was composed largely of republicans and school children, the public schools not being called until 2 o'clock. When Mr. Bryan appeared on the platform not a single cheer was heard. The speech was the same bitter harangue against republicans. During the speech, Mr. Bryan said there were but two great parties-the democratic party and the aristocratic party-and he illustrated with a story. Following this, one of his heretoardent admirers (populist), said: Well, if that's the case. I'm going to vote the aristocratic." The republicans here are feeling jubilant over yesterday's doings and are more confident today than at any time during the campaign that a large majority for the entire republican ticket will be given in this county. The opera house was packed and a large number were standing last night to hear Hon. J. H. Mickey, candidate for governer, and C. W. Norris, republican candidate for congressman, in this district. Both speakers made forceful and logical addresses.

OLD-TIME RALLY AT WYMORE

Attorney General Prout, E. H. Hinshaw and Others Address the Crowd.

WYMORE, Neb., Oct. 31 .- (Special.)-The political meeting held in this city last evening reminded one of the old time presidential rallies. The Blue Valley band played patriotic music and everybody was enthused. Not for several years has so distinguished a number of speakers graced a Wymore platform as was with us last evening. Not only were they greeted by a large audience, but it was an appreciative assembly as well. Superintendent C. W. Corey of the public schools was chairman. The first speaker announced was Hon. L. M. Pemberton, candidate for state senator, who made a few brief remarks regarding the present political situation; Harry Sackett, county attorney, was next. Attorney General F. N. Prout made a fine talk in iefense of republicanism.

The principal speech of the evening was that of Hon. E. H. Hinshaw. He discussed the gold standard, the tariff and the trusts. quoted Bryan and showed that no prophecy he had ever made had been fulfilled. Mr. Hinshaw's speech was strong and convincing from start to finish and awakened great enthusiasm. Messra. Spiers and Ramsey were present, but did not speak.
