Rehearing in Cochran Case. Attorneys for the parties interested have received word that the supreme court has granted a rehearing in the matter of the claim of J. J. Stewart, administrator of the Addison Cochran estate, against the receivers of the Officer & Pusey bank. Administrator Stewart sought to have his claim, which amounts to several thousand dollars, declared a preferred claim against the bank on the grounds that the deposit represented trust funds and not a personal account. Judge Thornell, before whom the hearing was had, ruled against Mr. Stewart, but his decision was reversed by the supreme court at the May term. Now the supreme court has granted a rehearing and the case will again come before that body.

the nation is rendered safe.

This then is the situation of the teacher, that deprived of mere commercial and political rewards he is able with all the more enthusiasm to enter upon his work, seeking those higher compensations which are of the spirit. He is free to give full scope to such visions as are kindred to those of the artist and the poet and the singer of celestial melodies. This constitutes his calling, a high calling, distinguishing it from those callings which have more immediate reference to material things. A high calling, as distinguished from gainful callings, for his gains are not his own. His success means the gain of those he serves, the gain of the community in which his visions find fuifillment, the gain of all mankind.

with such a conception of the rewards and compensation we shall have the teacher, who is not content merely to do what he is hired to do, but who will give himself in devotion to his district or to his ward. I mean by this the teacher who counts his compensation only an incident, and who is teaching in order to do all the good he can. He will not merely try to convince the directors that he is earning his salary, he will try to satisfy his own noblest conceptions of what a good, strong, kindly man ought to be among people where he is looked up to as a teacher. It is only as we conceive that teachers are missionaries sent forth to preach a gospel of noble being and honest thinking that we shall do our best work. Without the necessary spirit we are of all men and women the most foolish. We can do far better for our selfish ends in some other vocation. But when we consider that to us is committed practically the entire fashioning of a generation of men and women we shall have a sense of responsibility without which no one should dare to teach.

Alms of Modern Education.

What modern education is trying to do is to give to the child those experiences in the school that will enable him to deal with all phases of the world when he comes up against it later. Modern education is trying to do is not contain the world when he gots outside he can deal with nature. Now, he may study grammar, spelling and arithmetic sk hours a day for eight years and be practically no more capable of understanding the world of things when he has to deal with it. Of course, he will learn some things in spile of the school we cannot keep him sway from nature altogether. But what the school proposes to do is not to let this thing take place gratuitously but to capit the pupil with perceptions and memories and rousenings reserved in the pupil with perceptions and memories the fire, she became frightened, ran into the yard, and Mr. Herron, seeing her dan-ton the pupil in the school experiences in adjusting himself to his fellows. CLOSING UP WORK OF THE CAMPAIGN

(From a Staff Correspondent) DES MOINES, Oct. 31 .- (Special.) -The Polk county grand jury has indicted Harris Levich and James Walker for the murder of Isaac Finkelstein in August last The exact nature of the additional evidence which was presented to the grand jury is not known, but it is understood that the proof of their connection with the murder is now much stronger than when they had a preliminary hearing some time ago. It was the general impression then that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a trial, but additional evidence has been secured. Finkelstein was an ex-policeman who had been making trouble because of the fact that he was not given a position again under the new administration. He made the accusation that the present city administration was engaged in protecting the gamblers and securing pay therefor. The quarrel had become bitter and was being carried into the newspapers, involving a large number of the city officials and others. One night some one struck Finkelstein over the head with a whiffletree as he was walking home and he was found dead on the sidewalk. Levich was arrested and afterward Walker LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER was taken into custody. It was the the ory of the city officials that the cause of his death grew out of a personal quarrel between Finkelstein and Levich and that the latter employed Walker, a colored man, to assault his enemy, but not with the expectation that Finkeistein would be killed Levich has been out on bail, but Walker has been held in jail. Both have been discreet and have said nothing that would indicate guilt or any knowledge of the case. The murder created a great sensation at the time and threatened to involve the city administration in a great scandal, and for this reason the city officials have been active in ferreting out the culprits The county attorney claims that sufficient evidence has been secured to sustain the theory of the state as to the incidents connected with the murder.

This afternoon Levich declared again his nnocence of connection with the murder of Finkelstein, but said that he knew who to prove it when it becomes necessary. It is expected he will spring a new theory of able to be at his work. the murder when he comes to trial. Levich was not allowed ball and Walker remains in jail.
