

PHILOSOPHY IN POET'S WORK

Rev. Herring Draws a Lesson from Poem by Robert Browning.

QUOTES RABBI BEN EZRA OF OLD ISRAEL

As for "turning earth's smoothness rough," Frencher Glories in the Jostlings that Try the Soul of Man.

It was Robert Browning's philosophy of life, as the poet gave it in the words of Rabbi Ben Ezra of old Israel, that occupied the attention of Rev. H. C. Herring at the First Congregational church yesterday morning.

Rev. Herring is giving his hearers a series of sermons on "philosophy of life," as interpreted by various illustrious men, for he considers that the study of such presentations is profitable and need not be done at the sacrifice of one's own first-hand relationship with Christ, the philosopher of the true philosophy.

Our time are in His hand Who saith, "A whole I planned." Youth shows but half; trust God; see all, nor be afraid.

NO WORKS ENDURE AS GOD'S DO. Rev. Smith of Kansas Makes Some Comparisons for Methodists.

By a comparison of God's infiniteness and man's limitations, Rev. E. C. Smith of Leavenworth, Kan., in the pulpit of the First Methodist church Sunday morning, showed the grandeur of Christian doctrines, and then appealed for a higher character, that the words of Paul, "that ye may adorn the doctrines of your savior in faith," may be fulfilled.

TELLS SOME UNITARIAN HISTORY. Rev. Mann Substitutes a Narrative for a Sermon.

Rev. Newton Mann pleaded guilty to an unpreparedness in the way of a sermon yesterday morning and presented to the congregation of Unity church as a substitute a short sketch of the church's history. He acknowledged difficulties of accomplishing such a task in any definite way, owing to the fact that great names in history—men whose influence was a great way toward working out the idea of the Unitarian church—were not members of that organization.

THESE IS REWARD FOR FREEDOM. Rev. Long Says All Are to Share According to Effort.

At Knox Presbyterian church Sunday morning M. DeWitt Long, D. D., Ph. D., the pastor, preached, taking for his theme "The Sharing of the Reward." He told of the desolation of the city of David, thinking of the preparations for revenge made by the inhabitants; of the third of the party, who overcome by grief and weariness, laid down by the brook Besor, while the more determined 600 pushed on and, overtaking the enemy, meted out punishing punishment, while in the division of the spoil of the enemy the third who rested by the brook received a share.

STARTS CATHEDRAL PROJECT

Bishop Scannell Addresses Circular on Building Proposition to All Churches.

CONSIDERS TIME PROPITIOUS FOR WORK

Successive Seasons of Prosperity Have Favored Parishes in Good Condition and Ready for the Diocesan Enterprise.

Bishop Scannell has put in motion the steps for the construction of a new cathedral for the diocese of Omaha. At each church of the diocese Sunday morning the following letter was read:

Nothing so Good for Coughs and Colds. Mr. J. N. Perkins, druggist of Lawton, Okl., who has been in business eleven years, says of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that during all this time he has never had a bottle of this remedy returned as not having given satisfaction, proving conclusively that this preparation will do all that is claimed for it.

DEATH ENDS A BUSY LIFE

Calls W. B. Hibbard After a Long and Active Career, Principally in the West.

W. B. Hibbard, whose death at Colorado Springs was announced Saturday evening, was one of the pioneer telegraph men of Nebraska. He was born at Rochester, N. Y., and after learning the manipulation of the key became the manager of the Union Railroad Telegraph office at the Union depot at Cleveland, O. He remained at Cleveland until the Fall telegraph line was projected, when, upon the recommendation of Jephth H. Wade of Cleveland, president of the Union Telegraph company, he was sent to Omaha as the assistant of Edward Creighton. As such assistant he was with the company during the construction of the line from Omaha to Salt Lake, and continued as assistant until the absorption of the Pacific Telegraph company by the Western Union Telegraph company. With this change he was made division superintendent of the Western Union and remained in the city for some time, later going to Salt Lake City with the company. From Salt Lake City he went to Mexico, where he was for some time engaged in the construction of telegraph lines, and later went back to Buffalo, N. Y., which was his home until just before his death.

Mr. Hibbard married Miss Mary Lake of Cleveland, O., and their children were born in Omaha. His daughter resides here, being connected with the public schools, and his son, Fred, was for a time employed by the Union Pacific Railroad company, but is not now in the city.

Mr. Hibbard was a man of more than ordinary ability and was a genial companion, being one of the leaders of Omaha society in the pioneer days, and having a host of friends among the older residents of the place.

Announcements of the Theaters. The Boyd tonight, tomorrow night and Tuesday matinee will offer its patrons Al W. Martin's grand spectacular revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." This attraction is claimed as one of the biggest scenic productions the American stage has ever seen, it being necessary to utilize three special cars to transport the scenery and equipment. No such amount of money as Mr. Martin has spent on this production has ever been expended on this neglected and much-abused, but still most successful of American dramas. The company carries thirty head of ponies, horses, burros, donkeys, oxen, tally-ho coaches, traps, log cabin, or cars and numerous novelties, and gives the most elaborate and largest street scene ever attempted by a traveling theatrical company. The matinee Tuesday will be given at 2 o'clock for the benefit of school children. The parade will be given today at noon.

TALKS OF STUDY OF PHYSICS. Nathan Bernstein Gives an Instructive Lecture Before Omaha Philosophical Society.

Before a fairly well attended meeting of the Omaha Philosophical society yesterday Nathan Bernstein of the high school lectured on "Simplicity of Physics." In his discourse the speaker touched briefly on the various departments comprised in the study of physics, such as the nature of the molecule, heat, light, etc., in an attempt to show that any of these might easily be comprehended by the average mind, when presented in the proper manner. In touching on the wireless telegraphy the speaker said: "The principle of this form of ether transmission depends on the fact that an ether chain produced by a certain conductor will cause electric vibrations, which can cause ether waves in any conductor capable of producing waves of the same shape and form. In one sense it is not wireless telegraphy at all, since we simply substitute a conductor of ether for the usual metallic conductor."

He likened the above to sympathetic vibrations in sound. Anyone going into a room where there was a musical instrument could cause that instrument to resound by simply singing in tune with one of its notes. It is not hard to believe, theoretically at least, that the walls of Jericho fell down when the people shouted and the priests blew their trumpets. The above was in no sense an explanation of the Marconi method, simply a comparison of the principle. Mr. Bernstein's remarks were well received and he was invited to address the society again at some future time.

COMMEMORATES GERMAN DAY

South Side Mannerchor Gives Concert and Ball at Turner Hall.

In commemoration of German day the South Side Mannerchor gave a most enjoyable concert and ball last evening at the Bohemian Turner hall on Thirtieth street and a large proportion of the German-American population joined with that society in making the event one to be remembered. German day, which commemorates the first mass immigration of Germans to this country, when in the year 1832 William Penn brought over thirteen families, who settled at Germantown, Pa., falls properly on October 6, but on that date of this year satisfactory arrangements could not be made and the celebration was postponed until this time.

In the course of the musical program Mme. Wagner-Thomas sang twice and each time was most enthusiastically cheered. On her first appearance she received two handsome bouquets of flowers, which were so large that she found some difficulty in carrying them from the stage. The South Side Mannerchor, under the direction of Prof. Peterson, sang several choral selections, and orchestral music was furnished by Steinhilber's orchestra.

The only speaker of the evening was Otto Kinder, who delivered an address in the German language. He spoke first of the event in commemoration of which this entertainment had been given and of the important part taken by the German immigrants in the building up of the United States as a nation. He referred to the prominent participation by Germans in the revolution, mentioning as examples Steuben, DeKalb, Muehlenberg and others, and called attention to the fact that in the civil war 200,000 Germans fought in the United States army. In this connection he mentioned Siegel and Schurz. He also spoke of the participation of the German-Americans in the Spanish-American war.

But it was not only as soldiers, Mr. Kinder said, that the Germans had contributed to the success and power of this country, for in the more peaceable pursuits they had also done their part. He referred to their influence in the promotion of the sciences and the fine arts. "Die Wabash am Abend" by the Mannerchor and the entire evening, and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing.

STARVES FROM LACK OF DRUG. Della Davies Dies When Poverty Makes Morphine No Longer Obtainable.

Della Davies, who was found in her room at 322 South Seventeenth street Saturday afternoon unconscious from the effects of morphine poisoning, died late yesterday afternoon at the county hospital. The woman was discovered by other roomers in the house, who, missing her and hearing her dog growling, broke in the locked door. She was lying on the floor unconscious and the dog was sitting by her side. When the door was opened he made a rush for those who would enter and had to be beaten off. Police Surgeons Hahn and Miek were summoned and succeeded in bringing the woman back to consciousness and then had her taken to the county hospital.

It was thought Mrs. Davies had made an attempt to take her own life, as she had frequently threatened to do, but after regaining consciousness she said that for many years she had been addicted to the use of morphine and cocaine habit, that for the last three days she had been unable to secure any of the drugs because of her poverty and that her illness was due to this. She had remained unconscious all day Saturday.

Very little is known of the woman by the other roomers at the house or her neighbors other than that she had two sisters, one of whom is married and lives in the south part of the city. She lived alone and most of the money she made by taking in washing she spent for morphine. She was 24 years old, and had informed her neighbors that some years ago she had been married and was the mother of a child.

Injury was dressed by the police surgeon.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Creighton-Orpheum.

Robert Fulgora is easily the feature of the bill at the Creighton-Orpheum for the current week. His return to the boards is really an event in vaudeville, for it inspires the patrons of that variety of amusement one act at least that is not only of high grade, but is entertaining as well. His impersonations are not caricatures, but are given with much fidelity and excellent taste, and the dead and gone originals, no matter how fastidious, could hardly find cause for objection. Arthur Balerini has a troupe of trained dogs which will be a delight for the children. They are not confined to the regulation dog acts, but do a number of stunts that are quite new. Clara Balerini does a Spanish dance and a trapeze turn with much grace. Angie Norton sings and talks and excites much mirth by her quips. Will Tege and Anna Daniel do a German dialect stunt that is quite cleverly put together, and O. T. Fiske and Nellie McDonough are good in their sketch, "Blaxy's Romance." Helene Mora sings well, her voice being listed as a baritone. She has a melodious voice, well cultivated and uses it with artistic effect. Some new and funny pictures are shown by the kinodrome.

At the Boyd. George H. Broadhurst's comedy, "The Wrong Mr. Wright," which was presented at two performances at the Boyd theater yesterday, is not new to the Omaha audience, and there is but little to be said at this time in comment upon the play. It is comedy of the farcical sort and presents some amusing situations, some of which are strained and unnatural. The company, which is headed by Harry Beresford in the title part, is good, and of the supporting members particular credit is due Roy Leonard for his character work as Lord Branceford and Miss Emma Dunn, who plays the part of Tilly Hock, the maid who impersonates her mistress.

Blanche Walsh's Success. CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 2.—(Special Telegram.)—The "Daughter of Hamelin," a new play by Stanislaus Stange, had its first metropolitan production here at McVicker's theater this evening, and the event proved a very genuine triumph for the author, for Miss Blanche Walsh, who appeared in the title role, and also for Managers Wagenhals and Kemper, who have made a scenic production such as will rank with "Ben Hur," "L'Aiglon" and other famous dramatic spectacles of recent years. The gorgeousness of the costumes, the realistic atmosphere of the civic and religious pomp of ancient Carthage, reflect in a masterly manner the descriptions contained in Flaubert's novel, "Salambo," upon which the play is founded. In her emotional, and especially in her passionate moods, Blanche Walsh was superb, and her portrayal is certain to bring her more fame than did even her La Tosca or Cleopatra. Charles Dalton as Matho, the barbarian, made a success only second to that of Miss Walsh. The chorus, which appeared in the guise of priests and priestesses of the pagan gods, made a good impression, with music written by Henry K. Hadley. Mr. Hadley's music, which includes an overture and entire act numbers, was indeed one of the several triumphs of the evening. McVicker's theater never held a larger audience and it is doubtful if it ever held one that was so enthusiastic. Applause and curtain calls without number followed each fall of the curtain, and though a little late, the last curtain was applauded and cheered to the echo.

SLIGHT CASE ENABLES POLICEMAN TO TAKE WILLIAM CARMICHAEL FOR BURGLARY. A button torn from a coat was the clue upon which Officer Woodbridge ran down a burglar yesterday and arrested the burglar, William Carmichael, who, after being lodged in jail, confessed. Saturday night Carmichael, a resident of the rooming house of A. Sneather, 1114 Cass street, entered and stole a suit of clothes valued at $28. In climbing over the window a button was torn from the burglar's coat. Sunday morning this was found by Sneather and turned over to Officer Woodbridge, who was detaining the case. After spending several hours hunting for a man with a missing button the officer located Carmichael in Fritz Wirth's beer garden. The stolen clothes were recovered.

TELLS WHAT SOCIALISM IS. Walter Thomas Mills, advertised by the local socialists as "America's greatest orator," was heard last night at the roof garden on "What is Socialism?" Even at an admission price of 10 cents he had the largest audience ever seen in the city. The audience was made up of people thoroughly in sympathy with the speaker of the evening and they accepted him a generous reception. Mr. Mills felt that the socialists, as a party, were greatly misunderstood, and he pointed out the misconceptions.

LABORER STRAINS ANKLE. Charles Kane, employed by a contractor at Omaha, was injured Saturday afternoon while trying to prevent a manhole from caving in. Kane was working near Farnam street on Twelfth when the manhole began to cave in. He saw the dirt falling and jumped to stop it, but in striking the bottom his foot turned and sprained the ankle.
