Barrack Surroundings Happy and Enjoyable. WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 .- The annual report of Major General Henry C. Corbin, adjutant general of the army, shows that during the fiscal year thirty-five officers were killed in action or died of wounds and disease, twenty-one resigned and sixty-eight retired. Of the collisted men, 1,227 were killed or died of wounds and disease; $5,806 were discharged on the expiration of service; 5,498 were discharged for disability or dismissed by order of court-martial; 4,667 deserted, two were missing and

General Corbin calling attention to his former recommendation that the rank and pay of military attachees abroad should be increased, suggesting that retired officers of high rank might be selected for this service. While the number of attachees has decreased the service has improved because of the reciprocal relations that have been established with the War departments of the several government where officers are stationed. He cites the two cases where the military attachee at Paris secured the model of the Lebel rifle and the French saddle from the French gov-

He discusses the various army schools and points out the advantage which will accrue through them.

Praises Maneuver Work. Reviewing the reports of officers who participated in the army and navy maneuvers last September, he says: "The maneuvers have proved the rank and file of our army can be depended upon in every emergency; that apparently impossible tasks can be accomplished under the spur of necessity, and that there is an immeasurable gulf between practice and theory. The lessons learned by both officers and men were of more practical value similar to that introduced by Hungary, by than years of ordinary garrison routine and which it is expected to send Austrian emi-

He recommends legislation providing that Major Generals Merritt, Brooke and Otis, on the retired list, be given the rank of lieutenant general and that Colonels Gilmore and Williston be given the rank of strations. brigadier generals on the retired list.

Discourages Early Marriage. He has the following to say concerning early marriages in the army:

The early marriage of the younger officers of the army, many of whom are entirely dependent upon their pay for support, is greatly to be deplored and should strikers. should be discouraged. A young officer should have but one allegiance-to his country. A considerable number are required for service in the Philippines, where living is expensive, and the accomplishment of this tour of duty results in actual hardship to officers with families."

He says it is important that a number of officers have a perfect knowledge of French, German and Spanish and adds that the detail staff system has worked well and believes that the scheme for a general staff is the best solution for vexatious friction that had been planned.

Dealing with the canteen question, he The restoration of the exchange as it prohibiting the sale of beer, is dowired and men and by none more than those of pronounced temperance views. Numerous reports confirm the views long held by this office that the old exchange contributed to the sobriety, health and contentment of the men. The increase in the number of desertions and of trials for infractions of discipline, is, by those best informed, attributed to the abolition of the former privileges of the exchange. In conclusion, he says:

The instruction of men in vocal music would be a step in the direction of contentment and better discipline. Every regiment should have its marching song. Frequent practice in singing, particularly during the long winter evenings would do much to make the men satisfied to remain in quarters and away from the baneful influences of barrooms that exist too numerously in proximity with our posts. At that trial he testified that he met Molineux near a railway station in Newark on the afternoon the bottle holder was bought. Molineux has testified at the present trial that he could not remember > meeting Farrell that day. Testifying today, Farrell said his remark to Molineux was, "Hello, Rol," and that Molineux's reply to the greeting was, "Hello, Joe."

> On cross-examination witness said it was necessary to go eight or nine blocks out of his way to reach Harrigan's store in traveling between the railroad station and the factory where Molineux was employed. George H. Baker, a clerk to the employ of the Newark postoffice, testified that the Burns letter, the conceded writing of Molineux, was mailed in Newark within a half-mile of Molineux's office. The letter was on the much-described blue paper, and neux's statement that he could not rethe object was to throw doubt on Molithat he had none of that paper at the
