At the meeting of the executive committee of the Commercial club yesterday a decided position was taken upon the matter of the fencing of the public domain in the state of Nebraska. This action was is given that dainty embellishment that all in favor of the cattle men. The secretary had prepared a letter, which was adopted as the action of the club, in which he protested against the recent order for the removal of fences and asked that so far as Nebraska is concerned the order be suspended until such time as some definite action as to the disposal of the of Mme. He said that since the fences have been built every available piece of land is being utilized, while before that time much of it was vacant; that the cattle men are now raising better stock than they did when the cattle were on the open range and that no benefit can come to the government through the removal of the fences, while considerable loss would fall upon the cattle raisers. He advocated the leasing of the land at 2 or 3 cents per sere for a term of five years and said that this course would not interfere with the operation of the irrigation law, as the land to leased cannot be irrigated; that all of the arable land is held by homestead entry or deed from the government and that only the sand hills remain the property of the United States. This letter will be immediately sent to Secretary Hitchcock.
