DONE AND TO DO IN INDIA

Secretary of Lutheran Foreign Board Talks of Missionary Work.

MANY HEAR THE INTERESTING REPORT

Speaker Says Congregation at Kountze Memorial is the Largest He Has Addressed Since Leaving Baltimore.

In place of the customary morning sermon at Kountze Memorial church was substituted an address by Rev. Marion J. Cline, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Lutheran church, who spoke particularly of mission work in India.

In entering upon his discourse the speaker expressed his gratification at being afforded an opportunity to address this congregation, which, he said, was the largest he had seen since leaving his home in Baltimore. He said there was a great deal he would like to say, but on this occasion he would confine himself to the subject of the work in India, trusting to be enabled at some future time to talk to this same congregation on African missions.

The great object of missionary work, the speaker said, was to offer Christianity to the last man in the uttermost parts of the earth, and the spirit of this work was expressed in the words of the Saviour to the fishermen of Galilee: "Come, follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men." One great duty of a Christian disciple, Rev. Cline said, was to become also an apostle and aid in the work to disciple the nations of the world.

Progress of the Work.

The missionary work of the Lutheran church was begun many years ago, the speaker continued, but the first American Lutheran mission was established in India at Madras in 1842. In 1900 there were 20,487 baptized converts of the church and in 1901, 24,800, an increase for that one year greater than in the thirty-five years preceding. The policy of the Lutheran church in India, he said, had been one of aggressiveness and activity, and to that he attributed this success. He particularly emphasized the point that only the best of missionaries should be sent to the East Indian field, for the reason that there Christianity must combat conditions not easy to overcome. Centuries of heathenism and generation after generation of highly philosophic culture had made the people of India difficult material to deal with, and only the ablest Christians should be sent to that country to cope with the Hindoo philosophers.

An Immediate Need.

By those who had studied the situation, however, it had been said that there were 50,000 of the people of India who were sitting on the outskirts of Hindooism, whose old chains had been broken and who were ready to give up the worship of idols, but had not become Christians. If these people are not given aggressive Christianity, he said, they will become atheists.

Beside the strictly evangelical branch of the work he also spoke of the educational and medical phases of missionary effort among the people of India. The Lutheran church, he said, was born in a university and its father was a university professor, and it possessed the best educational advantages of any of the churches. In its missionary work the schoolhouse and the college were to be found side by side with God's temple and one of the features of the curriculum in its schools was the teaching of God's word. There were, he said, at the present time 4,000 or more heathen students in India who were receiving instruction in the Bible.

Some of the Obstacles.

The speaker referred to the barrier of caste as one of the great obstacles to the Christianizing of the people of India, since entrance into the Christian church meant to a Brahmin the severance of all family and social ties. But in spite of this gratifying progress had been made.

The medical branch of missionary work he spoke of as essential and important, and the medicine case, he said, had been found to be one of the keys to unlock the doors of heathenism. In this connection he dwelt upon the usefulness of the women missionaries, by reason of the fact that the social rules in India were so stringent that a woman would be permitted to die rather than that she should be attended by a male physician. As an example of the excellent work of the women in this field he said that in South India there was a hospital which cost $50,000 and which was erected by the women. In the English government reports this hospital was commended as the best in South India.

HIS PHYSICAL LIFE A PARALLEL.

Evangelist Cairns Draws on Christ for Another Spiritual Illustration.

The birth, growth, death, burial and resurrection of the physical Jesus furnished Evangelist George Robert Cairns of Philadelphia with a parallel for the birth, growth, crucifixion and resurrection of the spiritual existence of the present-day follower, in the sermon delivered at Calvary Baptist church Sunday morning. "Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example that ye should follow," from the gospel of Peter; and "Because as He is, so are ye in this world," from the gospel of John, were the text.

Of the feature of birth, the evangelist said: "There is no such thing as growth in God until there is a birth in God. There is no such thing as sonship without regeneration. Regeneration is the foundation of all superstructure in character building. The permanency of character depends upon the foundation thereof. No matter how conscientious a builder may be, if the foundation be faulty the structure will fall upon him. If a man build his character upon any other foundation than Jesus he is building upon a rotten foundation, I care not how honest, conscientious and perfect he may be."

Of growth he said: "There are too many Tom Thumbs in the church; too many dwarfs who early ceased to grow. The biggest end of the church is the nursery, where thin-skinned babies have to be rocked by the pastor to keep them in good humor. They are no good. Christians should grow great and strong. Each should have hide tough as that of a rhinoceros. Real Christianity has lost none of its heroism. Twenty thousand Chinese converts were beheaded rather than spit upon the cross drawn in the sand. There is no place for idlers in the economy of God. The Christian life is a strenuous life. The spirit that dominates the commercial world should dominate the church. The church will never, in my estimation, have fulfilled its mission until every brother is so united with every other brother that one cannot fail without all feeling the consequence."

Of the burial and reclamation he said: "The admonition is to 'make Christians and then baptize them;' not to baptize men and then make Christians. You might be baptized once each day for the rest of your natural life and still not go to heaven. Baptism has not the faintest connection with salvation, but is merely expression of desire to be a witness to the burial and resurrection of Christ."

Mr. Collins will speak at Calvary church again tonight, taking the suggestive topic of "Omaha Hypocrites."

REV. REYNOLD BEGINS PASTORATE.

Delivers Inaugural Sermon at Castellar Street Presbyterian Church.

Rev. W. H. Reynold, recently selected pastor of the Castellar Street Presbyterian church, delivered his inaugural sermon as pastor of the church Sunday morning and was greeted by a large congregation.

His discourse was on Paul's words that Christ came into the world to save sinners and his advice to Timothy upon the latter's entrance into the ministry. The advice laid down in the long ago for the guidance of ministers and preachers, Rev. Reynolds stated, was applicable today. This was to avoid superficial preaching or teachings that do not edify; talk not of endless genealogy, for it creates human strife. Instead preach that Christ came into the world to save sinners. That includes every substance of Christian belief.

"It is an old adage," said he, "that has been proven time and again and it is the substance of the thoughts of those who have been the holiest of Christ's teachers. It has been proven that it is worthy of acceptance. It shows the greatness of the work of Christ; it is an important work, because it deals with everybody. Some accept this teaching as they would a gift, as a curiosity, but it should be accepted in a sense of appropriation."

In conclusion Rev. Reynold requested the co-operation of the church members in furthering the interest of the church and of Christianity. After the discourse an informal reception was held at the church and the members were presented to him. Rev. Reynold came to Omaha from Marion, Ia. Mrs. Reynold and son arrived Sunday morning and the family has gone to housekeeping at 2615 South Fifteenth street.

HARD ON NEGRO REGIMENTS

Order for Reduction of Numerical Strength Sacrifices Good Soldiers Reluctant to Retire.

Within the next week there will be more men discharged from the army of the United States stationed in the Department of the Missouri than ever before have been discharged from the regular army in this department in the same length of time. Two regiments will be affected by these discharges, the Tenth cavalry and the Twenty-fifth infantry, the latter organization losing more than the former.

The discharges are the result of the order from the War department reducing the total number of enlisted men in all branches of the service to 59,886, including staff departments, etc. The regiments from which the discharges will be made are composed of negroes. At the time the order was issued reducing the companies of infantry and cavalry to sixty-five enlisted men the white regiments were not full and the discharges from them have not been marked, the men dropping out generally as their terms of enlistment expired. With the colored regiments it was different. As there are only four regiments in the service in which negroes can enlist there are always more men willing to join than can be used, so the army gets the pick of those who volunteer. After a man has become connected with these regiments he must conduct himself in an excellent manner or he will be dropped. The result is that the men enlisted in the colored regiments do not want to leave the service, and where the white regiments were reduced by expiration of terms the colored regiments had to be reduced by enforced discharges. Company commanders were asked to report to regimental commanders the names of those enlisted men who should be discharged. For the purpose of reduction the men to be discharged were divided into three classes, those to be discharged for the good of the service, those unfitted for the service and those whose services were no longer required. In the first class were those whose conduct was not what it should be, yet had not been guilty of offenses which would cause their discharge by court martial; in the second class are men who are physically or mentally unsuited for the work, and in the last class are those who were willing to accept discharges. The first and second classes were exhausted before the third class was approached, and where, from the first and second classes the discharges would reduce the company to the minimum strength, there were none whose services were not needed. This action on the part of company and regimental commanders has resulted in the discharge of a total of 449 men from the two regiments mentioned. At Fort Reno about 138 men of the Twenty-fifth infantry will be discharged, and from the same organization 238 will be discharged at Fort Niobrara. Of the Tenth cavalry thirty-five men will be discharged at Fort Sill and thirty-eight at Fort Robinson.

The payment of these discharged men is under the control of Major Muhlenburg, chief paymaster of the department. As Captain Lynch has been ordered temporarily to the Department of the Dakota, Major Canby has been ordered from St. Louis to pay these men at the posts.

Announcements.

The artists who will assist Mr. Eugene Cowles in his concert at the Kountze Memorial church next Saturday evening are Signora Gina Ciaparelli, a distinguished prima donna from Rome; Clara Farrington, violin virtuoso, a former child prodigy, and Mr. Walter Fych, the distinguished London accompanist. This company is having tremendous success throughout the country.

DINNER OF HARVARD CLUB

It Will Occur at the Omaha Club Next Saturday Evening.

Notices of a dinner of the Harvard club to be held at the Omaha club next Saturday evening have been sent to twenty-five or more of the alumni of the university who are residents of this city and members of the local organization, and it is expected that of that number more than one-half will be able to attend. There is no club business of special importance which demands attention, but it is expected that occasion will be taken at this time to select one or more of the members to represent the club at the meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs which will take place this year at Cincinnati, early in December.

The last gathering of the Omaha Harvard club was in January, 1901, there having been no club dinner last year.

At the dinner of next Saturday evening J. H. McIntosh, president of the club, will preside, and while there is no set program of toasts, it is expected that all of those who are present will have something to say extemporaneously.

ILLEGAL VOTING APPARENT

Plaintiff in Damage Suit Against City Falls Into Trap.

GIVES TESTIMONY AGAINST HIMSELF

Swears that He Lived in Third Ward, Whereas Record Shows that He Voted in the Sixth Ward.

There is now on trial before Judge Slabaugh and a jury in district court a case in the collection of evidence for which and during the examination of the plaintiff in which City Attorney W. J. Connell has encountered what impresses him as a very clear case of illegal registration and voting and one which would be less difficult for the county attorney to get action on than those manipulated and accomplished under the direct supervision and direction of the corporate machine.

The suit is that of Harry Crocker against the city for $5,000 because of injuries alleged to have been sustained June 21, 1901, when a loaded wagon on which Crocker was seated "chucked" into a hole in the paving on North Sixteenth street and caused him to be thrown off, run over and the tendons of his right groin ruptured, with the result that he spent nineteen days in a hospital. The defense alleges that he got under the wagon's wheel through his own carelessness.

"The apparent illegal registration was disclosed," said Mr. Connell, "when the legal department sought to prepare its defense in this suit. Under my direction Judge Cockrell of this department has endeavored to find Crocker for the past year (his summons on us was served in July, 1901), to have an examination made of his pretended injuries. Neither Cockrell nor I could ascertain anything concerning Crocker's whereabouts except that he was living in Randolph, Ia. I was therefore very much surprised when I chanced to note his name on the registration books of the Sixth ward of Omaha and learned that he had not only registered there, but voted there at the recent election. I knew that he was in the city only for the purpose of attending the trial of his suit against the city and was stopping temporarily at the Thurston hotel. I thereupon caused further investigation and ascertained that he had registered at the hotel a few days before the last registration day as from Randolph, Ia., but had subsequently secured the hotel register and with a knife had scratched off the name Randolph and written over the place the word Omaha. The hotel's clerk informed Judge Cockrell that he saw Crocker do this and the marks on the books are still readable.

Voted in Sixth Ward.

"But the registration books showed that he had voted in the Sixth ward, whereas the Thurston is many blocks away, in the Third ward. Becoming interested we investigated further and ascertained that he claimed to have made his home at 946 North Twenty-fourth. Since then I have secured affidavits in denial of this, so that even if he were a resident of the city, which he is not, he was guilty of false registration in that he voted in a ward where he had not lived at all and where he presented no affidavit of removal. His action in changing the hotel records indicates very clarly that he realized he was getting on dangerous ground, notwithstanding the fact that his counsel, I. R. Andrews, a strong Mercer follower and antagonistic to the city administration, now tries to make light of it and keep it out of the records as having no bearing on the present case.

"In examining the witness I sought only to find out where he had been and if Omaha really is his home. It is not my purpose to take any action with regard to criminal proceedings, for it is no part of my duties to prosecute in cases of this nature. That is a matter resting entirely with the county attorney. I am advised by Judge Cockrell, however, that Deputy County Attorney Dunn has heard of the nature of the testimony and evidence in the damage suit, and has asked for the records for the purpose of investigating the case and considering what action if any should be taken against Crocker."

Connell Sets the Trap.

The attempt of Attorney Connell to get Crocker to state his place of residence was made in the course of the cross-examination of the witness Friday and resulted in these questions and answers:

Question—Where are you stopping? Answer—At the present stopping at the Thurston hotel.

Q.—How long have you been stopping there? A.—Right after election; the next day after election. I held forth there three days before election. I took a room there and I was away about seven days, something similar to that, and been stopping since that time. I have been out of town.

Q.—Are you stopping there premanently or temporarily? A.—Temporarily.

Q.—Have you been during the present year stopping there any time permanently or temporarily? A.—I have been stopping there at the Thurston hotel off and on since John M. Bail stopped housekeeping the latter part of July.

Q.—And you have not been living with him since last July? A.—He stopped housekeeping, as I said.

Q.—Answer my question. You have not been living with him since last July? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Then, if I understand you correctly, at such times as you may have been in Omaha during the year 1902 you have stopped at the Thurston hotel? Is that correct? A.—Yes, a part of the time. Not all the time while I have been in Omaha.

Q.—Have you stopped or made your residence at any time during the year 1902 at any place other than the Thurston hotel? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Where? A.—North Twenty-fourth street.

Q.—Who were you with when at North Twenty-fourth street? A.—Mrs. Borin.

Q.—A daughter of John Bail? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What number on North Twenty-fourth street? A.—946.

Q.—When did you stop there during the year 1902? A.—Off and on, along, ever since Mr. Bail left there. I would go up and take my meals if she did not have a room for me. I would be in town a day or two, principally Friday and Saturday, and I would come in and stay over Sunday.

Q.—When, if at all, did you stay there one night in the year 1902? A.—I told you I took my meals there.

Q.—I am not asking where you took your meals. I am asking when during 1902 you staid one night at the place that you refer to on North Twenty-fourth, viz.: at the daughter of Mr. Bail's. A.—I made the explanation that I did not stay a night with Mrs. Borin. Although she did not have rooms, I took my meals at her place.

Q.—Then it is true, is it not, that during 1902 you have not at any time staid a single night at the place on North Twenty-fourth street? A.—Yes, I told you.

Q.—What is the number on North Twenty-fourth street to which you understand these questions and answers relate? A.—946 North Twenty-fourth street.

Women Contradict Crocker.

In direct contradiction of this is the affidavit of the Mrs. Borin referred to, who states that she has resided at 946 North Twenty-fourth street since October, 1901, and who further swears that "she personally knows Harry Crocker, who has brought suit against the city of Omaha for alleged personal injuries, and knows positively that said Harry Crocker has never roomed or lived at said No. 946 North Twenty-fourth street since this affiant resided there; that prior to the death of affiant's mother, about Christmas time, 1901, the said Crocker called at said house and said in substance that he had come to spend Christmas; whereupon affiant's mother told him she did not care to have him there, and he did not remain to eat a single meal, and did not room there or sleep there, or have any things there, and never has since such time."

Other parts of the affidavit read:

"Affiant further says that she knows from statements made by said Crocker that he has been absent from Omaha and has resided in Randolph, Ia., and that said Crocker told this affiant that he was buying grain and conducting a real estate business at said Randolph."

Another affidavit is by Nettie Meek, who occupies the other half of the double house at 946 North Twenty-fourth street, and who says she "knows Harry Crocker by sight, but is not specially acquainted with him; that she knows that said Harry Crocker has not lived or roomed at No. 946 North Twenty-fourth street since affiant has resided there; that affiant commenced to reside at said place since early in August, at which time she and her family moved into said house, the same having then been vacated by John H. Ball and his two daughters, who had been residing there."

"When he voted Crocker swore that he had been a resident in the state, county and voting precinct one year and that he then lived at 946 North Twenty-fourth street. He seems to me a good one for the county attorney to make an example of as a warning to future offenders," said Attorney Connell. "The law provides penalty of not less than one year nor more than five for willful violator of the election and registration laws."

STERILIZED BARBER SHOP.

A Famous Shop in the Carrolltown Hotel, Baltimore, Maryland.

The barber shop in the Carrollton hotel, Baltimore, sterilizes everything it uses in the shop. The sterilizing is done by heat. The towels, the razors, the strops, the soap, the combs and brushes are all sterilized before being used on a customer. Where there is no sterilization, have the barber use Newbro's Herpicide. It kills the dandruff germ, and it is an antiseptic for the scalp, and for the face after shaving. All leading barbers everywhere appreciate these potent facts about Herpicide and they use it. ATTEMPTS TO CRIPPLE UNION

Street Railway Company Makes Fight on Organization, So Say the Men.

The rumor of trouble between the Street Railway company and its employes is denied by officers of the union, who say that from a trade standpoint they have no cause for complaint, but they do object, not to the extent of striking, however, to the plan which the company has adopted to cripple the union. Said one of the officers:

"There is no doubt that the company has determined to kill the union. Every man who now secures a position with the company must sign an agreement not to join the union—must sign away his rights as a man before he can obtain employment. The company has sent men around asking the members of the union if they will drop out of the organization if every other member will. As no man desires to be the only member of a union each will reply that he will be the last man to drop out. Just what this means we do not know and we care little, for there is to be no general dropping away from the organization.

"At the time we organized the general foreman told us that there were in the employ of the company about 380 men. We have a few more than 200 upon the rolls of the union paying dues, which would give us a majority of the men employed at the time we organized. Perhaps we have not got a majority of the men employed at this time, as the company has increased its force until it now numbers more than 400. When we first organized it was principally the extra men and those on short shifts who joined the union, but since that time a number of the older employes have joined, but not all of them. Of the new men we have practically none, as they were forced to pledge themselves to keep out of the union before they could go to work. We do not believe that such a pledge is binding either in morals or in law, but it has its effect upon the men, and the company probably would consider its nonobservance as cause for discharge. When we get around to it we may bring up this matter of discrimination against the union and make a protest to the company, but we are not going to do it at this time."

MAKES VERY HANDSOME STORE

Improvements at Building Occupied by Browning, King & Co. Are Completed.

Browning, King & Co. have completed the improvements in their store which have been in progress for some time. The change related particularly to the show windows and front, which have been brought to a high state of efficiency. The front is now of marble below the windows and the glass has been lowered several inches. The display space in the windows has been remodeled and finished in oak, making one of the most effective display places in the city.

In the interior the show cases have been changed to a considerable extent in order to give more publicity to stocks on hand and the harmonious arrangement has brought out much favorable comment.

GAS VICTIM UNIDENTIFIED

Coroner Doesn't Know if Dead Man is John Flynn or Another.

BODY IS FOUND IN WALENZ HOTEL BED

Proprietor Can Give No Information Except that He Suffered Great Waste of Gas—Description of the Stranger.

An unidentified man was asphyxiated in his room at the Walenz hotel, 1318 Leavenworth street, Saturday night, and his body was discovered at 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

It is possible the man was John Flynn, as this name was found written with a lead pencil upon a part of an envelope in his pocket. There was nothing else in his effects by which the name of the man, nor where he came from, could be learned. It is thought he either blew out the gas or turned it on accidentally after turning it off, as he went to bed sober and had stated that he was going out into the country early Sunday morning. He did not register when assigned to a room. The gas which escaped from the room occupied by the stranger attracted the attention of M. Walenz, proprietor of the rooming house. The latter notified the police and then waited until Officer Wooldridge and Police Surgeon Mick arrived before unlocking the door to the room.

With the Jet Wide Open.

When the officers arrived and the door was unlocked they found the gas jet turned on full and the stranger lying dead in the bed, his face buried in the pillow. He had on his night clothes and his other garments were hanging on the back of a chair near the bed. The body was at once removed to the morgue and Coroner Brailey will hold an inquest at 10 o'clock this morning.

Walenz, the proprietor, could throw no light on the identity of the dead man, but he was very wroth at the loss of so much gas. To the police he complained that the stranger had paid him 50 cents for the room and had used fully $2 worth of gas.

The stranger went to the hotel late Saturday evening and engaged a room for the night. About 12 o'clock he retired. To the police the proprietor of the place said he explained to the stranger how to turn off the gas. The man desired to leave early Sunday morning and said he was going into the country, where he had been shucking corn. He came to the hotel on a bicycle. At the hotel they keep no register and the stranger had not been asked his name.

His Appearance and Dress.

The dead man was apparently 33 years old and was a laboring man. He had dark hair, a four days' growth of beard and a short, stubby, dark mustache. He was five feet eight or nine inches in height and weighed about 175 pounds.

He wore dark blue overalls, a blue jumper, brown check vest and a blue black serge coat. In the pockets of the clothing the coroner found a portion of the back of an envelope with the name John Flynn scribbled on it with a lead pencil, $11.50 and a husking peg.
