Fine Table Damask Loom Ends. Tomorrow we place on sale one big lot of loom ends of fine imported Scotch, German and Irish table damasks. These are loom ends and warehouse samples. They are used in the old country for the purpose of taking orders. They are bleached and unbleached and positively the best damasks manufactured. They come in lengths from 2 to 3 1/2 yards. They would be called, in this country, drummers' samples, over in Europe they are called warehouse samples. There are many very decided damask novelties in this lot. About four years ago we had just such a lot of table damasks and ever since then thousands of people have asked us, "when are you going to have another lot of those sample pieces of fine damask?" It was one of the biggest sales that we ever had. This is a bigger lot and finer goods and Monday at our line-counter there will be the biggest sale of damask samples and loom ends that ever took place in the west. The goods are in most instances at about half their regular price.

Sale of Cut Glass Monday. Bowling Green, Ohio, rich cut glass will go tomorrow at the very lowest figures. We buy this glass directly from the cutters. You have no middleman's profit to pay for. New Winter Millinery SOUTH AMERICAN MINK HATS. We have just received from one of the high class designers twenty-nine dozen of selected South American mink turbans, French sailors, shepherdesses and side effects. These hats are very popular in New York and Chicago where furs of several kinds as winter millinery reign supreme. Some of the hats have the mink on the under part and top of the brims, while others have the fur on the underbrims and crown. It requires very little effort and taste on the part of any woman to dethrone any velvet, silk or other materials in combination with roses, foliage, fruits, wild berries, grapes or a pompon to produce a splendid piece of high class millinery through the use of one of these hats. The same hats are being sold at these figures in millinery stores generally—our price 2.49-3.49. Grapes With Velvet Foliage at 63c Bunch THE LATEST NOVELTY. Handsome clusters of natural color of ripened grapes with silk velvet foliage, in pink, light blue, cardinal, green, black, wine and other shades. Grapes are used very largely for trimming the smart winter hats and toques and the price we make is exceptionally low for fine goods. The right price is $1.00—our price, per bunch 63c.
