STATE OWES TWO MILLIONS

State Auditor Compiles Statement of Indebtedness of Nebraska.

LESS THAN HALF MILLION IN TREASURY

Union Pacific Penalty and Howell Lumber Company Cases Argued in Supreme Court—Arrests for Train Robbing.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Dec. 2.—(Special.)—The biennial report of State Auditor Weston throws some light upon the mooted question of the indebtedness of the state, concerning which conflicting estimates have been made. As tabulated in Auditor Weston's report the various items of the state's indebtedness, as shown by warrants outstanding December 1, are as follows:

General fund	$1,928,253.83
University cash fund	4,286.83
State library fund	14.99
Normal interest fund	43
Hospital for insane fund	2.80
Agriculture and mechanics' arts fund	235.13
United States Agricultural Experiment station fund	366.47
Penitentiary fund	491.07
Temporary school fund	8,707.85
Temporary university fund	1,280.42
Total	$2,066,991.15

None of the above indebtedness draws interest except the general fund warrants. Treasurer Files Report.

The monthly report of State Treasurer Steuffer, filed with the auditor today, shows a balance on hand of $432,255.35 at the beginning of business Monday, as against $512,561.20 on hand November 1. The receipts during the month were $127,077, while the disbursements were $315,374.10.

Argue Union Pacific Case.

The suit of the state against the Union Pacific Railroad company, involving some $625,000 of penalties alleged by the state to be due under the maximum rate law for alleged overcharges, was argued today in the supreme court and submitted on a motion for judgment on the report of the court. The case is an entirely new one, with other of a similar character, against other roads, by C. J. Smyth while he was attorney general. When the case was submitted to referees by the supreme court they found against the state on the ground that the law providing penalties was unconstitutional by the supreme court decision declaring unconstitutional the law creating the State Board of Transportation. Attorney General Proctor has filed objections to the findings of the referees, and it was upon these objections that the matter was argued today. This is the case in which the Union Pacific is reported to have expended $40,000 for testimony provided by an expert examination of its books.

Howell Case Up in Court.

Considerable interest was manifested among attorneys in the argument in the supreme court today of the case of Grodzinski against the First National bank of Chicago, involving the former Omaha possessions of the S. R. Howell Lumber company of Chicago, which failed in 1891. The evidence shows that in 1874 Spooner R. Howell, then a young man, borrowed $5,000 at his home in Bavaria, Ill., and went to Chicago to embark in the lumber business. He seems to have gained the confidence of Lyman J. Gage of the First National bank of Chicago, who backed him in his business, and the lumber business established by Howell prospered until it had yards in many western cities and did an immense business. In 1891 experts ascertained that the company was on the verge of bankruptcy and immediately thereafter made an assignment to the Chicago bank, which included the property of the company in Omaha. The suit argued today is brought by Nebraska creditors of the Omaha property on the claim that the Chicago bank has already collected under the assignment some $40,000 of the property of the company owed it when it failed. The Omaha property involved is said to be worth about $50,000. Senator Allison was one of the attorneys appearing in behalf of Mr. Gage's bank.

Think They Are Robbers.

Detective Malone and Chief Hoagland are very sanguine that the men arrested last evening they have three of the four men who robbed the Burlington train here some weeks ago. The men answer the description of the robbers as given by the train crew, but whether the police will be able to fix the crime upon them is another matter.

That they are professionals seems evident. They shut up like clams the minute they were taken into custody. They not only declined to give their names, but refused to give any information as to their recent movements. One of the men, however, said he will not say anything further than that he has a good thing of it and is hot on it.

VENEZUELA TO HAVE CHANGE

Germany Not Disposed to Force Immediate Payment of Claims

DEBT IS ABOUT TWO MILLION DOLLARS

Bonds May Be Issued at a Moderately High Rate of Interest Secured by Certain Customs of the Country.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—The published statement that Germany's claims against Venezuela amount to $15,000,000 is, the correspondent of the Associated Press is officially informed, incorrect.

While the German government is not yet ready to publish the details of its demands, persons who have seen the papers say the total is about $2,000,000.

President Castro represents to Germany that Venezuela has little credit abroad, that the country is just emerging from a civil war during which planting and industry were partially ruined, and, therefore, no matter how much Venezuela may desire to satisfy immediately the claims against her, it is obviously impossible. Hence an agreement on the subject must provide for deferred payments.

The seizure of the customs houses, thereby depriving the government of an important means to administer the country, would add to the internal distress and disorder.

While President Castro's proposals are not disclosed there is reason to believe that they include the issue of bonds at a moderately high rate of interest, with some sort of a guarantee that if the interest is defaulted certain Venezuelan customs may be taken over by Germany.

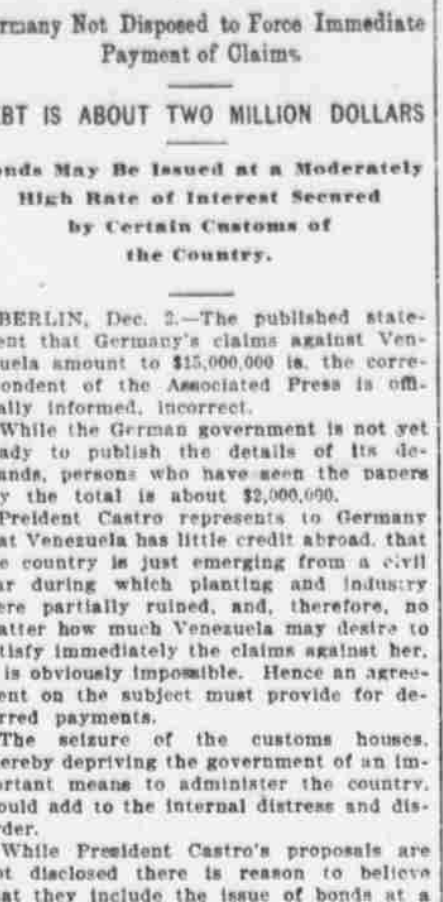

Nothing is known here of the plans of Isaac N. Seligman of New York, for floating a Venezuelan loan. He has not approached this government in the matter.

There is no disposition to proceed against Venezuela if valid methods will suffice to cause action, but the German government is fully committed to obtain ample satisfaction.

The claimants are constantly urging the government to press the collection of the sums involved, but, it is represented, in view of the fact that the long delay has rendered the position of Germans in Venezuela more and more vexatious. Therefore, it is claimed that the government must strike and strike hard in order to properly protect its interests.

ARCHBISHOP KEANE IS HERE

Expresses Hopes That Omaha Will Soon Be Archdiocesan See.

WANTS TO CONFER PALLIUM ON SCANNELL

Archbishop Keane Says Fourth Diocese in Iowa Will Soon Be Created, with Its Seat at City of Des Moines.

"The next time I come to Omaha I hope it will be to confer the pallium upon Bishop Scannell when Omaha is made an archdiocesan see," said Archbishop Keane, metropolitan of the province of Dubuque, yesterday morning at the residence of Bishop Scannell.

Archbishop Keane is spending a few days in the city as the guest of the bishop of Omaha, this being his first visit to this diocese since he became archbishop of this province. To a reporter he said:

"My visit has nothing of an official nature in it. Bishop Scannell had invited me to visit him, and finding a few days in which I could take a little vacation I decided to spend it in this city. I have been here once before, when I was rector of the Catholic university, and was very favorably impressed with the city. At that time I believed that it would only be a question of time when Omaha would be the seat of an archdiocesan see, and I am of the same opinion still. As Dubuque is the seat of a province west of the Mississippi river in a growing, progressive country, I expect to see the day when Omaha will be a similar seat west of the Missouri river. You may be assured that, far from being jealous of the advancement of this city, I will do all I can to bring it about, and I hope to see it accomplished in a short time."

Discussing affairs of the province, he said: "We have divided the see of Dubuque by creating the see of Sioux City, and it is only a question of time when there will be four dioceses in Iowa, the seat of the one to be created being at Des Moines. When this will be done we cannot say. The bishop of Sioux City will be in Omaha today, and we will spend the time visiting and meeting some of the clergy and laity of the diocese. We are very well pleased to know that there is no occasion for the solution of any problems at this time, and that everything is moving smoothly and well."

To Entertain the Archbishop.

Last evening Bishop Scannell gave a dinner in honor of the archbishop, to which were invited a number of the clergy of the diocese. Wednesday evening there will be given a banquet in his honor at the Omaha club, at which will be about fifty of the prominent citizens of Omaha. The parties having the banquet in charge have had no time to prepare a program of toasts, but there will be remarks by a number of the guests, including the guest of honor.

Wednesday afternoon the ladies of the Sacred Heart of Park Place will tender a reception to the archbishop, and he will be asked to celebrate mass at the chapel of the convent Wednesday morning.

Most Reverend John James Keane, archbishop of Dubuque, is a native of Ballyshannon, County Donegal, Ireland. He was ordained priest at Baltimore in 1866 and consecrated bishop in 1878 at the same city. He became rector of the Catholic university at Washington in 1888, which position he held until 1896, when he went to Rome and was created titular archbishop of Damascus. He was made assistant at the pontifical throne, canon of the Lateran and consultant of the propaganda. He became archbishop of Dubuque July 24, 1900.

During the first term's work the child is taught some eighty words by sight. These are used in sentences written on the board by the teacher, and they comprise the full vocabulary of the first term.

Also during this term, and at a period quite distinct from the sight-reading lesson, the pupils are taught to tell how these words are used in the daily drill would occupy too much space. Drop into your neighborhood mechanic some of these words, and see for yourself. The lachrymators of sound is called blending.

In time the children come to see that words are formed by the combination of sounds, and these daily drills are given in unting sounds to form words. This union of sounds is called blending.

After some ten weeks of sight reading and the formation of words by the combination of sounds, the transition from the script of the teacher to the print of the book is very easily made. In the first of the primer, the use of phonetic reading, and the three readers that follow this contain many phonetic words with their distinctive markings.

A book and a set of phonograms are provided for each of the first three terms. At

TEACHERS ARE POORLY PAID

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Dec. 2.—(Special.)—The teachers of the various school districts of the county outside of the city, at a meeting in which the matter of salaries paid for their services was discussed, decided to postpone action to a joint meeting to be held in this city on December 13 between the teachers and the boards of directors of the different districts. It is reported that the matter of salaries is very sadly underpaid, comparing the necessary qualifications with those in other employments, and it was suggested at the meeting that this was not only the case here, but all over the state, and that the action of the matter should be carried by every school district in the state.

At the end of this time practically all the sounds of our language have been taught, and the child is able to read with ease and accuracy. The books are well graded and there is a good retention of sight and phonetic words that gives the child a thorough practice in the use of that which he is expected to prepare his sentence before he gives it aloud. It is seldom hurried, and the child is given the privilege of asking for any word he does not know. Thus he is able to use what he does know and is helped to acquire the words he does not know to gain. If he is a phonetic word, or to remember it, he is given a list of words to read, and the slow or nervous child is given the privilege of asking for any word he does not know. Thanks to the woman's auxiliary of the American Park and Out-of-Door Art association, five Chicago school yards are to be made beautiful with trees, shrubbery and flowers, and an effort is being made to extend this work to all of the towns of Illinois. Already 200 trees, vines and shrubs have been planted and 5,000 spring flower bulbs are now being distributed among the different schools.

With the general observance of Arbor day in the Omaha schools and the interest of the teachers and pupils in beautifying the school yards, Omaha has come, within the last two years, to have an enviable reputation for its accomplishment in this line, and at a recent general civic improvement workers, held in Chicago, Omaha's system was referred to as an admirable plan for the advancement of and stimulating general interest in the work of city improvement.
