SHIFTS THE GARMENT IN A STREET CAR

Finds Baby's Little Legs and Feet Wholly Bare and Blue from Cold-Other Passengers Applaud the Act.

With more than one dozen astonished but admiring passengers looking on, a soclety woman, as prominent as any in and doliberately relieved herself of a silken petticoat and wrapped it about the shivering form of an infant 2 years old. It was the mantle of charity in new guise.

The woman was Mrs. Harry Cartan of 3806 Burt street, formerly Miss Sadle Nash. daughter of E. W. Nash, millionaire secretary and treasurer of the Omaha & Grant Smelting company. Mrs. Cartan is of the smart set, but conventionalities are brushed aside as straws when the emergency seems to justify-and emergencies appear to justify rather oftener with Mrs. Cartan than with most women. Friends who have been her friends since girlhood days declare the act of yesterday surprised them not at all

"She has always been as great-hearted as she was impulsive," said one, "and she dared do anything that seemed the shortest means to a desired end. She has her own carriages, but uses street cars with considerable frequency for no other reason apparently, than that she prefers to keep in touch with those who are beyoud her own circle."

On Walnut Hill Car,

The incident of the child and the petticoat occurred on a Walnut Hill car on the downtown trip and is reported to The Bee by an elderly gentleman who was among the eye witnesses and who gloried in the woman's sympathy and courage.

"You know how cold those cars are this winter," he said, "and how little warmer one feels inside them than outside. When Mrs. Cartan climbed aboard at Thirtyeighth and Cuming streets she very soon noticed what I had been watching in stupid amazement for some time. Near the door eat a man poorly and thinly clad and. half-balanced on his knee, was a child not more than 2 years old. That child's little legs and feet were wholly bare and they were actually blue from cold. Think of their presence tonight will make an event it! The mercury nearly to the freezing point, several inches of snow over everything and a child barefoot! The father had not a hard face, but just a beaten look, as though the world had used him roughly so long that he had lost hope and felt he and those dependent upon him must take things as they come.

"It was just beginning to dawn upon me that I might do something beside stare and mutter 'what a pity,' when a rustling attracted my gaze to Mrs. Cartan's corner of the car. She had her hands behind her, under her cloak, and the next thing will be the Gordon-Shay Grand Opera com-I knew she was standing erect in that car and permitting to slip from her a car and permitting to slip from her a nod's "Faust" will be sung Thursday heavy, rustling petticoat. "In less than half a minute she was back in her seat, composed, unblushing undertaking more ried through in my life and I verily be lieve that had I started in that car the cheer that was constantly crowding my lips the chorus would have been swelled every voice there, except perhaps that of the infant, who merely gabbled, babyfashion, as it rubbed its little legs about within the soft silken folds."

It was at first reported that Mrs. Cartan's sister, Mrs. L. F. Crofoot, was the one who had performed the kindly office, but inquiry brought astonished disavowal from the latter, and subsequently it was discovered who the benefactress really was.
