

ATTEND GRANT FUNERAL

President and Other Distinguished Persons Are Present at Washington Services.

REMAINS NOW REST IN NEW YORK TOMB

Remains Taken East and Interred in Granite Sarcophagus Where Dead General Already Lies Buried.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—In the presence of a notable assemblage, including President Roosevelt, some of his cabinet, senators and representatives and most of the army, navy and marine officers in the city in their dress uniforms, funeral services were held for the remains of Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, the widow of the general soldier-president, were held in this city this morning.

The casket immediately afterward was taken to New York on a train over the Pennsylvania railroad, which left here at 11 o'clock.

All of the children of Mrs. Grant were present excepting Jesse Grant, who will reach New York this morning, and attend the ceremonies in that city tomorrow.

The members of the family and relatives who attended the service were as follows: Mrs. Sartoris, General Fred Grant, Ulysses Simpson Grant, who arrived during the service at the church; U. S. Grant, Jr.; Miss Sartoris, Mr. and Mrs. Sartoris, Commander and Mrs. Alexander, Nellie D. Sharp, Mrs. James F. Casey, Miss Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Casey, Miss Annie Dent, Mr. and Mrs. Garrison Smith, Mr. Grant Smith and Lieutenant Smith.

Those who accompanied the remains to New York on private car Conroy, which was attached to the regular train and immediately back of the baggage car in which the casket was placed were: General and Mrs. Fred D. Grant, U. S. Grant, Mrs. Sartoris, U. S. Grant, Jr., Miss Sartoris, Commander and Mrs. Alexander, Nellie D. Sharp, Mrs. James F. Casey, Miss Casey, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Casey, Miss Annie Dent, Mr. and Mrs. Garrison Smith, Mr. Grant Smith and Lieutenant Smith.

Preceded by a short service at the Grant home, the main service was held in the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church, where the family worshipped during the Grant administration.

The president and Secretary Hay occupied the front pew. Back of them were seated Secretaries Moody and Hitchcock, Postmaster General Payne and Secretary Cortelyou.

The next was the family pew, draped with the national emblem and occupied by the immediate family, and on the extreme left by Commander Cowles, U. S. N., and Colonel T. A. Bingham, U. S. A.

Rev. Dr. Frank M. Bristol, pastor of the church, officiated and opened the ceremony by reading from the scriptures as he walked down the aisle, followed by the honorary pallbearers, consisting of senators, the speaker of the house and the chief justices.

The pallbearers were seated just back of the family. The casket was covered and the pulpit was banked with floral tributes.

The choir sang "Lead, Kindly Light," after which Dr. Bristol offered prayer. Following this the choir sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and the service was closed. The family was then driven to the Pennsylvania depot and left on the 11 o'clock train.

During the entire service the bells tolled, lending an impressive solemnity to the occasion. The different bells in the chimes are named after those who were instrumental in having them placed in the tower. One of them, the first tolled this morning, is engraved with the name of Mrs. Grant.

Rests by Husband's Side. NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—The body of Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant lies tonight in the great red granite sarcophagus where that in which the remains of her husband rest in the tomb overlooking the Hudson river.

On the arrival of the funeral train at Jersey City the casket, piled high with flowers, was borne on the shoulders of six men to the Grant mansion department steamer General Meigs with a detachment of U. S. Grant post, Grand Army of the Republic, and the committee of the U. S. Grant monument acting as escort.

The body was placed on a bier on the forward deck of the vessel, which started immediately up the river for the tomb. The members of the funeral party proceeded direct to the Fifth Avenue hotel.

On reaching the landing place the casket was transferred to a horse and taken to the tomb, the route being lined by double ranks of police. The body was placed in the sarcophagus without any ceremony in the presence of U. S. Grant, Jr., the members of the escort and a little group of officials, and the massive lid, which weighs about five tons, was quickly lowered and sealed in place.

The services tomorrow morning will begin at 11 and will not last over fifteen minutes. They will be conducted jointly by Bishop Egan Andrews and the Rev. Alexander Mackay Smith. Two hymns will be sung by a quartet, under the direction of General Horatio C. King.

DESCRIBES AUTOCRAT OF POINT LORNA

Alleges Mrs. Tingley Names Those Who May Speak Together, and Sometimes Separates Members of Same Family.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 30.—What purports to be a remarkable revelation of the inner workings of the theosophical institution at Point Lorna was given today during the trial of an action for libel. Mrs. Katharine Tingley, head of the Universal Brotherhood, has brought suit against the Times-Mirror company of Los Angeles.

The sensational trial was given in a deposition by Louis Fitch of Hartford, Conn., who said he was employed as a bookkeeper by the Universal Brotherhood, of which he became a member and had privileges accorded to few others.

Mrs. Tingley, he added, was considered a prophet in line of succession dating back to Buddha, Christ and Mahomet. He told deponent that marriage relations as known to the world were wholly false and perverted and that people who lived at Point Lorna would finally reach a stage where weddings would be unnecessary.

The pledge of the order bound members to obey the leaders in all things and the sole leader was Katharine Tingley. Mrs. Tingley had control over everybody and everything. She said where every member should lodge, what they should eat, when they should go, and where they should have conversation with and even designated those who were not to be looked at.

Mrs. Tingley had a dog named "Spot" and told him that "Spot" was a great deal more than a pet.

"I believe I know," she said, "that Mr. Judge's spirit entered into 'Spot' at his death. Mr. Judge gave 'Spot' to me at the time of his death and at the time I assumed leadership of the Universal Brotherhood as his successor."

Mrs. Tingley even supervised the intercourse of members of the same family. Thus she would not allow a Mr. and Mrs. Hanson to speak with their own children. Fitch then described some of the ceremonies performed in connection with the order.

The customs prescribed for all meetings and gatherings, except the Sunday morning services, consisted of a cheese-cloth garment without sleeves, belted with a cord about the waist. This was to be worn over under clothing and no starched clothing was permitted.

Mrs. Tingley, he went on to say, was a worker, and that although her title was leader, she was frequently addressed as "Puerple" by her official cabinet and often-times as "mother" until she requested that the latter be stopped.

WORK ONE WEEK IN SEVENTY

Balance of Time Inmates of Kansas Soldiers' Home May Loaf and Eat and Sleep.

NATIONAL MILITARY HOME, Kan., Dec. 21.—To the Editor of The Bee: This is a beautiful home, located on a hill and in a nice grove. We have thirteen barracks twenty-four feet wide and 180 feet long, three stories high, all heated by steam. There is hot and cold water and a bath room in every ward and good beds.

All the buildings are of brick, and brick streets. There is one large church, divided, one part for Protestants and the other for Catholics. One theater, with a capacity for 2,000 people, two plays a week, free; one large hospital, dining room seating 1,800 at one sitting. On Sundays the brass band plays during meal hours. We have forty cows to furnish us milk, which he long to the home. On our first coming to the home we have to do duty one week peeling potatoes, which only takes two hours a day. After that week's duty is over our turn comes only once in sixteen months. The balance of the time we have nothing to do but eat three times a day and sleep nights.

They give us a pass, and from 7 a. m. until 8:30 we go where we please, to Leavenworth or Kansas City. If we get into Leavenworth, we are allowed to eat potatoes, beef, pork, beans, fat, apple sauce, sauerkraut, bread, butter, coffee, tea. This morning I was on duty. We peeled and washed six washbuds of potatoes, five sacks, skin on, soaked five barrels of mackerel fish, two barrels of sauerkraut for Friday's use. All food is made as clean as water can make it and has to be cooked so thoroughly that a man with poor teeth can eat it. We have 3,995 soldiers on the roll call. ISAAC A. OLDHAM.

CAMPBELL HELD FOR TRIAL

Man Charged with Eight Burglaries Must Go Into District Court.

When he was arraigned before Judge Berka yesterday James Campbell, whom the police say is one of the most indubrious burglars they have been able to round up this year, was bound over to the district court. He was held for trial under $500 bonds.

The complaint against Campbell contained two counts for burglary, while there are six more pending, another new case having been brought to light against him since his arrest. Campbell did not appear to be much disconcerted when he was brought to face the charges and to the observer he seemed relieved when the court had concluded the hearing.

With the arrest of Campbell comes a trying condition to the police, the endeavor to secure the evidence they desire against the prisoner. They have found that certain junk dealers, after purchasing the plunder, deface it by heating or breaking, until it is easily disposed of. When the officers call looking for the trace of the stolen property, it is badly disfigured that the task is made most difficult.

Chief Donahue says that steps will soon be taken to remove this barrier to the efforts of the officers, and possibly the city council will be asked to pass an ordinance covering the matter.

TROLLEY CAR IS CRUSHED

Three Women Badly Hurt and Many Other Passengers Injured.

ACCIDENT HAPPENS ON CROSSING

Motorman Waits for Freight Train to Pass, but Does Not Notice That Detached Cars Are Following.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Three women were perhaps fatally injured and fifty-seven other passengers were bruised and badly shaken up in a trolley car accident in Weehawken at midnight.

The accident occurred at a point where the trolley company's tracks cross the tracks of the Erie railroad. When the trolley car reached the tracks the motorman stopped his car to allow a freight train to pass. The train consisted of nine cars and was moving rapidly.

The last three cars of the freight train broke loose some distance east of the crossing and were not noticed by the train crew. After the six cars had passed by the motorman of the trolley car thought it was the last of the train and started to cross the tracks. When he got his car in the middle of the crossing the three freight cars, which had broken loose from the train, came rolling along and before he could get his car over the crossing it was struck with terrific force by the freight cars.

Dash Through Windows. The trolley car was completely turned over and the passengers thrown through windows, up against the doors and on top of one another.

They were struck in the face with broken timbers, glass and everything else movable. Ambulances and physicians were summoned and a crowd which had collected about the wreck started to extricate those who were caught in the wreck.

The three most seriously hurt were taken out unconscious and the physicians directed their efforts toward reviving them. A member of the family of each woman arrived and refused to allow them to be taken to the hospital and they were removed in the ambulances to their homes.

What caused the train to become uncoupled is not known. The trolley car was completely wrecked. Traffic was blocked both on the railroad and trolley lines for nearly two hours.

BEAR IN A TRAP

Dragged a Forty-Pound Weight Through Two Counties.

Somewhere in the forest region that extends from Cogan House township, Lacombe county, to the Blue River, in the southeastern part of Potter county, reports the Philadelphia Record, there is roaming these days a big black bear with a forty-pound steel trap and a ten-foot chain attached to his leg.

This broke away with one of Joseph Hopkins' traps near Brooks, about a week ago, and the last heard of the shaggy beast was up in the Slate run region, over thirty miles from Brooks. For two days a party of four hunters chased the fugitive bear and once one of the men saw brunt shambling along and out of rifle range.

Though handicapped by the weight of the trap and the long dangling chain, the bear was evidently able to travel faster than were the men, for the fact that he was seen in the upper Slate run district three days after his escape shows that he was able to get over territory lively.

The bear is said to be as large as a yearling heifer. It had been preying on Farmer Hopkins' sheep and pigs for a month before it allowed itself to be inveigled into the trap, and this was probably his desire for a change of diet that resulted in his downfall. Hopkins hung a calf's head eight feet above the ground, beneath which the largest of his jaw-tooth traps was hidden.

Next morning the calf's head was there, but the trap was gone. The captive bear must have set himself free, for the chain had been unfastened from its circle around a log.

It was on the morning of the first day that Luke Griswold, one of the pursuers, saw the bear. The trap was fast to one of his hind legs. Now, besides being out of his mind, he was also minus his hind leg. Old hunters are eagerly discussing the probable fate of the shaggy bear. Most of them think that he will keep on going and going, toting his heavy load with him until he worries and starves himself to death, unless he is shot or shot by a hunter, or even then the meat would be inferior, for a bear soon loses his plumpness and the flesh becomes dry and tasteless in captivity. Other backwoodsmen who know something of the habits of bears say that this bear will return to his quarters that he occupied last winter and will there await the natural process of mortification of the imprisoned foot to be freed from the trap that the leg will then heal up and a three-footed bear will be seen next season. Crippled in that manner the bear could get round lively enough and over a small territory, but he could not again join the hiking forays of his companions.

When seen in the Slate run region the bear was shambling along an old log road, going in the direction of the heart of the Black forest—that Eden of black bears and catamounts. Two unarmed woodsmen saw him. They were first attracted to him by the rattling of the chain as it dropped along over the rocks, and hiding in the thicket along the roadside, they were within ten yards of the bear when it passed and they had a good chance to see him. The men say that he had a most forlorn look on his face, as though worried, weary and disheartened. He half jerked, half dragged the heavy trap along, but when one of the men yelled at the top of his voice the poor beast broke into a dogged run, as though yet determined to escape any further torment at the hands of man.

Like some dorellet on the ocean this shaggy bear will probably wander aimlessly and sadly among the ravines of the Black forest, to be seen now and then by hunters, serving to add zest to the freckle stories in camps or affording material for yarns at the village store.
