YORK, Neb., Dec. 28 .- (Special.) - Guy Meredith, eldest son of Representative William Meredith, met last evening with an accident that may cost him his life. The flyer going east over the Burlington was late and arrived here at about the same time as the local going east, and Guy Meredith, supposing that it was the local train boarded it for his home, Waco, the next station. The train had started before he discovered that he was on the fiyer. He was standing on a car platform. As the train neared Waco and he stepped down one step on the platform to obtain a view of the place where he wanted to stop, the train gave a lurch, throwing passengers against Meredith, pushing him off the train. When found he was senseless. Physicians believe that he is seriously injured, especially about the head. Guy Meredith is one of the most popular young men in the neighborhood. He is about 18 years old. The accident may prevent Mr. Moredith attending promptly the first session of the Business interests centering around the lake have so suffered from the decline that within the last twelve months a petition signed by a number of the prominent officials of Utah, was sent to the United States geological survey requesting an investigation of the phenomenon. Some light is thrown on the movements of the lake in the last (twenty-second) annual report of the survey, Part IV, now in press, in which a careful comparison of the rainfall records since 1862 has been made. It is found that the low water fluctuations of the lake, of which there have been several since that time, correspond in a remarkable degree with the periods of deficient rainfall, and it has further been discovered that one inch of rainfall per year, more or less, upon the watershed of the lake makes a difference of 0.26 of a foot in the water level. This ratio applied to the present low water, on the basis of the deficiency of rainfall for the last fifteen years, which amounts to 14.7 inches, seems to account for less than half

CARACAS, Dec. 28 .- Mr. Brown and Louis Barait, Venezuelan minister of foreign affairs, held a long conference last night. Mr. Bowen, obeying instructions from Washington, conveyed to Senor Baralt President Roosevelt's refusal to act as arbitrator in the Venezuelan difficulty. He recommended that the matter be taken to the international peace court at The Hague, which had been expressly organized to consider questions in which the honor of a country or the disposition of territory were not concerned.

He suggested the organization of a commission to sit in Washington, the allied powers to be represented on this commission by their representatives to the United States and Venezuela by a delegate. The commission is to sign a document setting forth the matters to be decided at The Hague court. Mr. Bowen said, also, that Germany

CORONATION BAZAAR SCANDALS.

Mixed Up.

The golden glamor begins to fade from passing through southeastern Utah. King Edward's coronation, which began as a world-famous pageant, was suddenly darkened by the shadow of disaster, and finally ended as a simple and impressive religious ceremony. Not the least heralded part of the celebration, says Harper's Bazaar, was the coronation bazaar held in July, and opened by Queen Alexandra. Rumors of awkward disclosures concerning its management are rife in even the most exclusive circles of the court. The duke of Fife, the king's son-in-law, who is chairman of the bazaar committee, insists on the publication of the balance sheet, in order to make clear to an inquiring world why very great sales resulted in very small and even evanescent cash returns. Certain great ladies, who helped to make the baraar a success or otherwise, and who chickens that were running about the have been talking to their admiring friends at afternoon teas of the wonderful efforts and sacrifices they made for the bazaar, are equally determined to keep the financial statement strictly private and confidential. The car was crowded The accident occurred immediately after Maracaibo arrived here this afternoon at 2 and when the long hill was reached the brakes were ineffective because the rails had been covered with snow by boys who were coasting. The car began to slide and attained a wonderful speed, when a wheel broke, throwing it against an electric light pole.

The car was completely wrecked and the passengers jammed into a confused mass. To add to the passengers' distress, the fire in the stove communicated to the wreck-Fortunately other cars came along at this an Unknown Quantity. There have arrived in Los Angeles two young men who have made the trip across the continent from the Mississippi river in a canvas-covered wagon drawn by a pair of mules. Their experiences have been varied and interesting-often hazardous, but never more unique than when

In that section of the state have settled few score of families, regardless of the fact that the nearest railroad is 150 miles away and that there is absolutely no market for the product of their ranches. They raise what they want to eat, their ranches support their ever increasing herds and they expect to realize fortunes from their cattle and lands when a railroad penetrates the fastness and traverses that section. Meantime money is almost an unknown medium of exchange. Cattle and grain are the units of value. The young men say that in one settlement where they stopped there was not a dollar in money, all told, in the town. At one of their camping places they visited a nearby ranch to buy one of the numerous

Ruse to Give Sinners a Foretaste of the Judgment Day. The Rev. George A. Cox, a revivalist of ome note in northern Indiana and southern Michigan, resorted to an unusual expedient last week to turn sinners from their evil ways.

He had been preaching night after night to a village congregation, but had utterly failed to awaken interest. The usual special prayers for the conversion of sinner had been offered and meetings "for women only" had been held, but nothing seemed able to bring the sinners to the anxious seat. One night he secreted a negro boy in the

There was a commotion in the congregation. Many plous men and women fell or their knees and began to pray. Connect sat with blanched faces and trembling forms, expecting every moment the world to come to an end. "Ah, brethren," exclaimed the minister, 'our petitions are at last answered. Downupon your knees, brethren, that you may receive the Lord in contriteness of heart. and humility of spirit, for this is surely the day of the resurrection. So well had the program been carried out that saints and sinners alike dropped on their knees, and 100 voices were raised in supplication for forgiveness, many of monastery of St. Paul of the Cross. After quiet had been restored, and while the congregation sat in breathless silence for something supernatural to happen, Mr. Cox called the negro down from the belfry, and the lad came down, born in hand and a broad grin upon his face. As he came down through the little scuttle hole in the ceiling and dropped to the floor, Mr. Cox. pointed him out as the supposed Gabriel, and then began to shame the sinners for the cowardice they had displayed. "If thus you are frightened at the horn of Gabriel," said the minister, "what will you do when you come to stand before the judgment seat of the God whose mercies you have trampled upon, and whose grace Come to God, confess the evil of your lives and ask forgiveness before Gabriel's irumpet shall sound in reality for you."
