Youth Not the Best. Atlantic Monthly.

We are prone, in our enthusiasm for youth, to disparage something still better. Youth is action, glorious, unrestrained, yet also undirected, contingent. Manhood is action to a higher degree. Youth is beautiful, but imperfect, not immoral, but unmoral. In youth inheres only the possibility of fearlessness in the literal sense of the word; in manhood alone lie the infinite possibilities of courage.

Cherokee Democrat. Twenty-five or thirty years ago a coal famine didn't cause the least concern among the people. It didn't matter much then whether it was $4.50-the price then in western Iowa-or $40 per ton. All we burned in those days was weeds, the long, lean, dry weeds, that covered the sloughs, with a strip of slough grass sandwiched in between. With a family of four persons, it took two to gather and pack them to the house, one to continuously break them in handfuls and put them in the stove, while the fourth would nearly freeze to death trying to keep warm by it.

Of course, the Chicago school board by its acion is not likely to after suddenly the usage in this respect, and there may not be mny sweeping alteration. The word "lady" having been expanded to such an extent as to lose its power for differentiating, it may, and probably will, be continued in use as a synonym for denoting the sex-DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

New York Sun: He-Pity is akin to love, She-Yes, isn't it a pity you can't afford that love of a hat for me?

Philadelphia Press: "Peculiar thing about a man's standing in his church." "What's that?"

"It depends largely upon his sitting." Detroit Free Press: Mrs. Henpeck-To-morrow will be the fifteenth anniversary of ur marriage. Henpeck—You needn't taunt me with it. Judge: "She says that he is a man after her own heart." "Then I suppose he will get it."

Chicago News: Witless-Who is that handsome girl standing near the plane? Mrs. Homer-That is my daughter. Witless-Indeed! She doesn't resemble you in the least.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Did your wife give you any cigars this Christmas."
"No. I think she intended to give me a box, but when I went into the parlor and smoked one of the cigars she gave me last year, she changed her mind."

Philadelphia Press: Tess There's only one thing that prevents her from making one thing that prevents cleak of nor religion. Jens-And what's that? doesn't consider cloaks fash-
