SOCIETY HAS A BUSY WEEK

Six Days and Nights of Ceaseless Guiety Marks the Season.

EVERYBODY TIRED AFTER A GOOD TIME

Most Brilliant Week in Year is that Just Closed for the Sociable People of Omaha and Their Friends.

Not for years, even during the holiday Beason, has a single week been more replete with brilliant affairs than the one just closed.

Beginning with a dozen smart gatherings on Monday, every day was crowded with mffairs of size and importance that would ordinarily render them conspicuous on the season's calendar; as it was, they followed in a quick succession that rendered the one long, brilliant whirl of gayety that only ended at midnight on Saturday night. Throughout the week the young people at home from school have figured prominently, but not more so than their elder sisters and brothers, their parents and grandparents; there was entertainment for everybody and everybody participated until by the time New Year's day festivities had been accomplished, this same "everybody"-excepting only the college people-was just a bit tired out, and the weeks'end affairs, though among the smartest of all, scarcely occasioned the outbusiasm that would ordinarily have attended them. It is an open secret that while the cotillion of Friday evening was among the most anticipated of the week's gatherings, half the women were too tired to care to dance or even enjoy the evening, and in consequence-well, no one was especially enthusiastic about it next day.

Of course, Thursday overshadowed every other day and society is still chatting about what happened-and what did not happen-on the first day of the year.

In honor of Mrs. Jacob Gould Schurman, Mrs. Henry R. Penney and Mrs. Charles C. Rosewater gave a beautiful reception from 4 until 6 o'clock on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Penney, 104 North Thirtyfirst avenue, about 300 cards having been issued. Throughout the house the Cornell colors, red and white, were used in the details of a most effective decoration, not the least of which were several Cornell banners. The windows had been darkened and in the various rooms a soft red glow from the shaded chandellers and numerous candles enhanced the effectiveness of the trimmings. Mrs. Schurman, Mrs. Penney and Mrs. Rosewater received together in the library, which was trimmed with red carnations, Narcissus and rows of single brass candlesticks, while in the parlor adtolning meteor roses were used. Across the hall in the dining room Mrs. Warren Blackwell, Mrs. William Hill Clarke, Mrs. Daniel Baum, jr., and Mrs. Charles March presided alternately serving coffee and ices from the exquisitely trimmed table with its cover of lace and center of red and white carnations, all under the glow of the red-shaded chandelier and the many candles of the four silver candelabra. In a most attractive den at the end of the hall Miss Blanche Rosewater and Miss Georgia Kennard served punch. Among the women who assisted through the rooms were: Mesdames J. J. McMullen, Herbert Gannett, Cowgill, Jay D. Foster, Edward Rosewater, Fred Pearce, Frank Kennard, Erwin Davenport, Arthur Wakeley, William Yetter, Charles Adams of Jamestown, N. Y., and Mrs. O. M. One of the prettiest children's parties during the holidays was given on the 27th ultimo by Ida and Clarence Darlow to nearly thirty of their little friends. The beautiful decorations were entirely in red and green. A large Christmas tree arranged in one of the rooms was quite an attraction. A novel and pretty scene was the flower shower falling on the children while they were all deeply engaged in their games. A special feature was a real Santa Claus (Mr. Whilden doing the part very successfully). Among those assisting Mrs. Darlow were the Misses Battin, Towne and
