Little sanitarium in Des Moines a few days ago to be examined. The child's mother had been told that possibly the little one could be cured of her deafness at least, but examination was made and the doctors reached the conclusion that nothing could be done. It was at first thought the deafness was due to some brain pressure which might be relieved by an operation. This diagnosis was not confirmed by the surgeons here. The attention of the State Board of Control was called to the Knoxville child by the fact that Chairman Cownie was on the train when the child and its mother were coming to Des Moines.
