Objections to Locating Library There Come from Many Sources.

PARK BOARD UNALTERABLY OPPOSED

Pusey Property Looked Upon with Much Favor and Statement is Made It Can Be Secured, Though Owners Prefer to Keep It.

The Board of Library Trustees has abandoned all idea of erecting the public library building made possible by the munificence of Andrew Carnegie, in the center of Buylin Park. This was the statement made yesterday afternoon by President Rohrer of the library board. Mr. Rohrer stated that the board realized that the public would not permit the use of the park for the building and that it was very doubtful if under the terms of the gift of the property to the city the park could be utilized for such a purpose.

There is also another serious stumbling block to the building being erected in the center of the park and this is the refusal of the Board of Park Commissioners to consent to it. Park Commissioner Graham, who asserted he spoke with authority from the other two members of the board, stated yesterday that the board would not for a single moment even consider such a proposition.

Mr. Graham said the property had been deeded to the city for a park on the express conditions that it be used as such.

He said further that to place the building in the center of the park as proposed would result in destroying one of the beauty spots of Council Bluffs.
