

FUNERAL OF J. L. BRANDEIS

It is Conducted at the Dodge Street Home by Rabbi Simon.

SIMPLE SERVICE IS WITHOUT MUSIC

Prayers and a Few Words of Solace at the House-Interment at Pleasant Hill Cemetery.

With that same quiet simplicity which had marked his mode of living, Jonas L. Brandeis was laid away in Pleasant Hill cemetery yesterday afternoon, Rabbi Simon of Temple Israel conducting the services at the home, 2525 Dodge street, and at the cemetery.

Within the former there were flowers everywhere, the last gifts of those whom he had befriended, aided or given assistance in public enterprises. The Knights of Ak-Sar-Bon and the B'nai B'rith each sent a floral pillow. The Metropolitan club sent a broken column. The Wise Memorial hospital sent a crescent, star and anchor. The employes of the firm whose head he was sent a wreath of lilies of the valley. The Woman's club sent cut flowers, and there were individual mementoes almost without number. A south parlor, in which the casket rested, and the adjoining apartments were banked with these many tokens of tribute, but of other display there was none. The many friends who assembled had nothing to distract their attention from the good deeds of him who was to go from them forever.

Only a Word of Solace.

As he would have wished, and as the family wished, there was no music and but a very short service. Rabbi Simon gave the opening prayer, pronounced a few words of solace and then the closing prayer. At the cemetery there was the mourners' prayer.

The members of the devoted and grieving family were all present except Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Brandeis, whose journey home from abroad is so long that they cannot reach Omaha before the latter part of this week. In addition to these immediate relatives there were present also Mr. Brandeis' nephew, Mr. George Brandeis of Chicago; Mrs. Brandeis' brother, Mr. L. Tevles, and Mrs. Tevles, of Milwaukee; Mrs. Brandeis' sisters, Mrs. J. Kaulfer of Milwaukee and Mrs. J. Marcus of Chicago; Mrs. Brandeis' nephew, Mr. Emil Hirsch of Davenport, Ia., and Mr. Brandeis' friend of many years, Mr. Phillip Carlsson of Milwaukee.

Mr. Carlsson was one of the pallbearers. The others were Mr. Morris Levy, Mr. Ben Edelman, Mr. Will McKnight, Mr. Fred Lowe and Mr. Herman Melchin, all of Omaha. There were no honorary pallbearers.

DRUGGISTS MUST BE CHARY.

They Sell All Kinds of Hair Preparations and Fear to Discriminate.

Druggists sell all kinds of hair preparations and as a rule they are wisely chary of giving preference to any particular one, but many of them have come out plainly for Newbro's Herpicide, the new treatment that absolutely kills the dandruff germ. H. Swannell & Son, Champaign, Ill., say: "One customer of ours who did not have a hair on top of his head when he began to use Herpicide now has a fair start toward a good head of hair. We believe Herpicide to be by far the best preparation of its kind on the market." Hundreds of similar testimonials from everywhere.

TOO MUCH FOR THE BARBER

Confesses His Inability to Cut Curly Into Little Girl's Hair.

"Some people have queer ideas of comings," observed the barber as he adjusted the towel and took up the shaving mug and brush. "A short time ago a woman came in here with a little girl. She wanted the child's hair cut and brought with her a fancy picture from a magazine for me to work by. She wanted the little girl's hair trimmed so she would look just like the picture and the child in the picture had curls, but the little girl whose hair I was to cut had none. I simply had to tell the woman that if there were curls there I could cut them out, but I couldn't cut any in, and she seemed surprised that I couldn't make her child look like the picture."

ENVIRONMENT IS NO EXCUSE

Rev. Smith Holds It Not Accountable for Waywardness

MRS. McQUOID IS PRETTILY RECEIVED

Wife of Former Pastor of First Methodist Church Saluted with Her Late Husband's Favorite Air.

"The Apology of the Snek" was the topic treated by Rev. E. Crombie Smith in the pulpit of the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning. The pastor drew the modern analogy from the biblical story of "The Tragedy of Haman," preaching from the tenth verse of the seventh chapter of Esther as a text, "So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai." Rev. Smith said in part:

"All the demons of hell could not keep from heaven a heaven-sent soul; all the angels of heaven could not keep a hell-bound soul from hell.

"Environment is no excuse for vagaries of character. Consider Judas and John, the two disciples who were constantly with Christ for three years. Both lived in the same gracious and benign influences. Yet John was always the true disciple, while Judas had a black heart through it all, and ended his life in the greatest tragical known.

"Nowadays you often will hear men who say that every woman has her price. Such a man has a heart so black that even the white, pure angels themselves would not escape him."

Mrs. McQuoid Prettily Received.

A moving feature of the services was the spontaneous and entirely unpremeditated reception given Mrs. John McQuoid, widow of the former pastor of that church. Mrs. McQuoid has been in Omaha during the past week with her daughter, Emmeline, visiting her former friends. Her presence in Omaha was not known to many Sunday morning and she entered the church unheralded. But Thomas J. Kelly, the organist, recognized Mrs. McQuoid as she came down the aisle, and immediately altered his organ effort from the theme announced to improvisation on Rev. McQuoid's favorite in his lifetime, "My Ain Country." Mrs. McQuoid noticed the recognition of her presence conveyed in this tribute to her husband's memory, and she was visibly moved. By that time the congregation was generally aware that she was in its midst, and at the close of the services she was surrounded by a host of friends, each insisting on having some portion of her time during her stay here. Mrs. McQuoid is making her headquarters during this visit at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Hipple, 3006 Dodge street.

QUENCHING THE RELIGIOUS FLAMES.

Rev. Eccles Believes that Discouraged Christians Are Doing So.

Taking for his subject "Wet Blankets," Rev. Eccles, pastor of the First Baptist church, Sunday morning delivered a discourse upon lessons taught through the cooling of the ardor of church members and those who had affiliated with the church.

In beginning his sermon the pastor dealt largely with the fact that in many cases members of the Christian religion fail to have a good word for the church of which they are a part, and live the life of a Christian merely as a machine and without the loving instincts and loving words which should emanate from them. As an example of this, the pastor referred to the Israelites who were unable to secure admittance to the Holy Land and illustrated the causes for their refusal. He said that today the church was looked upon as a social organization instead of a Christian organization. He said that in many cases where the works and affairs of the church were not to the exact liking of the member, cold water was thrown upon the endeavors of the organization and every attempt made to discourage the work. It was seeking to accomplish. Complete abandonment of its efforts was too often the case noted in many of the denominations. He said that in all congregations there is a certain element that is always discouraged because the good work is not of their personal endeavor and effort, which results in wet blankets being thrown upon the aims and zealous work of those who are striving to have the church gain the position it seeks. After the profession of faith the first element in a church which is to be considered in harmony. Without that future success is impossible.

GREATNESS IS FROM GENTLENESS.

Rev. Yost So Reminds His Congregation in an Address.

"The gentleness hath made me great" was the text used by Rev. Robert Yost at St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church yesterday morning for an address in which he emphasized what may be accomplished by tender ministrations.

His remarks were scarcely a sermon, but rather a series of word-pictures illustrative of his thought, and a number of quotations from the scriptures showing how often men are therein admonished to be of Christ-like tenderness, moved ever by charity and mercy.

In conclusion he said: "I insist that no man is truly great unless God made him so, and the gentleness of God is here this morning. You never will be great unless you have that gentleness of God within you. Just let your life be controlled by the life of Christ. Just let him have complete control of you and gentleness will make you great."

"I think sometimes I am a sort of coward. I always visit a criminal when called to, but I confess I shrink from it, and I think if I were to ask you this morning to go to the county jail and there talk with the prisoners none would be anxious to go. Yet let us remember that someone, you know who, once said: 'I was sick and in prison and ye visited me not.'"

A pleasing feature of the service was the song of a quartet comprising Miss Staphenhorst, soprano; Mrs. Martin of Fremont, contralto; Mr. George Aulbaugh, tenor, and Mr. A. L. Gaston, bass.

JENKS ON THE MAN WHO SUCCEEDS.

Presbyterian Pastor Concludes Series of Special Sermons.

Rev. Dr. Jenks, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, finished last evening his course of New Year's sermons on "Getting a Start." The branch of his subject considered on this occasion was "The Man Who Succeeded and Succeeded." His text was from John 1:12, "Thou art Simon—thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, a stone." He said: "Peter was a great rough rock from the quarry, against which the experience of life, like sharp tools, were used to bring out a shapely character. We see him at a disadvantage under the processes of formation. Time and again he comes to the very verge of failure. When he denied the Lord with oaths he seems to have plunged to depths irretrievable. Surely he had desired to lift him as wheat, but his faith failed not. To take the defects of character and raise them to usefulness and power and beauty is success. In this Peter's life is an inspiration. "Peter is a man's man. He is strong."

Strong men have the greatest temptations.

It is because they are strong, and when they are strong that they break down. Some chief characteristic or passion which wisely guarded, would be a power, overrides often all other faculties and ensnares them.

"Peter was strong in his enthusiasm and his loyalty. It leads him to be the chief confessor of Christ, and to betray him into denying the necessity of the crucifixion, to walk the waters and to deny his Savior.

"We discount the forward man. Yet do we well? Peter is first seen at the great draught of fishes, saying, 'Depart from me, for I am a sinful man.' Had he never started to follow Christ, knowing his disadvantages, would he have done well? Did Nicodemus or Joseph of Arimathea do as well? His voice was always first heard in any crisis and often it humbles him. Would he have done better to have let some other speak first?

"It is the man who plunges into any enterprise in which he has faith, without waiting for others, that succeeds. He may have had experiences, others may get the glory; but without these pioneers of faith there would have been a loss incalculable. Handicapped with a sense of his unfitness Peter started to be a disciple of the Lord. It led him to sorrow and a cross, but to the glory of everlasting achievements. So Columbus started and found a new world. So Luther found a Protestant church.

Better like Hector in the field to die. Thus like a perfume, Peter's tears and sighs.

"The man who will not let failure down him will down failure at last. What an inspiring story is the building of the Central Pacific railroad, with its glory resting upon such men as Stanford and Huntington. Or Cyrus Field with his immense labors for thirteen years to lay the Atlantic cable. Fifty times he crossed the ocean before his arrangements were completed and then when the broken end elipped over the stern of the Great Eastern men began to touch their foreheads when they talked of his wild project. Washington fought a losing battle for eight long years. These will find in Peter a compeer of universal manhood. It is the end that crowns the labor with success.

"This man started, failed and failed again. But the Lord's prayer was answered. His faith failed not.

"We can reckon no man's life a failure till the close. Simon became the rock on which Christ founded His church. No more lapses after that last meeting in Galilee. All his enthusiasm and loyalty were given unreservedly to his great work. There is a beautiful legend that, fleeing from the city of Rome during Nero's persecution, Christ met him on the way. Falling at his feet in adoration Peter said, 'Quo Vades?' (Whither goest Thou?) and the Lord replied, 'To Rome to be crucified again.' Peter turned and went joyfully back to take his Master's place, and there was crucified at his own request, head downward, accounting himself unworthy to be crucified in the same manner as the Lord. His trials were over, and in the great light of eternity he had succeeded."

WITH ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE

Sackett, Silhouette Artist, Gets Into Trouble and Must Answer State Charge.

Harry Sackett, a traveling silhouette artist, came to grief Sunday morning because of his infatuation for a patron who chanced to be another man's wife. As a result he and Mrs. Merritt V. Pugley are locked up at police headquarters on a state charge. Mrs. Pugley says she was arrested Sunday morning about 11 o'clock in the former's room, 1908 Chicago street, by Sergeant Hudson, upon complaint of Mrs. Pugley's husband, who had been seeking a clue to her whereabouts during Saturday night. Pugley, who is a Union Pacific employee, says he always provided an attractive home, and that there was no reason for his wife going astray. Mrs. Pugley, who is an attractive woman of 21 years, made a complete confession to Captain Sackett, who made a similar statement and immediately asked that legal counsel be sent to him. Mrs. Pugley has resided with her husband at their home, 2118 California street, for the past year and a half, they having been married about that time. The prisoners will be given their preliminary hearing in the police court this morning.

HIS FIGHTING CLOTHES ON

Drunk Man Covers Hotel Dining Room and Triles Issues with Police.

While laboring under the effects of a large load of corn juice Henry Storey walked into the dining room of a Tenth street hotel and commanded that all the diners should leave. Stationing himself at the dining room door he assumed the duties of chief clerk and porter and would not permit anyone but himself to enter the apartment. The bired fled quickly made an unconditional surrender when the landlord telephoned for the police. Detective Savage and Officer Woodridge soon arrived to escort Storey to the station. But he would not have it that way. He kicked the detective under the ear, landed the patrolman on the floor and had to be clubbed into submission before he would relinquish his control of the dining room. After he was taken to the patrol wagon he amused himself by kicking Patrol Driver Vanderford in the back. When he arrived at the station he presented a deplorable sight. His head was badly lacerated and blood was streaming from several wounds in his scalp. He was locked up on the charge of being drunk and disorderly and will have his hearing this morning.

Officers from Wyoming, Colorado and Missouri Get Men in Omaha.

Three prisoners who had been arrested in this city by members of the police department and who were wanted in various parts of the country were delivered to officers Sunday afternoon who had come for them. The first to be transported back to the scene of his alleged crime was A. S. Jones, who was delivered to Sheriff Horton of Rawlins, Wyo., where he will be tried on the charge of grand larceny. He is said to have taken a $75 camera with out the permission of the owner.

Burl Handy, who was wanted in Kansas City for the murder of an Italian, was delivered into the custody of Detective Boyle of that city, and immediately began his journey back to Newton.

Late during the afternoon Denver (Colo.) officers arrived and escorted Henry Newell, alias "Kid McCoy" back to that city, where he is wanted on a charge of burglary and grand larceny. Newell is said to have assaulted an officer before he departed from Denver.

Omega Oil FOR Weak Backs

Nine times in ten a Weak Back is caused by too much work or too much pleasure or accident. Nine times in ten the proper treatment is a thorough rubbing with Omega Oil. The Oil seems to put strength into a weak back and to drive pain out. Just how this is brought about is hard to explain, because Nature never tells how or why she does anything. All we actually know about Weak Backs is that they become strong and well again when Omega Oil is applied. You may be sure of this much: If you use Omega Oil on your back for a week or two, and it fails to relieve you, the trouble must be something serious indeed. Perhaps the Kidneys are out of order, and then you ought to consult the best doctor you know. But before doing anything else, have your back rubbed with Omega Oil at least five minutes every night and morning for a week.

I had the misfortune to fall very heavily on the pavement, causing a severe injury to my back. Having read of the wonderful cures effected by the use of Omega Oil, I purchased three bottles of it, and used as directed. I had been suffering four years with a constant pain in my spinal column, but was not benefited by the many remedies tried. I was surprised to find that the bruise from the fall disappeared after using Omega Oil, and the pain which I had suffered from so many years was also removed. I would not be without the Oil in my home. Mrs. E. J. WARDELL, 221 Sherman St., Jersey City, N. J.

Omega Oil is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for.

POT OF COFFEE IN HIS FACE

What Happened to Ninth Street Porter in Altercation with Employer.

A soiled vest, an angry woman and a hot pot of coffee were features in a Ninth street drama Sunday afternoon which resulted in Robert Bates, a porter, being badly scalded and his employer, Mattie Hill, being arrested and charged with assault and battery. Bates was about to deliver an order of food to a neighboring house when Mattie called his attention to the soiled condition of his white vest. She said that unless he changed it for a clean one he would be discharged. Words followed and later the hot coffee pot was thrown against Bates' chest, inflicting a deep gash and badly scalding him. In attempting to avoid the further onslaught of the angry employer Bates fell from a porch and dislocated his right shoulder. He was escorted to police headquarters, where Assistant Police Surgeon Wick and Hahn attended him. He was later locked up as a complaining witness, while Mattie was given like accommodations until this morning, when she will have her hearing in the police court.

Allen in Hard Luck.

Robert Allen of Meadows, Neb., was arrested yesterday evening by Special Agents of the Union Pacific railroad, who found him trying to get into an empty car at Fourteenth and Mason streets. The prisoner said that he came from Meadows Sunday evening and started out to look at things. When he came to he was lying in an alley and ill, with which he had arrived in town, and a silver watch was missing. Having no money he could do nothing but wander about all day, and at dark he sought to find an empty car.
