THE RIGHT THING.

A New Catarrh Cure, Which is Rapidly Coming to the Front.

For several years, Red Gum, Blood root and Hydrastin have been recognized as standard remedies for catarrhal troubles, but they have always been given separately and only vary recently an ingenious chemist succeeded in combining them, together with other antiseptics into a pleasant, effective tablet. Druggists sell the remedy under the name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and it has met with remarkable success in the cure of nasal catarrh, bronchial and throat catarrh and in catarrh of the stomach.

Mr. F. N. Benton, whose address is care of Clark House, Troy, N. Y., says: "When I run up against anything that is good snug beds Tuesday night and thanking I like to tell people of it. I have been heaven that the merciless winds and the troubled with catarrh more or less for cutting snow without were barred, one as weeks ago I bought a 50-cent box of a little daughter, to whom she was able to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and I am glad to offer no warmer place. And while other say that they have done wonders for me fathers were at their firesides rejoicing in and I do not hesitate to let all my friends the comfort of their families, C. W. Kenknow that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are the nedy sat gloomily at the fragile tent's right thing."

Mr. Geo. J. Casanova of hotel Griffon. West 9th street, New York City, writes: "I have commenced using Stuart's Catarrh Tablets and already they have given me better results than any catarrii cure I bave ever tried."

A leading physician of Pittsburg advises the use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in preference to any other treatment for Catarrh of head and throat or stomach.

He claims they are far superior to inhalers, salves, lotions or powder, and are much more convenient and pleasant to take and are so harmless that little children take them with benefit as they contain no opiate, cocaine or any poisonous drug.

Eczema and all diseases of the Eczema, Erysipelas, Itching Piles, Tetter, Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum, Ring Worm and all diseases of the skin have postively been cured by the astonishingly effective new D. D. D. prescription.

If you have any affection of the skin you want to be rid of it. Don't think because you have failed to be cured by the countless blood remedies and skin preparations you have taken that you cannot be cured. The makers of these remedies have simply failed to understand the nature of skin diseases. They have worked on the theory that skin diseases are due to poisoned blood, when in reality all skin diseases are but the manifestation of the activity of a living fereign parasite, which can be quickly and easily cleared away.

Results count. We have made thousands of wretched people happy by clearing up their skins, once and for all, of disgusting irritating diseases.

Long, Cold Journey. In a prairie schooner Kennedy, with his wife and child, started some days ago from Hickory county, Mo., where he is said to have enjoyed affluence at one time, to Fremont, Neb., near where he expects to locate on a farm, of which he has the promise. From the beginning of their journey they have had to endure a cold for which they had the preparation of neither warm clothing nor abundant food. As Tuesday's storm grew in fury they realized that their case was becoming desperate, and the weary team was urged to the limit of its strength.

When they reached the city they drove for the police station, but upon nearing it the man's pride overcame even the suffering of his family and stood a barrier between them and succor, all through the raging night.

Even the Horses More Lucky. A passing pedestrian, seeing the team shivering at the wagon side, took it to a stable nearby and had it sheltered, little knowing that within the tent was a woman and her baby, suffering as did the horses and with the additional distress of heavy hearts. Yesterday morning Kennedy attempted to resume his journey, but found the country roads blocked with the drifts and again camped, this time on Twenty-eighth street, near the southern limits, to await the clearing of the highways. The same sun that gave the chilled trio a warmer habitude betrayed their need of other things, and the case was early reported to the police. Officers at once investigated and then clothed the entire family, finding Kennedy to be, by this time, only a faint

In case you have occasion to refer to him by name today, and in all human probability you will, please pronounce his name as if it were spelled Curl Bellyou, with a alight accent on the "bell," not much, just a soupeon. He is an Irishman by birth, of an old family and proud of both his ancestry and his native land. It is now quite eight years since he made his bow before an Omaha audience, and since that day has Cora Urquhart Potter, with a reputation only for reciting "'Ostler Jo" (and how one suspected of having ambitions to star, to set out to go around the world, and around the world they went. Well? Today Mrs. Potter is the petted and feted leading American actress in the English stage and a prominent social figure in London, and Kyrle Bellew is the leading English actor on the American stage-and this is no disrespect to Mr. E. S. Willard, either. Mr. Bellew has won his way to his present position by honest methods, which means hard work and patient endeavor, with a steady devotion to a high ideal, and deserves the place he has. His present piece is not an ideal one for the proper exploitation of his talent; indeed, too much stress has been laid on the more mechanical features of the play-features in which an acrobat or contortionist would easily excell, but which give little if any opportunity for the show of histrionic ability. But Mr. Bellew gets several good chances to show us that he is really an actor and he improves all of them. He is of good figure, with a handsome face, delicate, almost effeminate rather than strong, but with clear-cut features whose mobility evinces the painstaking prepara-

of the emotions. And above all, he has the inborn estimate of the true gentleman, so that his acting becomes all the mo.e natural. Anyone at all familiar with the story has a good notion of the character and propensities of Sieur Gaston de Marsac, and it is praise enough to say that Mr. Bellew gives flesh and blood to the best conception of the Weyman hero. And if we say that much for the star, what must we say of the people who with him give life to the pictures that serve to tral committee, in the preparation of a illustrate what is one of the first, and probably the best of the long list of quasithe central committee, submitting an act historical romances that have been lighting which will be offered to the legislature up for us some of the byways of the centuries when swords and chivalry were more familiar things than newspapers and theaters? The supporting company has been carefully picked and well drilled, so that the men and women move through the play with grace or swagger or earnestness as the part requires. Miss Gretchen Lyons is handsome and imperious and as nearly realizes the ideal of M'lle de la Vire as does the star that of her "knight with the forlorn countenance" who abducts her, rescues her and finally weds her. performance. Miss Janet Ford gets a good deal out of the small part of Mathurine and Miss Louisa Closser does the rather difficult role of Fanchette excellently. The play itself is loosely put together. It lacks continuity, and much of the action of the story has been sacrificed in order to condense the long novel into the limits of a play. Nor does it at all appear that the dramatist seized on the really dramatic incidents for her purposes. Yet this may not be wondered at when one recalls the immense amount of material the novel contains, enough to stock a dozen plays and give each a sword combat as interesting as Business Dull. In nearly all of the business houses in the city, yesterday, business was dull. There was little doing at the banks and sellers and buyers at the stock yards did not walk fences and haggle over prices for any length of time. Business was transacted as rapidly as possible and then those who could sought shelter. There was some demand for heavy overshoes but even this trade did not seem to liven up affairs on the streets.

Sewer Brenks Again. The sewer in the alley between Twentythird and Twenty-fourth streets broke at E street yesterday and the city officials were notified. This sewer has been a constant annoyance to the city ever since it was constructed. The break of yesterday hardly can be repaired until warmer weather sets in but the city engineer will do the best he can to patch up the break.
