This rumor was confirmed soon after 2, when the caucus adjourned.

Addicks Gives Reasons.

Mr. Addicks' statement to the caucus was as follows:

My advent in Delaware politics more than fourteen years ago was preceded by republican defeat and disaster dating practically from the birth of the party itself. Whatever accidental advantage was held in those long years was due alone to some outbreak of factionalism in the ranks of our opponents and not to any inherent strength or confidence on the part of republicans themselves. Since 1952 this state has been uniformly republican.

Owing, however, to the bitterness and strife which has arisen within our own ranks, we have failed in securing all those advantages that have justly belonged to a party with such a continuous and brilliant record of overwhelming success.

The cause assigned for this strife has been universally claimed to be my candidacy for the senate of the United States, it has been claimed everywhere that with this obstacle to party unity removed, conflicting elements would coalesce and the My advent in Delaware politics more than
