BALL MAGNATES BEGIN MEET

Discuss Formal Business, but Make No Decision Anent American Circuit.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The American association owners, after a session of several hours today, finally adjourned until tomorrow without reaching any decision regarding the question of circuits.

According to President Hickey the invasion of Chicago was not even discussed and it can be said, on good authority, that, barring unexpected developments, the circuit will remain the same as last season. Owing to the late arrival of President Lennon of the St. Paul club the session was not begun until this morning. A short meeting of the directors preceded the regular session of the club owners, which spent the last part of the afternoon and a good part of the evening in executive session. CHICAGO, Feb. 8.-The American asso-good part of the evening in executive session.

Representatives from every club in the league were present, as follows: Columbus, T. J. Bryce and Eddle Schoenhorn; Milwaukee, C. S. Havenor; Louisville, George Tebeau; Kansas City, Dale Gear and Al Buell; St. Paul, George E. Lennon and M. J. Keily; Minneapolls, Ed A. Johnston and Walter Wilmot; Toledo, C. J. Strobel; indianapolis, C. S. Kaschaupt, W. H. Watkins of Indianapolis, who was the only owner absent, was detained to look after the pending legislation to allow Sunday base ball in Indiana.

The first business transacted by the club owners was to formally award the pennant to the Indianapolis club. The rest of the time was taken up largely by discussions on proposed changes in the constitution.

The work, according to President Hickey, who presided, was all of a routine nature.

CHECKING ELECTRICAL FIRES

integuards Essential to the Prope Protection of Property from Current Flashes.

Although electrical fires are on the inrease, says the New York Post, experts believe that many losses attributed to such causes do not so originate, but are ascribed to that hazard for want of some better explanation. H. J. Blakeslee, electrical inspector of the Hartford Board of Fire Underwriters, with other experts, who have ment must include the signing of an agree- | carefully studied the electrical fire loss in large cities, thinks that much may be done ment with the teamsters for two years, by the owners of the buildings where the to safeguard property if the public is properly informed concerning the more common perils. Most of the dwelling loss is due to improper installation, which might be remedied at trifling expense were people careful to see that standard equipment was used.

In a statement made to the Post, Mr. Blakeslee said: "Decided progress has been made during the last few years in reducing the electrical fire hazard. It is, I think, constantly being reduced. Unquestionably, many fires are widely reported as of electrical origin which are not due to that cause at all. I have had a number of such cases in my own territory. The average person discovers the cause of a fire in a manner similar to the method of diagosis employed by the young doctor, who found that the trouble which his patient was expertending all came from eating a borse because there was a saddle under the bed. If there are any wires to be found in a building after a fire, even bell wires, the layman who sees them unhesitatingly asserts that he knows what caused the trouble.

"Electrical fires are not, prevailing notions to the contrary notwithstanding, mysterious affairs. They are accountable for by natural, clearly defined laws, which are as easily recognized as those of gravitation. I believe that electricity is the safest method of illumination in use today. One ever, is the disturbance of wires after their proper installation by persons ignorant of possible results. And also the dangerous work of the person who knows 'something' "Property owners should always take it upon themselves to know personally that their electrical work is being properly installed, either through the employment of a competent person who will have the owner's interest solely in view, or through satisfying themselves that the inspection provided in their locality is adequate. Security depends entirely upon the proper casing workers, oleo workers and the meat installation which may be so planned as to cutters, including the cutters in retail es- exclude the possibility of fire. Room. We wonder, says American Medicine, 13 the fact that patients and their friends ignore the contagiousness of pneumonia is often due to professional negligence. An exaggerated conception of the contagiousness of tuberculosis is held by the lay world, but pneumonia is, of course, far more contagious. And patients and profession alike have not realized the new fact that the mortality of pneumonia is in some cities and parts of the country higher than that of tuberculosis. Dr. Reynolds of Chicago returns to this lesson and emphasizes the necessity of the following, measures: Pneumonia is a highly contagious disease, the cause of which is a micro-organism in the sputa of those suffering from the malady, and contracted by inhaling this germ.' Therefore, the same care should be taken to collect and destroy the sputa that is taken in pulmonary tuberculosis, or in diphtheria or influenza. During the illness the greatest pains should be taken to prevent soiling bedclothing, carpets or furniture with the sputa, and after the illness the patient's room should be thoroughly cleansed and ventilated. The fact that the disease is most prevalent in the winter season, when people the beginning of the fifth week of the strike are most crowded together and live much of the trolley men. The day was extremely of the time in badly ventilated apartments, makes obvious the necessity of thorough ventilation of houses, offices, factories A light snow fell, which soon turned into theaters, churches, passenger cars and a heavy downpour of rain, and this aided other public places, in order that the air materially in keeping the people from the which must be breathed may be kept clean
