SENTIMENT EXPRESSED IN RESOLUTION

Proposed New Engine Houses and Garbage Crematories Bring Out Strong Speeches Against the Plan.

At its meeting Wednesday night the Southwestern Improvement club went derisively on record against any voting of bonds for a new engine bouse, for crematories, or for any other purpose not actually a crying necessity. A resolution to such an end was presented by R. W. Dyball and unanimously adopted, and one clause provided that copies of it be sent to the mayor and each member of the city council. President W. H. Green brought the matter before the meeting by referring to the recommendation in Mayor Moores' message regarding the engine house, and to City Engineer Rosewater's proposal as to the crematories. He said that he had noticed that the only men who had come up before the Board of Equalization this time objecting to their taxes were the jobbers of the wholesale district. He did not favor repaying that action by giving them a new engine house down there, especially when would result in the saving of only enough insurance to support two firemen. As to the crematories, Mr. Green said that they were not essential, and he did not

City Attorney Connell was asked for his epinion on this and said: "Every man of us knows what a burden is debt, and it is just as much of a load for this city. After my own personal experience in life I shall advise my boys as the very first of business principles to keep out of debt. Eccentric old Rardolph of Roanoke spoke truly when he sand that the true philosopher's stone was 'Pay as you go.' I should be a happier man tonight if my credit hadn't been too good fifteen years ago. But I intend to get out of debt, and favor a similar policy for the city. If we cannot get Omaha out of debt let us at least not pile up any more debt let us at least not pile up any more

"As regards the engine house, we have got along without it fairly well till now, Bill Legalizing Game in Indiana and let us wait till we are in a little better shape before building it. As for the cremstories, they are in the first place an experiment anywhere, and we have no money to spend on experiments. Then they are not commonly used by cities yet, and we do not wish to rush in and lose money testing them. Again, Omaha does not actually need them. With the big river flowing by and the great expanse of open ground around us we have very fair facilities that take the place of crematories, and considering the condition of the city's debt now, we should not add on this extra burden. How can taxes ever become less if we continue to increase the debts? Interest is a far more formidable burden than many realize. People talk about the city administrations being responsible for the burdens, but that is the smallest part of it. et any party govern the city, democrats or republicans or populists. That expense will be only 8 per cent of our burdens, while the other 92 per cent will come from these bonds we have voted from time to for improvements that we could it

Friends of Sunday base ball claim they will have three more votes for the new measure than for the old, which would pass it in the senate.
