McDaniels' throat was gashed in two separate places, and it is said that the nature of the wounds preclude them having been self-inflicted. The carotid artery was found to have been completely severed, and if this had been the case before McDaniels rushed out of the house there would have been, it is said, greater evidences of blood about the premises. McDaniels is known to have cried out after he ran from the house, and this, physicians say, would have been im-possible had his windpipe been cut before he ran out of the house. > REJECT THE DITCH PROPOSAL County Board Decides .That the county authorities lasting the greater part of yesterday's session the Board of County Supervisors decided to reject the petition for the drainage ditches in Rockford township, which were to form part of the drainplans, proposed to have its headquarters This action was the result of County Atage system planned by Harrison county. torney Killpack advising the supervisors that the proper procedure would be for Harrison and Pottawattamie counties to unite in the formation of a drainage district for the joint construction of the proposed waterways. A joint petition by the persons interested in both counties will have to be secured and submitted to the hoard. Unless the board decides to hold a special session before then no action will be taken in the matter until the regular meeting in April.

Proper Steps Have Not Been Taken. After a conference with the Harrison

According to the plan proposed the expense of constructing the ditches in Pottawattamie county, including the amount of damages claimed by owners of land through which the waterways were to be made, would have amounted to about $70,000. In order to carry off the water from Harrison county the portions of the ditches in Pottawattamie county would have to be considerably more extensive than those in Harrison county. this would increase the expense of the work in this county and the board decided that it would be unfair to require the farmers benefited in this county to pay a larger proportion than the Harricounty people. By forming a joint drainage district the entire cost of the work can be equally assessed in both coun-
