

CONDITION OF OMAHA'S TRADE

Volume of Business for the Week Very Good Considering the Cold Weather

MORE ACTIVITY LOOKED FOR THIS WEEK

Values on Practically All Kinds of Goods in a Very Strong Position, with the Tendency in Favor of Higher Prices.

In spite of the extreme cold weather of last week, Omaha's trade was very good. The volume of business for the week was very good considering the cold weather. The market for practically all kinds of goods is in a very strong position, with the tendency in favor of higher prices.

Another feature which is materially stimulating activity in the market is the upward tendency of prices on nearly all classes of goods. Retailers are beginning to buy early this year, and they are beginning to buy early this year, and they are beginning to buy early this year.

There is no doubt that the fact that prices on most classes of goods are in a very strong position. The fluctuations that have taken place during the week, such as the view are nearly all in the direction of higher prices and those who are best posted on the general situation are of the opinion that something happens to materially change the general situation, such as the shortage of cars, so that the supply of many commodities will be materially reduced.

Advances in Sugar. The sugar market may be quoted as active and advancing. It was up 1/2c on Tuesday of last week and a like amount on Friday, making a total advance of 1c over the week.

The market on seal roe advanced 1/2c, which was caused by a sharp rise in the price of the seal. Beans in another line which has been marked up during the week. The market for seal roe advanced 1/2c, which was caused by a sharp rise in the price of the seal.
