No Politics in Move.

The present incumbent of the office, Lee Herdman of Omaha, is a democrat. He was appointed by the democratic supreme court for a term of four years and his term, therefore, expires within about ten months. when Judge Sullivan's term expires. If a democrat is elected again the court would still remain democratic, in which case another democratic clerk would naturally be appointed; but if, as the probabilities are, Judge Sullivan is succeeded by a republicen, the majority of the court would be republican and it is a safe venture to say that the clerk would be of the same party. Then Mr. Herdman would step out.

This bill contains an emergency claim which if the bill passes will permit its immediate operation instead of having to wait the regulation period of three months. The chances are that if passed the emergency clause would obtain, in which case the fees would be at once reduced

Mr. Good's assertion that the bill contains no politics can easily be accepted in view of all the circumstances. The prospects for the success of this bill, it must be admitted, are more than fair. This legislature has started out to make a name for economy and while in street parlance it may be "overlooking some good bets," this opportunity certainly will, it is thought, be considered too good to es-

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.-Assistant District Attorney Krotel said today that the parish books of the Roman Catholic churches in the neighborhood known as "Little Italy" will figure largely in future developments of the Italian fraud cases. He said the records of the churches show that the priests have been victims of the conspirators as well as the insurance company and have been duped into administering the rites of the church to persons whose real identity was other than the priest was led to believe. In one or two instances he has found evidence that a priest has unwittingly given a certificate for burial in Calvary cemetery in the name of a man or woman not yet dead.
