Make Mrs Fairbanks Eigible for Second Term as President-General.

Women Claim that Votes are Miscounted and Wish Questions Respened by Congress, but Chair Rules Otherwise.

'ASHINGTON, Feb. 24 .- The first skirmish in the campaign for president general began at the outset of today's session of the National Society of the Daughters of proposed amendments to the constitution now definitely known to have been six in were taken up.

section I, the words "except the president general, who shall not hold the same office jured follows: for more than two terms successively."

Amend the Amendment.

This amendment was designed to make Mrs. Pairbanks, the present president general, eligible for re-election. Its acceptance was moved by Miss Miller of the District of Columbia and seconded by Mrs. Murphy of Cincinnati. Mrs. Weed of Montana wanted the language of the amendment made clearer, and moved to amend the amendment by making the latter read: Except the president general, who shall be eligible to this office for two terms, regardless of her previous service.

This move evoked loud applicase. At this crushed, not serious.

passed by a vote of 443 to 68. It reads: No person shall boid office more than two terms successively and no one shall be eligible to hold office in the National society until she has been a member of the National society we years, except the president general, who shall be eligible to ribis office for two consecutive terms regardless of her previous services in other offices on the national board.

Then the fighting began anew. A number of delegates claimed that the amendment was subject to misconstruction and that it established a dangerous precedent.

Members Enter Protests.

One delegate took the rostrum to explain that it was a misconception to say that a woman who had not held other ustional offices would not be eligible to the office of president-general. Instantly neveral of the delegates rose to protest.

Mrs. McLean, who had not taken any part in the vote on the amendment, rose to a question of personal privilege. "I desire to announce," she said, "that I did not but which is not due until March 15, vote on either side, because in accordance with my previous statement, I felt I must not oppose the original amendment and because I could not vote for the substitute amendment for constitutional reasons."

Mrs. Morgan of Connecticut asked if the amendment just passed meant two terms of the protocol. regardless of any previous service. Mrs. Pairbanks replied that it meant "two consecutive terms and two only."

The congress took up the second amendment which also excepted the treasurergeneral from the inhibition in the helding preferential treatment. The suggestion has of the same office for more than two successive terms.

Mrs. Smith of California moved its Mrs. Donald McLean protested against the consideration of persons instead of the constitution. She said it marked a degeneration in the methods of the congress. "I wish." she declared, "that the congress would attend to its business in the consideration of the constitution. An amendment passed by the last congress by a large majority should not be overturned at this congress."

The amendment was tabled by a rising Mrs. McLean protested that the negative side of the question had not been counted.

Some of those who had been standing in front of her, she said, had been counted in the affirmative, but they did not know what they were voting for. "It is really too bad," replied Mrs. Fair-the vote was then raised and the parliamentarian, Mrs. Sherman of Chicago, was called to explain the parliamentary law as laid down by the standard authority of the society. This sustained the vote.

The rest of the morning session was occupied with a discussion of proposed limitations on the selection of the vice presidents-general. The consideration of proposed amendments to the constitution took up the time of the congress at its night session. Only one of these received favorable action, that preposed by Gertrude B. Darwin. treasurer general, which provided that the incumbent of that position shall hold office until her successor has secured bonds. men who have been duly accepted by the national board of management. The other officers are to hold office until their suc. scrmon cessors are elected.

There was considerable debate over this amendment, enlivened in one instance by had incorporated certain words in the pro- | diocese posed amendment to distort its meaning and deceive the delegates. This, however, friends or associates.

Churchill Williams Publishes Another Novel Entitled "The Captain "

'MISSISSIPPI BUBBLE" IN ENGLAND

Complete Book on Germany by an Experienced Newspaper Correspondent-A Story of Friendship

for the Filipinos.

"The Captain," by Churchill Williams, author of "J. Devlin-Boss," just published by the Lothrop Publishing company, has four fine illustrations by Arthur I. Keller. In this novel Mr. Williams seems to have repeated his success with his story of city politics, "J. Devlin-Boss." The present story is an able romance dealing with life on the eve of the civil war and during it Most of the people come from south of Mason-Dixon's line, and we see the struggle from their standpoint and sympathing with their difficulties in taking sides for or against the union. The great figure of the captain, who will be at once recognized as General Grant, dominates the story and offers the finest portrait of that unique leader to be found in American fiction. The political events leading up the great struggle and the battle scenes themselves are drawn in a masterful way.

"The Mississippi Bubble," Emerson Hough's novel, based on the life of John Law, which has had a large sale in this country and, in the report of the Bookman is among the four most popular books for the whole past year, will be published in England by Methuen & Co., Ltd. The English publishers will bring out a-large first edition in the autumn. Besides the book's success in the United States, Mr. on the continent Mr. von Schlerbrand had

It is said that proof will be presented in the chamber of deputies fixing forgeries in the Dreyfus persecution upon certain government of ficials. It is further stated that the parliament of Prance will be called upon to order an investigation and to prosecut the guilty parties. These dispatches lend unexpected importance and significance to "The Revelation of An International Spy oncerning the "Mystery of the Dreyfus Case," which appears in Pearson's magasine for March. Monsieur A. V. Pearson's "Spy" draws a most astounding conclusion has increased the number of words by as to the motive behind the case.
