LINK IN BURLINGTON SYSTEM

Project to Build from Achland to Sioux City is Revived.

SURVEYING PARTY STARTS OVER ROUTE

Line is Designed to Connect Great Northern and Burlington and Tap Some New Territery for Hill.

Things look bright for the building of a branch line from Ashland-to Sioux City by the Burlington this year. Several years ago a line was surveyed, but here the work ceased. This spring a surveying party was started out again and a route is being definitely located.

Since J. J. Hill has taken the control of the Burlington nothing could be more natural than that he should look to this road as an outlet for the Pacific Short line, which is an isolated road of the Great Northern extending through 150 miles of northeastern Nebraska. At its western terminus it connects with the Black Hills line of the Northwestern and runs east to Sloux City. With the building of the branch from Ashland the road would be given an outlet from Sloux City over the lines of the Hill system.

May Begin in Three Months.

In speaking of the building of the line, a prominent Burlington official said: "While we have heard nothing definite as to the building of this branch, I am almost certain that It will be done. It would not surprise me to hear of its being begun within three months. The road has been looking toward Sloux City for several years and the time seems propitious now for something to be done.

"The line as contemplated will only be about twenty-five miles longer than other Omaha-Sioux City lines and it will put the Burlington in touch with a good portion of the traffic between the two cities.

"The country that the line is to pass through is very productive and will furnish quite a bit of local business. Ever since talk of our building this line was started the towns along the route have been wild about the idea. They think that the coming of the Burlington will mean to them increased railroad service and be a good thing for the community."

Master Mechanics and Supers.

The Master Mechanics and Superintendents' association of the Burlington system is arranging for a three days' convention at the Paxton this week. The meeting will begin Wednesday and continue through Priday. The indications are for a large attendance, with representatives from Chi cago and throughout the extent of the Burlington system.

The damage to the bridge over the Platte was quite great and it took more time than had been expected to repair it because of the high water caused by the ice gorges. Detective Savage yesterday arrested William Murphy. When searched six razors, eight knives and a revolver, all the property being new, were found in Murphy's clothing. The prisoner is suspected of being an lowa burglar. The property which was found upon him is supposed to be a portion of the plunder stolen from the store of Edwards & Bradford at Bartlett, Is., and which had been reported to the Omaha police department. The Iowa store was relieved of 200 knives and razors.

Murphy says the property was given to him by a stranger to seil. He denies that he has been in lowa. The officers are of the opinion that the Bartlett plunder has been "planted" in this city and they will hold Murphy until they have fully satisfied themselves that he is not wanted for bur
