Legislative Gossip.

Eggenburger of Fillmore is going about the legislative halls on a still hunt for the "fellow that looks like me." Eggenburger is a fusionist and was mentioned with those of the minority who were absent from their places in the house last Friday when the Caldwell and Thompson amendments to sections 87 and 89 of the revenue bill were voted on. Mr. Eggenburger denies that he was absent, but says he "was in his scat and voting."

The appropriation bills, according to present plans, will be acted on by the house when the revenue bill is out of the way. It begins to look as if this would not be before the last of the week, if that early. Of course it cannot yet be determined what will be the result of the Lancaster county delegation's effort to insert in the general appropriation bill that little $50,-966 item for the purchase of the Conservatory of Music, to be conducted under the auspices of the State university, but from the success that delegation has bad in effecting changes to its advantage in the salaries appropriation bill, it might be supposed the $50,000 bagatelle will be slipped In. Representative Koetter of Douglas is commonly looked upon as the friend and exponent of organized labor in the house; in fact, Mr. Koetter has been "charged up" to organized labor. But organized labor does not seem quite willing to "stand for the account. Since certain of Mr. Koetter's official acts, particularly that in voting against the Caldwell amendment to the revenue bill, commonly endorsed by organized labor, this element has taken occasion to express its disapproval of having Mr. Koetter "charged up" to it. A representative-official representative, it may be said-of organized labor this morning said: "We do not claim Mr. Koetter as our cfilcial representative. I feel quite certain he was neither nominated nor elected by virtue of organized labor's support. True, he carries a card, but sometimes even cards do not entitle a man to a front seat in the councils of organized labor. Actions speak louder than all the cards in the country. Mr. Koetter.' Railronds Win in Senate.

The senate has been put to the test and has lined up in favor of the railroads, shirking taxation for municipal purposes. The test came on S. F. 133, by Pemberton of Gage, providing for the election of a tax commissioner in cities of from 5,000 to 25, 000 inhabitants, and defining his duties. When the bill came up for discussion in the committee of the whole it had tacked onto it an amendment that the commissioner should use the assessment returned by the State Board of Equalization on railroad terminal property. The bill was then ordered engrossed for third reading. Senator Pemberton himself offered the amendment. When asked his reasons for recommending the amendment, Senator Pemberton said he did it because he wanted the bill to pass the house, and it would take the amendment to do this.

where the stock was coming from. He thought that some person was selling short, and he thought that it would be interesting to squeeze that person. It was the mistake of Mr. Keene's lifetime. The percon in the question was E. H. Harriman, a man who had in his treasury more Southern Pacific stock than even Mr. Keens and his powerful pool would care to buy, and a person moreover who if control of Southern Pacific once passed out of his hands could turn around and make Southern Pacific worth less than $25 per share.

Keene's Weak Point.

It was never a part of Mr. Harriman's plan to let Southern Pacific pass out of of $1,800; an assistant at $900 a year; a his hands. He knew, what Mr. Keene did not know, namely that there was coming on the street a period of money stringency. for a raise in salary of the head nurse of He knew that during such a period thousands of shares of Southern Pacific would be thrown into the street and the buyers for this stock would be few and far between. He knew that he could stay short of the market until this time came and buy at bargain prices the stock that he had already sold to Mr. Keene and his friends. Therefore he sold and sold heavily. amendments went into effect. There was the pool fully into his confidence. They political parties having used every effort had surrendered all discretion in the matter to secure full representation so as to make of the pool stock into Mr. Keene's hands, the best showing in case of a division on They were absolutely guided by his word. party lines. Tight money came. It swept upon the those three weeks every cent that they some of the democrats recording themselves had been induced to put into the Wall against it. sfreet market. He was careful ship of the zone, while the treaty proand had made the control of the road safe beyond a doubt.

Harriman in Control

Mr. Harriman then announced through erty and franchises of any such railroad his bankers that he had made this purchase ompany or corporation the State Board of of Southern Pacific stock, and that anyone Equalization and Assessment shall add the who wanted control of Southern Pacific market or actual value of its stocks, and would have to buy it from E. Wall street represented by its bonds and mortgage in began to realize that Harriman had sold debtedness and deduct therefrom the value Keene to a standstill. The stock went of its tangible property outside of its right down again. Rumors began to spread that the Southern Pacific pool had gone to pieces. Mr. Keene vigorously denied it. his and the Caldwell amendment was that The street took this as a good reason Morgan to make the point of no quorum, for believing that it was so and kept on believing that it'was so until a couple of weeks ago.

Since then events have crowded on one another in the history of Southern Pacific pool. On March 5 it leaked out that Edward Lauterbach had served papers on amendment, escape taxation. Caldwell is Alexander Millar, secretary of the Union Pacific, and then immediately withdrawn the papers. Those papers were an injunction to restrain Union Pacific from voting the 900,000 shares of Southern Pacific stock which were held in its treasury at the annual meeting on April 8. Rumors flew thick and last. It was stated, and it has since been corroborated that Messrs. Keene and Harriman had, figuratively speaking, come to blows. Mr. Keene had accused Mr. Harriman of bad faith in selling stock to the pool, and in refusing to help the pool out by declaring the dividend. Mr. Harriman promptly told Mr. Keene that Southern Pacific belonged to Union Pacific and to Mr. Harriman, and that those two interests would do with it whatever they thought fit. On March 11 Mr. Keene sent out his call for proxies. In it he declared that Mr. Harriman and the Union Pacific management were practically robbing the stockholders of Southern Pacific. He declared that Union Pacific intended to use the earnings of the other road to build up the Central Pacific branch, and then finally to take over Central Pacific and make it a part of Union Pacific, leaving the rest of the Southern Pacific system out in the cold. The call for proxies was a mass of figures, and if it is true that figures never lie, Union Pacific is a convicted thief.

May Come Out in Court. The sequel to this remarkant fight will be found in the report of the annual meeting of April 8, and probably in the records of the law courts after that date. The Southern Pacific pool will stand together. They do not hope, even in their wildest moments, to wrest control of Southern Pacific from the Harriman grasp. They do hope to make such a protest that Union Parific and Mr. Harriman will be shamed into the payment of a dividend on Southern Pacific. If all else fails they are unassociation shall be paid into the state doubtedly willing to carry the matter into the courts on the ground that the earnings of Southern Pacific are being diverted to the benefit of an allen road, namely, Union Pacific. WASHINGTON, March 16 .- The senate pent six solid hours in executive asssion today voting on amendments to the Panama canal treaty. The greater part of the debate centered round the American defense of the canal, the democrats contending that the United States should be given the initiative in that respect, and the republicans urging that the interests of the country are sufficiently safeguarded by the treaty as it stands. A substitute for the provision placing the defense of the canal primarily in the hands of Colombia resulted in a test vote and the democrats cast a solid vote in support of the amendment, the republicans voting as solidly against it. The vote was 24 for to 46 against.

During the day Senator Morgan offered a number of his amendments, but none of them received more than ten or twelve votes. The treaty will be ratified tomorrow by a large majority and without amendment, as on the final ballot many of the democrats will vote for it. Before the executive session commenced

The senate then took up Senator Bacon's mendment for absolute control by the United States, and Mr. Bacon addressed the senate in support of it.

He was followed by other democratic senators, all favoring the Bacon amendment. This provision, it was asserted, furnished all the guarantees of American protection that could be reasonable demanded. During the discussion some of the Demcratic senators called attention to the instability of the South and Central American republics and urged that on this account it would be necessary for the United States to be constantly on the spot with its means of protection. The republicans replied that the people of all parties in the South and Central American countries have such great respect for the United States as to insure the protection of its property, whatever the party in power. Senator Teller thereppon offered an amendment retaining the language of article 23 as it stands, except the words "with the consent of Colombia," in the provisions permitting the intervention of the United States in case Colombia should prove unequal to the task of defending the canal, but it likewise was voted down, 46 to 24.
