CUBAN TREATY IN DANGER

Senate Fixes Two Dates for Protocol to Go Into Effect.

DOUBT AS TO BINDING RATIFICATION

Amendment Postponing Operation Held by Some to Entail a Setback in Official Approval by United States.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—From such imperfect readings of the treaty as can be had at this stage the State department officials have some doubt as to their ability to do anything whatever with the convention.

The amendments made by the senate, particularly that added to the ratifying article, may result in the complete loss of the treaty.

There are conflicting clauses which it may not be possible to reconcile. This is especially true of the amendment suspending the treaty till after its approval by the house.

This led to complications which are now vexing the departments here, as two different dates are fixed in the same article for the taking effect of the treaty.

The weight of opinion inclines to the belief that following the common law principle the last stipulation should govern, which would defer the operation of the treaty until after congressional action. But a more serious difficulty is pointed out as it is hardly regarded as feasible, and is certainly in violation of precedent to exchange ratifications of a document which is not a treaty, as this Cuban convention will not be, in the opinion of some of the State department people; until "the congress" has set its approval upon it.

If this view is correct, then the exchange of ratifications will have to be deferred until next winter at the earliest and this delay, it is thought, would cause the failure of the treaty in its present form, because of the inability of the negotiators to meet the requirement of article 21, which demands that the exchange take place before March 31.

It is possible that a way will be found out of this web of contrarities, and to that end the State department is working. The Cuban minister here evidently is dismayed at the situation and although he made every effort in his power to keep the facts from attracting attention, they developed fully today, even to the knowledge of his immediate compliance with the State department's suggestion that he cable President Palma suggesting an immediate calling together of the Cuban congress, which is now in recess.

Request Special Cuban Session.
 Acting Secretary of State Loomis and Mr. Queenan, the Cuban minister, after discussing the prospects of the ratification of the Cuban treaty within the time limit today, decided to cable President Palma, requesting him to call the Cuban congress into extraordinary session immediately for this purpose, as that body otherwise would not meet until April 7, seven days after the expiration of the legal time limit for the exchange of ratifications.

Court Decides Against Officers.
 The district supreme court today refused First Lieutenant Frank E. Edwards and Second Lieutenant Henry M. Daugherty of the artillery corps, who petitioned for a writ of mandamus to compel the secretary of war and the adjutant general of the army to restore them to the numbers they formerly held in the list of their respective grades.

The decision of the court affects many other officers. Both men are West Pointers.

Board to Name General Staff.
 The War department today issued a general order convening a board to meet on

PEOPLE CHEER CHAMBERLAIN

Colonial Secretary Receives London's Congratulations in Guild Hall.

TALKS OF A UNITED SOUTH AFRICA

Nothing to Prevent Vast Domain in the Dark Continent Under the Flag of the British Empire.

LONDON, March 20.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain today received the city of London's congratulations on his mission to South Africa in the Guild hall, where Lord Mayor Samuel and the corporation presented him with an address of welcome in the presence of a large gathering of distinguished representatives of politics, the services, art, science, the church, the law and the drama.

Among those present were Premier Balfour, most of the cabinet ministers, the archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Roberts, the duke of Pife, the duke of Argyll, Lord Strathcona, Lord Liston, Signor Marconi, Sir Thomas Lipton and Sir Henry Irving.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain received a remarkable welcome from the expectant crowds who in their enthusiasm here and there broke through the police lines and surrounded the carriage.

The lord mayor, lady mayors and the corporation officers met Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain in the library where a procession was formed, headed by trumpeters, and proceeding to the Guild hall, in which the address extolling the secretary's service in South Africa was presented.

Greeted with Great Enthusiasm.
 Great enthusiasm greeted Mr. Chamberlain on his arising to reply. The secretary's speech was largely a reiteration of his recent speech at Southampton. He said he was convinced that everything was in train for a united South Africa under the British flag.

"In the words of my friend, General DeLaroy," said Mr. Chamberlain, "the British will be as loyal to their new government as they were to the old."

The secretary added that he found no trace in South Africa of vindictiveness. He took upon him the blame for the disfigured result of the appeal to arms and continued:

"The only fruit which we desire from the war is the friendship of those who were so recently fighting us."

The conciliatory spirit displayed in this sentence pervaded the entire speech.

Subsequently Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain were entertained by the lord mayor at luncheon in the mansion house.

Among the guests at the Mansion house were Ambassador Choate and Marquis de Soveral, the Portuguese minister, besides those already mentioned as present at the Guild hall.

Mr. Chamberlain in his address declared that the present was a critical period in the history of the empire and the course taken now by the empire and the colonies would probably settle for all time the question whether the empire was to be consolidated and maintained.

NEW CLAIM SET UP of lease, consolidation, merger, community of interest or ownership of stock.

 In conclusion he said:
 When the Northern Securities company had acquired a majority of the stock of the two railroad companies it did not any more certainly or firmly control the policy of the two railroads than did Mr. Hill and his associates under the former conditions. It is especially credible that no idea of any pooling or merger in the sense charged in the bill of complaint ever entered the head of any of them.
 Only Mutualities of Interest.
 Whatever influence they desired in both companies they already possessed. They existed mutually of interest, and so far as control that depended upon moral and not upon legal conditions was concerned, they possessed that. The objects, motives and purposes of the parties were entirely different from the criminal ones charged by the government. Those motives and purposes are reasonable, intelligent, creditable to the hearts and consciences of the actors and in no wise injurious to the public.
 They did not change in any practical way the situation, so far as competition between the two companies was concerned. They did not change the legal status of one company toward the other, nor in any wise interfere with the internal organization, rights, privileges or duties of either company.
 If it is said that the arrangement put it in the power of the Northern Securities company to control the policy and management of both companies, the answer is that that is an incidental result and not the direct object of the transaction.
 Neither of the railroad companies, as such, participated in any way in the formation of the securities company, and neither the city council. I believe that when we have to pay the fiddler we should be allowed to do the dancing."

 Mr. Cornish condemned the Gilbert primary election law, which, he said, destroyed the secrecy of the ballot and removed the sole protection of the laboring man, and the rule adopted by the republican city central committee, making candidates for all offices choose sides either under the Moores or anti-Moores delegations. "Every candidate for the council who receives the highest number of votes should receive the support of the delegation, regardless of what side of the ticket he is on," he asserted, and the sentiment was loudly applauded.
