GONE TO " WATERY GRAVE to Declares an Anonymous Writer, but it May Be ostmen Monday which may be the beginning of a tragic tale. The envelope was a square one, considerably soiled and was inscribed in pencil in a fairly good hand: Will the postman that collects this please hand it to a news reporter, for am gone forever; good bye. This is $80) take, it is real." The letter is written in tak on a round, legible hand and states in substance that the writer intends to take her own iffe by finding a watery grave because of a broken heart. It appears that she is much perturbed over the fact that her "Dear Oille" has married someone else and that he is evidently in the army at Washakis. The only troops at Fort Washakle is a company of the Tenth United States cavalry, colored, On the reverse side of the letter to a significant posteript which says: "I welle this before ending my life so a reporter can publish it, so that Oilie can see what a grand mistake a man can make when he fondles a woman's love and filts her.
