

PALM SUNDAY STILL LIVES

Commemoration of Jesus' Triumphant Entry is General.

OMAHA'S DEVOUT RICHLY REWARDED

Churches Provide Special Music as Recompense for Large Attendance Despite Unfavorable Weather Conditions.

"On the next day much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, took branches of palm trees and went forth to meet Him, and cried: Hosanna, Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord."

Devout Omaha filled its cathedrals and its churches yesterday with the stalks of the historic green, and "The Palm," "Jerusalem" and "Ye That Love the Lord" were its worshipful hearts, responsive to the gentle utterances of many singers. Despite a wind that made navigation difficult if not even hazardous, the morning services were marked by unusually large attendance and the audiences were rewarded, almost without exception, by special music as well as with sermons inspired by the utterances of the doctored King of the Jews as He gazed down upon a city that was to crucify Him and reap its reward in a destruction that should leave not one stone upon another.

HE APPLIES HIS TEXT LOCALLY.

Rev. Jenks Delivers Another Sermon on Omaha Conditions.

Rev. Edwin Hart Jenks of the First Presbyterian church took for his text yesterday morning Luke 19:42. "The things that belong to the city's peace." He said in part: "I do not like to criticize our beautiful city of Omaha, nor pick out its faults. We expect to see that condition that will contribute to its prosperity and growth. We should unite in securing and inviting those enterprises that will make it a great city. I am convinced that the city is not growing with that rapidity that it should, with the promise that came a few years ago, with the building of so many magnificent wholesale houses. Some say that taxation is so extreme that business is bound to go elsewhere. I am not a business man and may speak unadvisedly of these things. But I do know that Omaha is the great gateway to the west, and that it is not inviting to itself enterprises or undertakings that will win to us the great industrial capitals of the nation. When cities call for enterprises it too must provide something that the man, the woman and the children; things that belong to the city and will perpetuate its prosperity. Prosperity puts stiffening and courage into a man. The men of the city must stand together for the advancement of enterprises which bring to it the things that are a city's peace.

"These are mental and moral development. The public schools of Omaha are its pride. On its crowning point stands an ideal school house and from its top floats the Star Spangled Banner. It is a city of good streets and beautiful homes, which indicates a spirit of upright and moral energy, and thus invites a population that is yet bound to come of the brightest and best.

"The things which belong to a city's peace are its moral energy. The effort to create higher ideals of manhood and womanhood should be our chief aim. The church ought to make the most of everything that time cannot change, or time sweep away. The highest stamp of a city is the moral and spiritual elements that belong to man. I believe that this city will be better if those things which belong to Jesus Christ and not to man are not subordinated to evil. I do believe that this city will soon be a city of a better people. It is in the line of a life of industrial development that will make it so. Let us then begin the purification of its policies. Let us gather under Christ's wings. Improve in those things that will make us into one Christian fellowship."

HILL BELIEVES IN PREPARATION.

Says that it Enables Man to Grasp His Opportunities.

At the First Christian church Sunday morning Rev. Hill spoke on "Opportunity." "Every man," he declared, "is the master of his own destiny, and must play his own part in the life of the world. Success can be attained through man and through God. Opportunity is God-given and when once evident should be grasped before it is gone. The unsuccessful are prone to point at their more successful co-worker and say that he has been blessed with good luck. But luck has played no part in the making of man's success. Preparation is more than half of the battle, for once prepared, a man grasps the opportunity and moulds it to suit his own ambitions.

"The humble man and the lowly may reach great heights by combining the opportunities of God with the preparation of man. This is a world wherein one must work to achieve and, having once prepared, the opportunity will not be lacking.

"Look at Cromwell, Washington, Grant and Sherman. They rose from humble walks of life through their very preparation. When the opportunity came they were prepared and they grasped it and achieved the end that they had prepared for. Franklin and Lincoln were great men and they, too, started from the ranks and rose because of this selfsame preparation.

"Preparation makes man the master of opportunity and opportunity is never lacking where man has once prepared for it."

SOULS' DESTRUCTION IS SADDER.

Trinity's Speaker Says City's Destruction is Not the Worst.

Robert E. Lee Craig preached at Trinity cathedral yesterday morning, taking for his subject the words, "Thou knowest not the time of thy visitation." Quantities of vast palms decorated the cathedral from the entrance to the altar, and the choir was half encircled by the masses of light green. The preacher spoke of Jesus weeping over the city which had rejected Him, and thus forever sealed its doom, and in the passage found an application to humanity. In part, he said:

"Christ, the King, is ever coming to each one very really and very closely. He comes to us in His church, in His word, in His sacraments, by the dealings of His providence and by His holy spirit, and we either know Him and obey His voice and welcome His presence, or else we are closing our ears and our hearts against Him and know not the time of our divine visitation. Think that that time will last forever. It is sadder still to see immortal souls and lives subject to everlasting existence and capable of such infinite happiness, doomed to destruction. I do not wonder there is much rejoicing among the angels of God over the sinner who repents. Oh, my soul, shall thou be lost in the twinkling of an eye because thou knowest not the time of thy visitation?"

"Remember that each one of us has our day of grace, our day of salvation, and let no man or woman be bold enough to think that that time will last forever. Time and opportunity are given to all alike. Christ speaks to us, now in a still, small voice, and He comes to us in every sacrament, service and sermon in His church. Every Sunday He would enter into the citadel of thy heart and abide there."

SIXTEEN NAMES ARE ADDED.

First Congregational Lengthens Its Roll of Members.

Communion Sunday was observed by the members of the First Congregational church Sunday morning, when that ordinance was administered to the members of that denomination, and appropriate sermons were preached by the pastor, Rev. H. C. Herrick. The pastor reminded his congregation of the event which they were about to observe and admonished that each should live a life of self-sacrifice and benevolence. He also reminded his auditors that everything would rather point out its own sin. Special music was rendered by the choir.

Redden, which occurred in Mamie Perry's place on Capitol avenue, near the reformatory, Sunday afternoon. AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Business Men Express Themselves in Favor of Paving Railroad Avenue

STREET CAR LINE MAY FOLLOW PAVEMENT

If Street is Paved to South City Limits Sary County May Macadamize to Fort Crook and Bellevue.

A dozen or more business men have expressed themselves in favor of voting bonds for paving Railroad avenue. "The cost," said one, "will not compare with the benefit. The merchant in South Omaha will be benefited and the taxpayers can well afford to fix up this road so that it will be in a passable condition at all seasons of the year."

Another said that with the laying of the pavement the street car line would be extended to the south city limits. The extension of the car line has long been sought for and now that there is a chance for a paved street there is no doubt that the street car people will carry out a promise made long ago.

Residents of Albright assert that the paving of the street and the extension of the car line tend greatly to build up the southern and southeastern portions of the city. At the same time this building up is going on farmer traffic will be diverted to the city. As the city is to pay two-thirds of the cost of the proposed pavement and the abutting property owners one-third there will, it is asserted, be but little difficulty in securing the requisite amount of signatures to the petition.

Colonel Watkins said Saturday night when Railroad avenue was paved to the county line an effort would be made to have the Sary county commissioners macadamize the road from the south line to Fort Crook and to Bellevue. Some grading will have to be done, but Sary county farmers say so long as the city is to pay the cost of the increase in taxation in order to secure a good road to South Omaha.

Speculating About Appointees.

Since the new South Omaha charter has passed the legislature and now up to the governor for signature many of the citizens of South Omaha are speculating on who the governor will appoint as members of the fire and police commission. It is stated that plenty of applications have been sent to Lincoln. Nearly every politician in the city has a different story and in some instances wagers have been made on the outcome. Mayor Koutsky does not intend to oppose the new board in any manner, so he said yesterday. On the other hand he will lend every assistance possible. Those who claim to know assert that the board will be named by the governor not later than Wednesday of this week. In the meantime candidates for positions will continue to send endorsements to Lincoln.

Council Meeting Tonight.

One of the regular monthly meetings of the city council will be held tonight. Sunday there was not much prospect of any large amount of business being transacted. At the last meeting the March salary sheet and some bills were approved. These claims were not paid until the middle of the month. It was thought that at tonight's meeting some arrangements for a date for a special bond election might be made. As the new city charter has not been signed by the governor it seems more likely that there will be a meeting along about the middle of the month to choose a date for the special election. A date for a revision of registration will also be selected.

Two railroad ordinances may come up for passage. These relate to the speed of trains over the city streets and also to the ringing of bells at crossings. Some of the councilmen say that trains run through the yards here without blowing a whistle or ringing a bell at crossings and they insist that this must be stopped. The same kind of ordinance have been passed a number of times in the last ten years, but even when passed were not considered legal and were never enforced.

Cudahy's New Storehouse.

The new store house being erected by the Cudahy firm is about completed. This structure is built of frame, is one story in height and is fully 500 feet in length. It is erected adjacent to the repair shops. All that remains to be done now is to put on the roof and with a few inside finishings the building will be ready for occupancy. Work on the new poultry sheds will not commence for a couple of weeks, as the material ordered will hardly arrive before that time. When construction work does commence it will be pushed. Other improvements at Cudahy's are contemplated and may be made during the summer.

Alderson Quits South Omaha.

Thomas Alderson, manager of the brittle business in South Omaha, has decided to pull up stakes and move to St. Louis. Mr. Alderson made this statement to the press a week ago. He said that there was so much opposition here that he could not afford to stay. No matter where he took his business to dry the people objected. At St. Louis, he says, the people welcome a new industry and he will take his men and go there at once. Mr. Alderson has tried to gain a foothold here and establish a drying field which would not be molested, but as he has met with so much opposition he will be bought here and shipped to St. Louis in barrels. A dozen or more men will accompany Alderson to the new location.

Magie City Gossip.

The public schools will open today after the usual spring vacation. The Presbyterian missions in the city appear to be going at it with a will. The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education will be held tonight. John E. Gemmill has gone to Pennsylvania to visit relatives for a few weeks. The regular monthly dance of the cavalry troop will be held at the armory tonight.

Mr. W. D. Godfrey has gone to Excelsior Springs to spend a few days with his husband. Postmaster Etter expects to announce the appointment of a deputy postmaster today. Funeral services will be held every evening this week at the First Presbyterian church. Rev. Dr. Wheeler will officiate.

Funeral services over the remains of R. Smith were held at the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon. Interment was at St. Mary's cemetery. William Weldon has returned to South Omaha after a stay of a few months at St. Joseph, Mo. He is working for the Cudahy.

Members of the South Omaha Hospital association will give a chicken pie dinner at the troop in the city hall building on Tuesday, April 7.

Dr. and Mrs. D. L. Dimond entertained a number of dinner guests at their home Sunday evening, the occasion being the thirty-third anniversary of the doctor's birth.

Evangelist Miller made quite a number of converts by his preaching and singing at the Methodist church last week. The services will continue for another week.

The funeral of Charles Hammel, which was held at the Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon, was largely attended. Members of Ancient Order of United Workmen lodge attended in body. Rev. Dr. R. L. Wheeler delivered the funeral sermon and interment was at Laurel Hill cemetery.

AT THE PLAYHOUSES

Vandeville at the Creighton-Orpheum.

It's a laughing bill from start to finish at the Creighton Orpheum this week, and a good one; not one of the acts is intended to cause thought on the part of anyone, only joyous laughter. Downie and Vassetti start the hilarity with a hedge-podge of nonsense that begins as though there was something to it, and ends only when the stage is ready for the next act. The Andraessen brothers, who are down as "The Danish Midschipsmen," do some clever acrobatic novelties in a way that shows careful drilling, great agility and unusual strength.

Miss Olive doesn't do any wonderful feats of juggling, but what she does is with a grace and dainty ease that lends a charm to her apparently simple feats. She proved quite entertaining last night. Melville and Stetson, who have been prime favorites in Omaha "since before the big fire," come for their annual appearance with new songs, new jokes and new costumes, but the same sweet voices and unflinching good humor. They are well liked by the local popularity. The De Forests are not only "well liked" dancers, but they are very graceful dancers, too, and excellent funmakers. Their turn is well deserved, and made a great hit with the people present. Harding and Ah Sid, with their "Clown and Chinaman" skit, work in a lot of excellent acrobatic feats with a good deal of burlesque and keep the people in a roar of laughter all the while they are on the stage. In the kinodrome a lot of new pictures are shown, among them a splendid panorama of the trip over the famous Georgetown loop. All in all, the bill is one of the most enjoyable that has been put on at the Orpheum this season. Good houses were present at both afternoon and evening performances yesterday.

Only Avenue for Correction. "Politics, which many women say at as though afraid, means all these things. It is the only way that many abuses can be corrected and standards of many kinds raised. It is to settle important and vital questions that come home to us all that men vote. If women never stepped outside of her own door, politics would follow her across the threshold.

"Why should we not have womanly ideas in our government as well as manly ideas? Isn't it true that the government rules over us many women as men and is it not right to ask a share in shaping that government? Woman should stand side by side with man in affairs of the state as she does in affairs of the household. New Orleans, until the legislature made it possible for the women to vote on questions concerning the expenditure of money never could get an underground sewer system. At the first election held after the innovation the votes of the women carried the day and the proposition to clean the city and put the sewers under the streets was carried.

War as an Illustration. "The one-sided predominance of man was shown in the Spanish-American war. Man who has always been representative of the fighting force of the world had a magnificent navy that could beat the Spaniards without the loss of a single ship, but how about the food and the clothing and the hospital facilities and the nursing and all that? The fighting men had not prepared that so carefully, so, for every man we lost by a Spanish bullet, twenty fell from the lack of proper care.

"So far as the foolish objection to women going to the polls is concerned, let me say that the objection is because the habit has been for men only to vote. Every progressive step the world ever knew was the doing of something differently than before and doing it better. The presence of women at the polls would sweep aside much of the disorder that sometimes exists there. Woman suffrage has been tried in Wyoming for thirty-four years and both the people and the records are unanimous in the verdict that it is eminently a good thing."

HUDSON BREAKS HIS THUMB

Detective Suffers Painful Injury While Taking Revolver from a Prisoner.

J. F. Bender, living at 2411 North Fifteenth street, was arrested last night on complaint of Charles Dunn and C. E. Russell, who asserted that he had disposed of a carriage and harness which they had left in his barn and which belonged to the livery stable they are running. The prisoner was charged with carrying a revolver and later with carrying concealed weapons.

Detectives Hudson and Dunn made the arrest and in so doing the former suffered the fracture of his right thumb in a struggle to gain possession of a revolver in the hands of the prisoner. The two officers, with the complainants, had gone to the barn of Bender to ask for instructions, leaving Dunn behind, when Bender turned at the door he saw that Bender had a revolver in his hand. He rushed at the man, whose wife was in the barn, at the same time came between them and being in the way, the detectives said, had his finger on the trigger and the weapon pointed directly at Hudson's breast. The latter wrenched the revolver about before Bender could fire, if so intended, which his actions would indicate, and the two officers disarmed him.

WAS HARD LUCK FOR HATTIE

She Cast the Horseshoe Over Her Shoulder and Broke a Window.

Hattie Bartel believes in signs, but since an unfortunate mishap last night, which landed her in the city jail on a charge of malicious destruction of property, she intends to study upon the dream book and other authorities, so that she will be quite sure she knows the sign which she sees. Hattie was walking along a street which one doesn't matter, because it might have happened on any street which has houses at its sides—when just as the half moon shone out in a watery and weak sky, she saw behind a tall clove, she saw a horseshoe lying close beside the curbing. It was shiny from grinding on the pavement and worn thin along one side, by which latter token Hattie knew it to have been dropped by a nag with a white tail. She picked it up, and in fact, just the sort of a shoe to bring good luck. She picked it up gleefully thinking to herself, "I'll just turn it over my shoulder for luck." And that's what she did and there's where she missed her connection; for somehow she had it in her mind the wrong way and over the left with it, good and hard. And the luck came, the wrong kind, before she was alerted, for it went right through a front window of a shop that Hattie hadn't noticed, and she could not get it out of her mind to escape the proprietor, who grabbed her, while his clerk telephoned for the police.

Announcements of the Theaters.

William H. Crane's appearance as "David Harum" in the dramatization of the novel of that name at the Boyd tonight and Tuesday and Wednesday matinee and night are certain to attract large audiences. And, in truth, there is no reason why it shouldn't. The comedian's hit in the play is emphatic and there are people sanguine in the belief that the work will that and be popular for many years. The New York runs were particularly prosperous and in several of the large cities notably Chicago and Boston, it has played to receipts the largest ever known for a strictly dramatic entertainment. Mr. Crane's program was dramatized and rights to the novel long before it began to be greatly talked about and the dramatization made of it was in his hands many weeks before he thought it possible to effect an arrangement with Mr. Crane to appear in the name of the Boyd tonight and Tuesday.

GAIL LAUGHLIN TELLS WHY

Gives Philosophical Society Her Reasons for Woman Suffrage.

SAYS NOW IS THE TIME TO TRY IT

Believes that Logically the Theory of Government by "the People" Must Be Put in Practice Without Discrimination.

Miss Gail Laughlin spoke to the Philosophical society yesterday afternoon on the subject of the suffrage of woman. The audience that heard her was one of the largest that has attended the meetings of the society since its organization. "The next logical and inevitable step, if this republic is to continue," said Miss Laughlin, "is to put our theories into practice and to make this in truth a government of the people by giving to the women of the country some voice in the making of the laws which they must obey. Every law applies as much to woman as to man, the penalties for her are the same. Every question of politics that concerns the men of the nation concerns the women as much and in some cases more.

"Take the tariff question for example. Everyone knows that it has a bearing on the industrial condition of the country. Whatever may be its effect it is not true that women enjoy the fruits of prosperity as much as men and feel the effects of poverty and depression in an equal measure and generally more than equally." Changes that affect labor and prices of the necessities and luxuries of life mean as much to women and often much more because they have, as a rule, less money to spend than men.

Polities, which many women say at as though afraid, means all these things. It is the only way that many abuses can be corrected and standards of many kinds raised. It is to settle important and vital questions that come home to us all that men vote. If women never stepped outside of her own door, politics would follow her across the threshold.
