GOSSIP OF CITY CAMPAIGN

Hennings' Opponent in Last Campaign Will Vote for Him This Time. ALSO FAVORS RE-ELECTION OF MOORES. Ernest Mertens Declares that Good Citizenship should be the guiding spirit in the pending campaign. "I am for Frank E. Moores for mayor and for A. H. Hennings for treasurer," remarked Ernest Mertens in a crowd of democrats Thursday night. "and I defy any man to question my democracy." Mr. Mertens' stand in this campaign is of special interest because three years ago he was on the democratic ticket as the candidate for city treasurer against Mr. Hennings. "I am for Hennings," continued Mr. Mertens, "because I know that he has made a first class city official and every citizen who wants good government should support him for a second term, regardless of party ties. If I had been elected three years ago and had made as good a record as Mr. Hennings has made I would now be expecting from the citizens of Omaha an endorsement of my work. "As for Frank Moores, I will say that he has made a good mayor—a better mayor than Ed Howell would make. I was opposed to Howell for the nomination for the reason that I did not consider him a good man for the office, and he is no better now than he was before the democratic convention. In a city election I am not going to vote for any man simply because he is a democrat, but I am going to make my selections on the broad ground of good citizenship. I don't think any democrat who is familiar with affairs inside the party and who really knows what Ed Howell stands for can argue that it would be for the best interests of Omaha to have a change in the mayor's office at this time." W. J. Perry, president of the Perry Livo Stock Commission company of South Omaha and a resident of the Fourth ward, met a little party of republican and democratic politicians on Sixteenth street Thursday afternoon and the discussion naturally drifted to the city campaign. Mr. Perry was known to have taken an active part in the opposition to Mayor Moores before the primaries and some one in the party suggested that he was now among the Henningsites. "Not on your life," exclaimed Mr. Perry, as he reached into his vest pocket and pulled out a roll of bills. "Here's $250 to buy my opinion that Frank E. Moores will be elected on the 5th of May. I was against him at the primaries, but after he won out fairly against the odds that were stacked up against him and after the corrupt practices of his opponents in buying that eighth ward delegate I say that every republican who loves fair play ought to vote for him. I am not a supporter of bribery at any stage of any game." Mr. Perry found no taker for his $250 or any part of it, despite the fact that he gradually reduced the amount to $1 to accommodate any enthusiastic Howell man in the party. Late Thursday afternoon, when Ed Howell learned that the Douglas County Democracy was almost at white heat because he had neglected to give it any representation on the democratic executive committee, there was quick action. The organization was to hold its regular weekly meeting in the evening and there was no time to lose. Therefore messengers were dispatched to inform Lyle I. Abbott, Louis J. Platt and Joseph F. Butler that they were members of the executive committee. These men then supposed that they were to represent their respective wards in place of the Jacksonians who had previously been put on the committee, but when the committee met in the evening they found that the Jacksonian members were all to remain and the three Douglas Countyites were merely added to the committee, giving the Third, Fourth and Fifth wards two representatives each, while each of the other wards had but one. The adding of an extra man in each of three wards was a good deal like the placing of a fifth wheel on a wagon, and so the Douglas Countyites asked to have one of their men put on in each of the remaining six wards. This plan, however, was frowned upon by Willie Herdman, who, by the way, has been made chairman of the committee by his brother Lee. The city committee of the people's independent party meets in room 305 New York Life building, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The word has gone out that Lee Spratlan is to be the political representative of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners in the present city campaign in its dealings with those persons who are next to the throne, but who are supposed to be in a position where police espionage and arbitrary action may affect them in their attitude toward candidates. The word which comes to the public is that as soon as Lee Spratlan returns to the city he is to "see" the local brewers and the agents of the out-of-town breweries, informing them that the board will have no objections to any work which they may do for E. E. Howell and will not visit upon them the fruits of their displeasure if they work for Mr. Benson, but that no favors can be expected if they do anything which might help the election of Mayor Moores. For the time being W. J. Broach is to place the whip of the police board into the hands of the democratic member of the board, while Broach is to retire into the background and from that vantage ground pull the strings which will make the board jump.

charge and will be at the building the greater part of the time. Chairs will be provided for 700 people and it is the intention of the committee to hold meetings there every evening, which will be addressed by candidates and others interested in the success of the republican party. The rooms are easily accessible and will be made the center of republican activity for the next two weeks. The real estate men have appointed the following committee to participate in the Benson campaign: F. D. Wead, George G. Wallace, A. L. Reed, G. S. Benewa, C. C. George, George H. Payne, W. T. Graham, D. V. Sholes, John W. Robbins and C. F. Harrison. IN GOOD ROADS MOVEMENT R. W. Richardson Tells of Progress of the Work in Various States. R. W. Richardson, secretary of the National Good Roads association, is at home for a few days, and will leave early next week, returning in time to cast a vote at the city election. Since leaving Omaha Mr. Richardson has attended meetings in a number of states in the interests of good roads. At Little Rock he organized the Arkansas Good Roads association with several hundred delegates. At the present session of the legislature an attempt will be made to pass a bill based on the Massachusetts idea of state assistance to local communities in the construction of highways. At the meeting of the Missouri association at Springfield delegates were elected to the national convention to be held at St. Louis next year. Mr. Richardson attended the Iowa convention, which was held this week at Des Moines upon the call of Governor Cummins, at which a state association was formed which has a membership of 250 to 400. SPLIT, BRITTLE, DULL HAIR. All Come from Dandruff. Which is Caused by a Germ. City Clerk Elbourn is making arrangements for the election, and yesterday was visiting the different parts of the city to secure rooms in which polling places may be established. He is having the usual trouble finding vacant buildings conveniently situated and in some precincts tents will have to be used as usual. Because of the scarcity of buildings the work of preparing for the election will occupy the time of the clerk almost to the exclusion of any other business for the next ten days. Republican headquarters have been opened at 1407 Harnsey street, the first door west of Meyer & Raspe's wholesale grocery house. Robert Cowell, chairman of the city committee, will be in personal

NEW WORK ON AN OLD TOPIC McAvoy Presents His Twenty-Ninth Edition of the City Directory. FULL OF NAMES AND REFERENCES. Literary Style Not Particularly Attractive, but Subject Matter of Much Interest to Present and Future Generations. The literary editor of The Bee begs to acknowledge receipt of the twenty-ninth volume of William G. McAvoy's interesting work on "Persons We Have Met, Never Met, and Never Care to Meet," otherwise termed the Omaha city directory. For students of Mr. McAvoy's previous works it will be sufficient to state that this one has bearing upon the same era and deals with characters he has already made familiar. But, to be frank, the author's style is becoming tedious. There is an everlasting sameness about what he writes and one searches in vain for some pungent paragraph that can be quoted before the Philosophical society or played as original at a swell dinner. He grinds out page after page in plain matter-of-fact, work-day, battleax style and then attempts an awkward concession to the tendency of modern journalism by attacking in a yellow ribbon as a place keeper. He is Pandering to Prosperity. There will come a time when Mr. McAvoy's works will be searched for diligently and studied profoundly, perhaps; but the search and the study will be prompted by that same desire to monkey with the facts and names of the long-dead past that now animates certain distinguished gentlemen who are scratching the pyramids of Egypt in the hope of digging up more scandals about Mr. Ptolemy, a deceased contractor, and his family. Mr. Ptolemy is generally conceded to have been unfair to union labor, but Eastern institutions of learning are not content to let the matter rest with the corpse, and one cannot refrain from some times suspecting that Mr. McAvoy, noting the expensive expeditions they have sent out, has been fired by an unholy ambition to write more for research, present and future, than for simple entertainment, and to provide clues for the historians of 2902. To make a bad matter worse, the author has been guilty of rank partiality. In this last volume he makes honorable mention of exactly 1,065 persons and firms whose names begin with Mc. The Brown family is mentioned 254 times, the Smith family 230, the Jones family 146, the White family

57, the Miller family 301, the Rogers family 45, the Black family 28 and the Sims family 8 times. In contrast, he mentions others on an average of only a dozen to two dozen times, unless they pay for it. Caters to the Classes. Moreover, he seems to be catering to certain classes of business and professions. He mentions 163 physicians and forty-nine dentists, but only a handful of undertakers; 293 saloons, but only 118 clergymen; fifty-two loan and bonding companies, but not one collection agencies and six constables; 220 lawyers, but only one court where a man can go into bankruptcy voluntarily; 139 music teachers, but just a few dealers in ear muffs; fifty-five tailors, forty-one jewelers and twelve chimney-men, but not one woman who will sew on buttons for love; sixty-five newspapers and publications, but only one home for aged indigent; eighty-eight boarding houses and forty-eight restaurants, but hardly a dozen convenient canteenries. Digressing into politics, he undertakes to boom municipal ownership of the water works by listing forty-eight dairies within piping distance of the plant. To inconvenience the courts and make necessary a new form of complaint, he locates a real "John Doe" at 912 South Thirtieth street. Pandering to local pride, he mentions 151 firms using the word "Omaha" in their names and forty-six using the word "Nebraska." He mentions 189 persons who began their names with Z, but gives X the double-cross. Pretending for the volume that it is "a book for the family," he gives prominence to the Yeshnowskis, the Tallenpupes, the Stumpfmanis, the Schneckengubers, the Staszaks, the Wasielewskis, the Koenigsbrugges, the Palmansas and others whose names so child can tackle without subjecting its tonsils to the dangers of long exposure and whose names no adult can tackle and remain sober and cheerful. N. B.—Copies of the work will be found at any drug store in immediate juxtaposition with the soda fountain and the telephone.

JILTED SUITOR IS REAL MAD Hans Jurgens, Charged with Arson, Says Accuser's Daughter was to Be His Wife. Hans Jurgens confessed to a jury in Judge Estelle's court yesterday that he had courted on Mrs. Elizabeth Rain's daughter for his wife and that when he discovered she was married to Charles Day he grew pretty mad about it and declined to play in Mrs. Rain's hayfield any longer. Jurgens is being tried on a charge of arson and the complaining witness is Mrs. Rain, whose barn near Briggs Station was burned in September, shortly after Jurgens declared himself and left the premises. The evidence has been that Jurgens grew very angry over his defeat in love and that he left the barn on the rains place a very short time before flames were discovered. The smoke was first seen issuing from the northeast quarter of the barn and Jurgens, when placed on the stand, testified that he had not been near that part of the building, had carried no matches that day and required none after he got there. His only material admission was that when he saw Day, an operator at Briggs, driving off the rains farm and was told by Mrs. Rain that they had been married nearly a year, he told her the girl had been promised him and that Day had better keep out of his section of the universe or he would "do things to him." Also, that he would put up no more hay for Mrs. Rain on shares, but take his reaper and go home.
