NOVEL DEALING WITH LIFE IN FAR WEST

Charles Barr Todd Endeavors to Show the Good Traits of Benedict Arnold's Character in a Book Published by Barnes & Co.

'People You Know," by George Ade, is new volume in which he presents amusing sketches of people you know and the as the author protrays them. "It is made up," says Mr. Ade, "of plain observations corner. If the reader will bear in mind that only the people who live around the corner are discussed in this volume, there will be no chance for painful misunderstandings. I have no desire to rub the wrong way any one who proves his true work." Published by Harpers with imprint of R. H. Russell.

"Barbara; A Woman of the West," by John H. Whitson is an American novel dealing with life in the far west. The scenes of the story are a western ranch, Cripple Creek, and the city of San Fran-The heroine, Barbara, is the loyal wife of a self-centered man of literary tastes, Roger Timberly, living on a ranch in Kansas. Out of gratitude a deed of a mine in Cripple Creek is given to the young couple, and Roger, with his imagination fired, hastens to visit the mine, leaving his wife alone. Failing to write home Barbara, in despair, sets out to find him. Her long and patient quest for her husband, the means which she adopts to support herself, the ardor with which she is wooed by Gilbert Bream, and the complications which ensue are extremely interesting. Published by Little, Brown & Co.

"The Real Benedict Arnold," by Charles Burr Todd, does not condone Arnold's treason. The author emphasizes his invaluable service to America, and shows conclusively that he four times saved the cause of the colonies, where by his desperate valor he gave the British such wholesome respect for American arms that they gave up their plan of invasion from the north that year; second, by raising the siege of Fort Stanwix in the Mohawk Valley and putting to flight St. Leger's invading army marching to aid Burgoyne, and third and fourth by winning the two battles of Saratoga, which, conjoined. Cressy, included as one of the fifteen decisive battles of the world. Mr. Todd also shows that it was the influence of Arnold's wife and his fear of losing her should her treasonable correspondence with the British officers be discovered, which induced Arnold to betray his country, and not the gross injustice of congress nor the calamities of paper generals—the motives generally ascribed. Published by A. S.

"True Love," by Edith Wyatt, is a story of some commonplace people of Chicago and Centerville, Ill. The characters of the story include an older woman much engrossed with embroidery. Another Garter Story.

Maud Snyder of 102 North Ninth street stepped through a garter yesterday and was arrested during the evening for petit larceny, the garter, it appears, being the property of one of her friends and a somewhat jeweled affair. Detectives Donahue and Heitfeld, who made the pinch, turned their faces to the wall while Maud extricated herself from the stolen property at the station. The officers are inclined to believe that it was not a petit larceny, but perhaps a size or two larger.

BENSON MEETS A FROST IN THE SEVENTH

Only Ten Boomers Turn Out to Hear Five Speakers in "Strongheld" of Petition and Populist Candidate.

In torrents of rain many Second ward oters went to Snyder's hall at Nineteenth and Vinton streets last night to hear Mayor promoters of the republican ticket speak. filled with enthusiasm and in view of decidedly bad weather was a remarkable one Mayor Moores aroused great demonstrations in a vigorous discussion of the vital secretary of state for Iowa, the official register of that state. It is a book of 594 his remarks by saying that he and his pages and is packed full of statistics of friends had won the bitterest and cleanest citizens of that state and to the great and have every reason to believe they would army of its sons and daughters that have win another such victory at the polls May gone out from the state to the farther 5. Talk of Capital and Labor.

Then coming to the important question of capital and labor the mayor declared his intention of doing justice to both and avowed his purpose of seeing, as he had always done, that the weaker of the two, organized labor, was not imposed on.

"In this present struggle between these two great factors I hope that moderation will prevail," said the mayor. "I am anxious to see concessions made, but if worst comes to worst I hope the Lord will guide me to do my duty. I have confidence in our working men and that confidence has been strengthened by the splendid manner in which the Union Pacific strikers have conducted themselves. I hope all others may do as well."

The mayor replied to certain yellow journal fabrications about his padding the city payrolls for campaign purposes and showed conclusively that fewer men are now on the payrolls than were sixty days ago. The mayor then spoke a good word for each candidate on the ticket and concluded his remarks by calling attention to the proposition to vote $45,000 for new fire engine houses and equipment, and urged its support at the polls. The mayor was accorded a most hearty ovation.

E. D. Evans, nominee for councilman in the Sixth ward, P. C. Schroeder in the Eighth and C. S. Huntington in the Ninth, all made stirring addresses and were enthusiastically received. Fred Bruning of to speak. Bruning said that after a thorough canvass of the city he found better chances of success confronting the repuglican ticket than ever in its history in vere the last speakers. Mr. Cowell, who was chairman of the convention that nominated Mayor Moores, made the statement that while a good many affidavits had been scattered broadcast about the Haarmann and Lindquest cases, he could make one showing that he went to Ferdinand Haarmann personally immediately after that convention and was told by Mr. Haarmann in answer to a question that he was perfectly aware that his vote had been counted for Moores with the rest of the Second ward delegation and that he did not feel abused or have any grievance.

Mr. Van Gilder said he was a republican by principle and while he was against Moores until after the convention he was for him now because he was fairly nominated and he believed in majority rule. He said he was for Moores also because he had given the city six years of clean, able administration and appointed a Board of Review last fall that did great service to the city in raising its basis of taxation.

Eighth Ward Republicans,

A large and enthusiastic gathering greeted the mayor and other republican candidates at the meeting of the Eighth Ward Republican club at Sixteenth and Cuming streets.

Mayor Moores was in attendance at a ward meeting in the Second and did not arrive until late, the time meanwhile being taken up by Harry Zimman, George T. Nicholson and E. J. Cornish. Mr. Cornish dealt in detail with the Benson movement and declared that political morals demand that if a man participate in a political convention and that if his name is brought forward at such a convention as a candidate for the party nomination, it is his duty to stand by the edict of the convention and not seek election outside of his party support as Benson has done. He took up the record of Mayor Moores for the last six years and the last three in particular, showing that the mayor has done all that is in his power to make taxation equal and to bring about home rule. The corporations are against Mayor Moores, he declared, and the nomination of Benson is but a movement on their part to split the vote of the republican party and to give the election to Howell as their representative Following Mr. Cornish, T. A. Hollister told the meeting of the work of the Young Men's Republican club and solicited membership, a large number of those present signing the roll. Bryce Crawford and W. I. Kierstead also spoke a few words of encouragement and asked that the ticket be supported as a whole. Judge L. D. Holmes asked that the ticket be supported as a whole, from the mayor to the nine council-

Cheers for the Mayor.

When Mayor Moores arrived the crowd which had packed the hall to the doors rose and cheered him for several minutes. He was tired and rested while the audience continued to show its approval by clapping and calling commendatory words When he rose they quieted down and listened to him. His work in the mayoralty chair, he explained, has been hampered by laws and people many times. but he has worked toward equal taxation, municipal ownership and home rule, as his record plainly shows. "Before Christmas," he said, "if I am still mayor and I will be (cries of "you bet you will")-the city will own its own waterworks and be on the way to having its own electric lighting plant. And then we will get other municipal utilities. There are the telephone, the gas works and like utilities and we must have them. I believe in municipal ownership and we will get them if I have my way. But we must not move too quickly in these matters. We must creep before we walk.

He also took up the matter of home rule connection with the Fire and Pelice Board and declared that whether the city wins or loses the suit now pending in the courts, there will be no more discrimination in regard to the closing of one saloon and not another. All must close at certain hours or none.

Ten at a Benson Meeting.

Five Benson boomers boomed at ten Seventh ward voters and three children in a damp cellar under Peyton's drug store at Twenty-fourth and Leavenworth for an hour and a half last night. It was one of the most magnificent rallies of the present campaign. Fred Schamel was the drum major and announced that the speakers would be limited to five minutes each. Each of them spoke for more than fifteen min-

B. G. Burbank told all about how to run governments and said that Howell is a better man for mayor than Moores, but won't do because a corporation man.

Candidate Benson said: "If on the 5th of May we don't find the people with us, no man will live long enough to ever see such a campaign as this again. I was not seeking this nomination. It was literally forced upon me. But if I am elected I will know no party and no faction. I will just know that it is the people's deal."

J. A. Worsley spoke H. F. McIntosh announced that "Moores and Howell are both as dead as anything could be" and that "the boys are climbing into the Benson band wagon so fast that they are almost tearing the steps off."

South Side Democrats.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather here was a very fair attendance at the First and Second ward democratic meeting at Turner hall at Dorcas and Thirteenth streets. Prior to the speaking a Second ward democratic club was organized, with Oliver Rouse as president, Joe M. Roucek secretary and John Elsasser treasurer. Delegates were elected from the eleven precincts of the ward to the democratic "hub." Addresses were made by several of the ouncilmanic candidates and Ed E. Howell, William Fleming, J. H. Schmidt, James P. Connolly and C. J. Smyth. The addresses were full of eulogy for the democratic candidates and the democratic platform. Connolly said he was sorry that he was not nominated for mayor, but would stand by the ticket as nominated. C. J. Smyth submitted a few thoughts relative to the pending campaign and held that the fight was between Howell and Frank E. Moores and that Howell would be elected if the democrats stood by him. He said Benson wasn't in it to any perceptible extent,

Democrats Fall to Rally,

The Sixth ward democrats were to have had a meeting last night in Idlewild hall, but because of the rain or other reasons only seventeen democrats reported and the meeting was abandoned. Candidates Howell and Stuht drove out to make campaign talks, but after waiting long enough to make sure that no meeting would be held they left. In answer to some comment as to the wretched weather Mr. Howell said: "I have been out to the Sixth three times and the former evenings were good weather. The attendance at our meetings in this ward is discouraging."

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS Members Are Served with Order Restraining

Renewal of Gas Contract. QUESTION ABOUT PAYINGSTREET ME

Proposition to Place Names of Employes on the Next Appropriation

Sheet is Re-committed to the Committee. The temperary restraining order obtained by Ernest Stuht from Judge Slabaugh forbidding the mayor and council from contracting with the Omaha Gas company for street lighting after January 1, 1904, caused only a ripple of excitement when served on the councilmen last night. Councilman Trostler, chairman of the street lighting committee, had the proposed resolution authorizing a three-year contract at the present prices tucked away in his pocket and whether he intended to introduce it with a report was not known. In the face of the injunction he said nothing. The meeting was enlivened by a personal debate when Chairman Hoye of the street Improvements and viaducts committee brought in a report concerning Comptroller Westberg's complaint that the men employed by the Board of Public Works had confirmed by the council in accordance with Hoye Presents Report.

no right to work because they had not been

Hoye reported that previous to the day he law went into effect 237 men were on the payrolls of the department; since that time the force had been decreased by fiftyseven men and that no new men had been hired. He presented a list of names certified to by the secretary of the Board of Public Works and recommended that inasmuch as the men had performed labor, the comptroller should be instructed to place their names and remuneration in the next appropriation ordinance.

Councilman Hascall fought the adoption of this report, declaring that he knew men had been employed by the board since the charter amendments became the law. Lobeck and Zimman and Trostler took a hand in the discussion and by a vote of 7 to 2 th was decided to recommit the report. The opinion that the men should receive their pay was unanimous, but there was some doubt as to the legal way of proceeding, as Chairman Rosewater's continued illness has prevented a meeting of the Board of and salaries of employes to the council. Agninst Market House,

Work on the wholesale market house which the grocers and commission men are erecting at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Jackson streets, will be stopped if a resolution introduced by Hascall and adopted by the council is enforced. Hascall said the building is a large frame structure, covering two lots, and will be a veritable firetrap. Inasmuch as it is being erected within the fire limits and without a permit of any kind, the building inspector is directed to enforce the law. By motion of Hascall the council adopted the following resolution without the formality of a roll call:

That the city electrician be and is hereby directed to issue to the New Omaha Thomson-Houston Electric Light company a permit to set the necessary sustaining poles for the suspension of street are lamps across the intersection of street in the district bounded by Eighteenth street, Capitol avenue, Howard street and Eighth atreet. The reappointment of John H. Evans as a member of the park board, to serve for the term ending in 1908, by the mayor was confirmed.

More Gordon Costs.

It was ordered that court costs amounting to $213.98 sustained in the impeachment proceedings against former Police Judge Gordon be placed in the next appropriation ordinance. These are merely a portion of the costs that are to follow. Elizabeth V. Van Brocklin's old claim against the city for personal injuries was ordered taken from the files and referred to the judiciary committee. A few weeks ago the council spent the greater part of one afternoon deciding not to allow anything in settlement. An ordinance providing for the grading of Sprague street, from Florence boulevard to Twenty-third, was read the first and second times and referred to a committee, and the ordinance authorizing an issue of $100 .-000 renewal paving bonds was passed.
