INDIAN POLICE GO TO JAIL

They Are Supposed to Have Been Too Generous with Whisky Flasks.

When the federal grand jury began its session Monday a number of Indians were brought down from the Winnebago agency as witnesses in several bootlegging cases.

The bucks, the squaws and the paposes were all quartered in the Klondike hotel and for several days all things went merrily and happily and then all of the places where they sell the drink that both cheers and inebriates were closed and poor Lo began to acquire a thirst.

His throat became dry and parched, and George Thunder, St. Cyr and George White Wings searched the city's byways and highways for some of the enticing fluids. For them it did not prove a difficult task and Thursday they had each acquired a supply in flasks.

A few drops made them cheerful and indulgent. What they had was also for their friends, they thought, and so between long moments of testifying before the grand jury of how some other men on the reservation had sold hard liquor in small quantities at large prices the Indians gathered in the corridors of the fourth floor of the federal building and drank of the fruit of their friends' labors.

At the Klondike, too, they gathered in small councils and consumed more of the liquor until it was quite apparent to all that saw that something was not as it should be.

George Thunder stood most of the day around the office of the clerk of the district court, and with face averted, talked long and eloquently with Miss Moore. He deprecated the drinking that the others showed evidence of, but said that even an Indian policeman could not discover where the drinks came from.

St. Cyr, like George Thunder, is also a policeman, but knew no more.

But Friday the grand jury adjourned and threatened the friends who had partaken of the joyous round at the flask into telling where it came from and how the three braves from Winnebago, who came to testify of how other men gave liquor to Indians, are behind the bars because their generosity was so great as to make them give part of their hard earned fire water to their friends.

MARRIED WOMEN

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlhood forms after marriage.

The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form.

Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy.

Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free. The Bradford Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga.
