THE ISSUES OF THE STRIKE

A Plain Statement from the Business Men's Association.

To reach a correct conclusion of the differences now existing between several labor unions in Omaha and their employers, represented by the Business Men's association, the first thing necessary is to have correct knowledge of the matters in issue. This is not a controversy affecting rates of wages, hours of labor or sanitary condi-

THE ISSUES ARE:

First-The labor organizations involved in the present controversy demand what Egrat—The labor organizations involved in the present controvery definition they call "recognition" of their unions. The business men conceds recognition in the sense that the laborers have a right to form unions, and, if they see fit, to be represented by these unions in negotiating with their employers. But such right is not what is meant by the term "recognition" as used by the unions. They demand as a part of "recognition" that the employer shall enter into a contract to hire and repart of "recognition" that the employer shall enter into a contract to hire and retain in his employment none but members of their unions. This demand the employers resist, contending that they have a right to employ whom they please, without discriminating in favor of or against union or nonunion labor. The employers contend that this right of election on their part is essential to their control of their own business, and that the making of the contracts demanded would amount to a conspiracy entered into by the employers to deny the nonunion workman either the right or the opportunity to earn a living by his calling.

Second—The unions insist upon the right at such times and for such reasons as they, and they alone, shall deem fit, to organize and maintain systematic boycotts in which their employers must become parties, participating with them. That is, that which their employers must become parties, participating with them. That is, that the amploye shall have not only the right to say that he will not deal, or trade with the amploye shall have not only the right to say that he will not deal, or trade with any person who is declared unfair, but that his employer must suspend all business relations with such person, without having any voice in determining the justice of the complaint against the boycotted party. This demand the Business Men's association resists, contending that every merchant, manufacturer or other employer shall have the right to continue his business relations with his customers without regard to whether some union, of which he is not a member and in which he has no vote, shall decide that the customer is deserving of social or business ostracism.

Third—The labor unions involved in this controversy insist upon the right to mestitute and maintain what are known as sympathetic strikes, by and through which all of the employer of any employer, without having any grievance of their own, or all of the employes of any employer, without having any grievance of their own, or any complaint to make against their employer, may, at their will, under a decision arrived at without his participation, bring all of his business to a standstill because those employed by some other party, or even in some other line of work, have seen fit to withdraw from their employment. This demand the Business Men's association resists, contending that no employer ought to be subject to an arbitrary suspension of his business, that no quarrel or dissatisfaction existing between him and his employes, simply because there is dissatisfaction in some other line of employment or

These are the issues involved in the present labor disturbance, and upon the justice of the positions of the contending parties in these essential respects the public is asked to decide.

BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION.

public through its press committee; public through its press committee;
The Omaha Business Men's association is pursiy a local institution, and not in any way connected with a national organization. It has been charged by organized labor in an address to the public that the Business Men's association has been organized to destroy organized labor. This charge is incorrect. We know nothing of associations organized outside of Omaha, but we do know that the object of the Business Men's association of Omaha is not to crush labor nor to carry on warfare against it—either organized or unorganized.

abor nor to carry on warfare against it— in sither organized or unorganized.

As a rule the unions have been recognized by employers, but the word "recognized by employers, but the word "recognized by labor agitators until it is made to represent an idea far beyond its original meaning which was for years accepted by labor unions. The word "recognition" as now defined by organized labor means the entire submission of the employer to the dictates of the labor union, it means that an employer cannot employ other than union men. It compels the acceptance by employers of contracts the terms of which are dictated by labor unions without consultation with employers. Such other than union men. It compels the acceptance by employers of contracts the terms of which are dictated by labor unions without consultation with employers. Such a condition breeds arrogance upon the part of the employe, who feels that his union will protect him, whatever his shortcomings may be, rendering it hazardous for an employer to give instructions to the employe whom he pays, as the latter is taught to accept the instructions of walking delegates as superior to instructions from his employer where such instructions from his employer where such instructions conflict.

It it be true that the issue of "recognition" as defined by organized labor, involves the life of the union, it is no less true that the acceptance of labor's definition of the torm by the business men of Omaha involves the life of their business, for the preservation of which they are bound to contend with the same tenacity of purpose as that which actuates the members of the unions. The business men are organized to contend for this vital principle, and for the first time in the history of Omaha the combined force of organized business men are milling at all times to deal with the unions as a body on the question of wages, hours of labor, and as to any grievance they may have, but the business men are unalterably opposed to the sympathetic strike and to the boycott here. The demands of the union are forcing out of the city men who do not belong to the organization—men who have a right to assert their independence and to work for whom they please as they please. In this connection we invite every working man in this community to read the last two clauses—the summing up of the anthracite strike commission, whose report has been endoreed by Mitchell and Gompers, and may sooner or later become the law of the land in all labor disputes. Certainly there in no principle involved in the local difficulty that was not encountered in the strike of the Pennsylvania coal miners, and in that case employer and employe submitted all the issues involved tions session Tuesday night was marked by a spirit more nearly conciliatory than that which characterized the meeting held before the conference with the governor Monday night. One of the gentlemen said:

"No one favored giving in to the demand for recognition of the union as a dictator of business affairs, but on all other points the association seemed decidedly amiable toward the strikers and willing to make broad concessions. At our previous meeting they was, I am free to admit, some rather positive and determined talk, but last night all the 'roasting' was dropped and generous way. It is my opinion that the conference with the governor had a decidedly good effect and that the next conference will be fruitful."

The other speaker said: "I concur in the view that the meeting last night was moderate in tone and the attitude more amicable and favorable to peace. I believe, also, that the conference Monday night did good, but I can't say that I have to suffer further chastisement before either will be ready to make necessary concessions on the one great point of union domination."

a living in any honorable way that we see fit.

The business men's organization has been forced to take a stand to maintain the business of the city. The issue has been forced upon it.

Let the thinking employes carefully consider the situation. Let them consider how this trouble may end and what the results must be both for employer and employe, and our once prosperous city. It stands to reason that our business men will do nothing to check the growth and advancement of our city. Manifestly they have a deeper interest in the welfare of the city than ing to check the growth and advancement of our city. Manifestly they have a deeper interest in the welfare of the city than the labor agitator can possibly have, for their all is invested in business enterprises, here and hence it is to their interest to stand by the wage-workers to the greatest extent possibly on the principle of "live and let live."

We appeal to the wageworkers to look deeply into the situation, and to exercise their own dispassionate judgment as to their duty in the premises, and not to permit hot-headed walking delegates to mislead them as to the equities of their case.

To Enforce Court Order. President H. E. Wade and Business Agent C. E. Hart of the Waiters' union conferred with Attorney J. O. Yeiser yesterday and the trio decided the manner of using the order signed Tuesday by Judge Dickinson, restraining members of the Business

Men's association from discriminating against employers of union labor. In view of the fact that there are about 170 defendants named in the cross complaint, service on all of them would be expensive and perhaps unnecessary. Attorney Yelser says:

"All that is necessary is that they have notice or knowledge of the order and if they have read the papers it is sufficient However, we are having a number of copies of the order prepared and thus arming ourselves for emergencies. Our plan is to keep in touch with the whole situation and any time we find a member of the association hereafter inclined to do what the court has forbidden anyone to do we will have a deputy sheriff sent to that man forthwith and | will travel with him part of the way, a copy of the order servied on him. And under the present circumstances whatever one member of that association does, if it be damaging, the whole association is reaction is in pursuance of the policy determined upon by the association."

A Case in Point. An illustration of the method possible for the unions came up while Mr. Yeiser was giving this statement to the press He was called to his telephone for a mo-ment and when he returned he said: I

"A contractor has just made the first appeal for the application of the restrain-He telephones that he has been denied lime, coment and lumber beause he is friendly to the unions and asked what could be done. I told him to go to the supply firms who had denied him and make a formal demand that they desist from longer refusing him the stuff he wants; that if they still refuse he shall us the names of the firms and we will have copies of this restraining order served upon them; that he is to follow the deputy sheriff and so soon as the order is served he is to renew his demand in the resence of witnesses; that if it be still refused he shall so report to us and im-mediately we will have the firms brought into court for contempt. This will be course in every instance we learn of where employers of union labor are being discriminated against" Business Agent Hart and President Wade had a final conference with the proprietors of the Merchants restaurant at 1819 Dodge street, but without satisfactory results, and the place was opened in time to serve dinner. The United States restaurant, diagonally across the street, has been open some days and the waiters now have pickets on four corners of the block, but .00 feet away from the doors of the "unfair" houses, as required by the Dickin son order granted the business men Monday. MELBOURNE, Victoria, May 13.-Parliament met today. The governor's speech was the shortest on record. He merely announced that Parliament had been sumnoned to pass a measure dealing with the railroad strike.

The premier then introduced a bill pro viding for the suppression of the strike, which is not retrospective, and will not remain in force after the termination of the strike. It provides that an employe leavg his work without giving four nights' strike and will incur the penalty of $500 fine, or a year's imprisonment, with loss of time and will be ineligible in the future for government employ.

The bill also forbids interference with em ployes, the collection of strike funds or ancouraging the strike in any manner, The bill further empowers the police to destroy documents encouraging the strike, makes printers thereof, offenders against the law and declares meetings to be unlawful if four strikers are present. All persons, refusing to disperse are lia ble to arrest without warrants and the police are empowered to forcibly enter meetings. An amendment expressing regret at 'the strike and promising that Parliament would consider the greivances of the railroad men if they return to work was defeated by

From a Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, May 13.-(Special Telegram.)-Unless active work is done in bringing about the removal of the western division of rural free delivery in Omaha from Denver, where headquarters are now, would not surprise postoffice officials to find the headquarters located at Des Moines. When the change transferring the rural free delivery service from the first to the fourth assistant postmaster vestigation of the first assistant's office, there was no contemplation that prior arrangements would be changed. However, it now appears that Omaha will have to fight for the western division in order to secure it. At present there are 529 captains ahead of him who hope for promotion Captain Pershing could only hope for his majority after many years and with the possibility of having to retire with that rank. The president then proceeded to the Presidio military reservation facing the Golden Gate, where he reviewed the United States troops stationed at this point.
