Sunderland Writes a Letter.

OMAHA, May 20.—To the Editor of The Bee: Referring to an alleged interview published in your evening edition of Tuesday and morning edition of Wednesday, in which the representation was made that the chairman of the press committee of the Business Men's association had made certain. the chairman of the press committee of the Business Men's association had made cer-tain statements, I beg to say that no inter-view was had with the chairman of the press committee of the Business Men's as-sociation pertaining to the matters stated, and no one authorized to speak for the Business Men's association made any such Business Men's association made any such statements.

I wish to say, also, that your report in this morning's paper of the meeting of the Business Men's association last night was incorrect in several important particulars. When your reporter called on the writer for a statement concerning the action taken he was informed that nothing would be given out last night, but that official information would be given today.

The business men of this community are certainly entitled to fairness in the statement of facts by your paper and I have no doubt you will be willing to publish this. Yours truly,

J. A. SUNDERLAND,

Chairman Press Committee of Business Men's Association.

The interview referred to in the evening

The interview referred to in the evening edition of Tuesday and the morning edition of Wednesday was had, not with Mr. Sunderland, but with Alfred Sorenson, press agent, and the medium of communication between the papers and the Business Men's association. The error occurred in referring to Mr. Sorenson as chairman of the press committee instead of press agent. As to the report yesterday of the business men's meeting Tuesday night Mr. Sunderland was not approached by a reporter for The Bee for any statement Tuesday night.

Taking Injunction Depositions.

The taking of depositions before C. C. Valentine, notary public, in his rooms in the New York Life building, was continued at ? o'clock, with John O. Yelser as attorney for the Watters' union and F. H. Gaines as attorney for the Business Men's association. The testimony of the previous day was that of W. S. Balduff of the establishment bearing his name, and W. Buthorn, proprietor of the Schlitz hotel and restaurant. Both stated that they were members of the Business Men's asso-The former operated his establishment without union help, and the latter stated that his help walked out on May and both establishments had been called 'unfair" by the Watters' union, and that the latter's place particularly had been picketed by the union, rendering it difficult for him to get milk, ice and other supplies for his restaurant.

The chief testimony gleaned yesterday evening was from E. B. Branch, secretary of the Business Men's association and bookkeeper for the Fairmont Creamery company. He was cited to bring with him books and records of the Business Men's association, but was unable to do so, as they had been turned over to T. J. Mahoney, attorney for the Business Men's association, before the summons were issued, and were then in Mr. Mahoney's possession and not accessible to the witness. He was given until 2 p. m. today to produce the books.

One of the Association The gist of Mr. Branch's testimony was a tacit admission that the purpose of the organization of the Business Men's association was to devise the best means to comthe unions. The Omaha associati had correspondence with similar organizations in New York, Milwaukee and Chicago on mutual protective lines. The Business Men's association, Hotel and Restaurant Keepers' association and material men had interests in common. He also admitted that the material men had declined to sell to and refrained from buying from establishments that were unequivocally union establishments. He thought this the most efficient way to combat the unions. The principal object of the organization was to prevent its members from dealing with the union as an organization or having anything to do with it as an organization, to deal with the union men only as individuals, and further, to resist unjust and restrictive demands on the part of the inions. He was unable to state from memloading and billing of every piece of merory how much money there was in the chandise that leaves your establishment treasury of the Business Men's association. you are not managing your entire business. association, although he had not paid a cent as an initiation fee nor did he know where the association obtained its money to carry on its work. He only knew the general object of the association. He was free to admit that he thought that the unions were a good thing.

Men Were Locked Out. Tolf Hansen, proprietor of the Calumet restaurant, was the third witness. He testified in substance that he was not unfriendly to the unions and union men. He denied that there was any strike at of its meetings discussing problems that his restaurant, as his establishment and are of material benefit to the institution. The statement of Mr. Guye and also the Business Men's statement in Sunday's Bee, were both impassioned and radical. $500 Labor owes much to the organizing brains that the heads of the corporations possess, that made it possible for them to employ so much labor, and the corporations owe TO GIVE AWAY much to the part that intelligent labor has done to help build them up. Statements by either party that it will not recede one iota from any position which it has assumed exhibits a principle which the publiq in general will not commend. It speaks too much of passion and not of the good hard sense that the business of the city demands. One lesson that labor has yet to learn is that the application of such names as 'scab' when applied to any man in the ranks of labor, even in nonunion, does not harm that individual and does infinite harm to the man who applies it and the cause he represents. It excites a sympathy for the unfortunate man, an admiration for his control of himself in said:

I think that I can say I came to California a pretty good American, and I go away a better one.

Giad, though, that I have been to see your wonderful state, with your wonderful products, your plains and your mountains, your rivers; to see the great cities springing up, most of all have I enjoyed meeting the men and women to whom we owe what has been done with mine and railroad, and lumbering camp and irrigated field and the ranch and the counting house, the men and women who have made California what it is.

I pity no man because he has to work.

fornia what it is.

I pity no man because he has to work. If he is worth his sait he will work. I envy the man who has a work worth doing and does it well, and surely no men alive are more worthy of admiration than these men to whom it is given to build up giant commonwealths like this. It is the fact of doing the work well that counts, not the kind of work as long as it it honorable. I speas to citizens of a community which has reached its present prosperity because they have done each his duty as his lines are laid.

To the true American nothing can be his lines are laid.

To the true American nothing can be more alien than the spirit either of envy or of contempt for another who is leading a life as a decent citizen should lead it. In this country we have room for every honest man who spends his life in honest efforts, but we have no room for the man of means who in a spirit of arrogance looks down on the man less well off, or the man who envies his neighbor because that neighbor happens to be better off. Either feeling is a base feeling, unworthy of a self-respecting man.

I used the word envy myself just now, self-respecting man.

I used the word envy myself just now, but I did not use it in a bad sense. If you use envy in the ordinary sense of the word its existence implies a feeling of inferiority in the man who feels it, a feeling that a self-respecting man will be ashamed to have. If the man is a good American and is doing his work squarely he need not envy anybody, because he occupies a position such as no one else in any other country, in any other age has occupied; because we freel and-have the right to feel satisfaction with what our people have done.

elements that tend to its discouragement. To succeed in any line of business or development it is not only necessary to acknowledge contending elements, but to so train the mind that it can see from adverse positions. The most successful manager of labor in a factory is naturally one promoted from labor's ranks. His sympathy runs toward his brother laborers, and he feels keenly his responsibility to his employer. The conservative and logical statement of the Business Men's league is all appeal to reason. But they should not overlook the fact that no man can absolutely run his own business if he has more than a peanut stand. A larger business, overlook the fact that no man can absolutely run his own business if he has more than a peanut stand. A larger business, and he needs lieutenants. Captains of industry employ assistants to manage for them. J. P. Morgan pays Mr. Perkins an enormous salary to manage for him, just as Carnegle pays, or did pay, Mr. Schwab to relieve him from responsibility. The departmental managers in the different establishments of Omaha that are interested in the present labor controversy are in those positions that they may relieve the nominal heads of the lastitutions from some of the details of the business. The same principle extends to the laborers; a man who can go shead and do his part without any directions is most valuable because he has become an assistant manager to just that extent. Unless you personally attend to the packing, direction, loading and billing of every piece of mersonal process.

The president spoke also at Sisson and at Montague.

He was greeted by 6,000 as his train pulled into Ashfand this evening at 6:45, where he made his first stop in Oregon. Bands were playing, cannon were booming and thousands were cheering as the president stepped on the rear platform of in the west, which would bring the total his car for a fifteen-minute speech, which he introduced by expressing the peculiar to ninety. pleasure he felt at entering the state of Oregon for the first time.

ment shall have at least five votes. New Head for Rock Island.

CHICAGO, May 80 .- The Post today says: N. J. Yokum, president of the St. Louis & San Francisco road, is to be the executive head of the entire Rock Island system. He will succeed W. B. Leeds and will have complete control of the operations of the entire system.

"Damon and Pythias."

An important dramatic event will be the production of "Damon and Pythias" at the Orpheum theater tomorrow night. Mr. Robert Blaylock is engaged in directing the play. The cast is a very good one, including some well known artists—Mr. Blaylock, Stewart O. Barnes, Ludwig von Strynger, Miss Dorothy Davis and forty others. The costuming and scenic effects are historically correct. The proceeds go to the general relief fund of the Knights of Pythias.

Rogers Case is Dismissed. Nettle Rogers was charged with harboring a girl under 16 years of age in her Ninth street establishment. The girl, whose name is Jessie Short, had already been sentenced to a short term in jail for incorrigibility, and it developed yesterday that the girl was a married woman, having been married about a year. The case against the Rogers woman was dismissed, as under the Nebraska laws a married woman of whatever age is presumed to have attained the legal age.
