'Retailers' Protective association" is the newest thing in the reaim of local labor and industrial organizations. Consisting of retail business men of Omaha, it sprang into existence Friday night with a membership of fifty as a sort of rival to the Business Men's association. It has a ing their theory of recognition of unions friendly attitude toward organized labor. Some of its members are members of the Business Men's association. As defined by the association, its cardinal principles are: Self-protection to the retail dealer and equality to organized labor.

The inception of this new organization may be traced to a letter written by a retail dealer of the city to L. V. Guye, chairman of the Central Labor union arbitration committee, some days ago. This business man outlined a scheme for starting this sort of an association, saving:

Many of us retailers are in the Business Men's association against our will. We parties to the controversy. have found that its interests and ours are not altogether identical. "My pian is for the members of the as sociation to co-operate in the presentation of a statement to wholesalers that they will deal with no firm that is not 'fair' with organized labor. Guye Answers Sunderland, L. V. Guye, chairman of the Central Labor union arbitration committee, makes this statement in reply to the published statement of J. A. Sunderland, chairman of the press committee of the Business

"Mr. Sunderland says organized labor must be held responsible for a continuation of the strike, as it insists on two propositions which cannot be acceptable to the Business Men's association, namely, the boycott and sympathetic striks.

Men's association:

'We do not insist on these, but, on the other hand, at our conference with the business men and the governor, and in our statement to the business men since, offered to strike out these two provisions from our proposed contract. At the conference with the governor I asked Mr. Mahoney, attorney for the Business Men's association, this question: 'If sections 5 and 14 providing for the boycott and sympathetic strikes are eliminated, will the employers then agree to our proposition?' His answer was: 'I cannot say exactly, but I think not.' Later in the conference I repeated the question and Mr. Mahoney replied that the employers would not thus agree.

Second Offer Declined.

"Now in our statement to the Business Men's association the other day, proposing another conference, we again offered to eliminate these clauses and concede these points, but the association refused to again meet us in conference or join in any proposition for a settlement of the strike. With

Taxpayers who saw in the estimated levy of next year an increase in the county taxes of $255,000 in round numbers became alarmed and asked why the increase should be made at this time and why there should be any such increase. In explanation of the matter Commissioner O'Keeffe said: "We made this estimate in January while the state legislature was in session. There were a number of bills pending for an equalization of the taxes between the individual taxpayers of the state and 'railroads. We also had hope that the State Board of Equalisation would take action in the matter, and at that time we felt almost sure that the assessed valuation of Douglas county would be greatly increased by the action of one or the other or both of the bodies which have power over the railroad assessment. Douglas county is in debt, and it is the desire of all good officia's of the county to see that debt wiped out. We believed that with this increase in the assessed valuation, which would be South Omaha High school at the First secured by adding to the tax rolls a lot of property which has escaped taxation in the past, we could pay the debts of the county without increasing the rate of levy much above that which had prevailed for several years. Now that we have secured no relief from either of the sources from which we expected it, the estimates will have to be greatly modified and the figures reduced to something near those of last year."

POOR FARM GETS LOBSTERS

Then Commissioners O'Keeffe and Connolly motion of O'Keeffe was lost. Get Into Some Trouble.

SOUTH OMAHAN IS NOT AN EPICUREAN

Consequently Connolly Wants to Know What He Knows About the Quality and Prices of Lobsters, Anyway.

It is an unusual session of the Board of County Commissioners which does not bring out more or less acrimenious debate tetween Commissioner Connolly and Commissioner O'Keeffe, but the arugment yesterday passed the usual bounds and for a moment threatened to result in a personal encounter. It was all over a consignment of canned lobsters which had been delivered a month or more ago to the county poor farm, the bill for which had been referred to the committee of which O'Keeffe is chairman. O'Keeffe asked that the bill be taken from the committee and disallowed. Then he made a speech in which he said the lobsters were spoiled. "I don't see why lobsters should be to the county poor farm, anyway," added the South Omahan. "I have always paid for everything I have eaten, and never tasted lobster in my life."

He asked who had ordered the lobsters publication of the announcement of the and said the price paid was double the amount it should be. He learned who had sioners as a board of equalization, which signed the order in a minute, when Commissioner Connolly arose and said: "I signed the order for those lobsters, of the various county funds for next year, and I didn't do it to please the palate of Mr. O'Keeffe, who can be no judge of the merits of the purchase, as he never toad fund 65,000 tasted lobsters. Saturday will be Decoration day. EXPIRATION OF THE TERMS

Some Question as to When Old City Officials Leave Public Service. Ambiguous wording of the charter amendments is causing a difference of opinion at the city hall concerning the expiration of the terms of elective officers, and the beginning of the official life of the officers recently chosen. The old charter made it plain by stating the new terms "commenced" on the third Monday after the election, at which time the new council is required to meet and organize. Now the charter reads "from" the third Monday, still requiring the new council to meet and

City Attorney Connell and his elected successor, C. C. Wright, are of the opinion that the terms of the old officers do not end until 12 o'clock Monday night. Assistant Attorney Adams dissents, however, and points out that if this is true there will be two city councils in existence during part of Monday. Under the charter before it was amended, it was beld generally that the new terms began Monday, the old terms

So far as men elected are concerned the question concerns them only so far as the bonds are concerned. Councilman Hascall has announced that there will be a meeting of the old council Monday morning "to perate attempts to work through the redistricting scheme are contemplated is not known.
