HENDERSON AND CABLE THE PITCHERS

Each Team Makes Six Hits, but Only One of the Dozen Blossoms Ideo a Score-Play the Rubber Today.

Kansas City won from Omaha yesterday a score of 1 to 6 after ten innings of the prettiest pitchers' battle imaginable. But the tenth was the hoodoo. Let there and made and havor of them, but it took too many shots for any scores to come slipping in. The countenances of an eager multitude opened and they yawped as the game progressed and fell as Omaha's chance of gaining a tally dissipated itself each inning. Meanwhile the Kid slipped hopefully behind the bleachers and the fence and candled each egg as it was handed to him, but he could find no flaw or fault that could make them take it back. It was strange to him, and he was worried. That Fatal Tenth Dawns.

Nine innings had come and gone; Dolan had died within a few feet of home. Messitt had broken his finger on a foul tip and Preston had acquired a sore spot in a falling catch; the mighty men from the Kaw had reached second only to cling to it until all hope was dead within their breasts. It was then the tenth dawned with a leer on its face and cast a cloud over the fortunes of "Pa" Bill's cream colored brigade. Ulrich sauntered to the bat, and, remembering the Kid's awful warning of that cut of $2 in his wages if he didn't do something, spat on his hands and swung at the ball. But he foozled and it failed to raise over the bunker, so he was crased without further argument. Then Cable took his gooseneck putter from the caddle bag and, crying "Fore," swung at the ball. It went flashing over the diamond into Joe Dolan's hands and he threw it low to Wright, who let it wander a little way through, so that the base was lost. Ketchum teed next and drove the ball fair over the bunker and the hazards and there were two on bases.

Hendersonian Smile is Faint.

Waldron did the same thing and Ben Henderson smiled unctiously, but faintly. His heart was sad and he had much to His foeman was a proud man and disdained the little shots, so he sent it high over the heads of the populace on the diamond and it fell into Frank's hands out in the middle of the park. Still three on bases and two men out! Every one hegan to breathe easier and a sigh of relief went up when Ben got two strikes on the lusty Streib. But Streib was game and let the ball come in and hit him or the funny bone. He fell like a forest glant with a might roar-and then came in that one measly run. It was all, for Jacobs flew out easy and quiet like.

There was still hope and the Rourkeites started out. Harry Welch was brought up to bat for Henderson and, with the memory of that home run in the Knox game, he swung at the first ball that came out of the pitcher's box and was on first without more ado. Then Carter sacrificed him to second and Genins tried to do his captain's part, but failed by flying out. Shugart was the sole dependence then and came eagerly to the fray. After many dibert, 2b. 1 0 3 4 1 Evera waitings he flung himself upon one of Molinity, p 0 0 0 1 1 Weimer. waitings he flung himself upon one of Cable's floaters and sent it out through the clear, still air, but Messner watched it lingeringly and declared that it foul, although there are some that say he talked through his hat. So back to the bat came Shugart and tried again, but the fates were in his way and the game was lost in that fatal tenth. Today they will meet again and it may he that the rubber will fall to Omaha.

Nebraska university closed the base ball season at home today with an easy victory over South Dakota, the Vermilion lads being defeated 10 to 1. The Cornhuskers indulged in a batting bee and rapped out hits almost at pleasure. Captain Townsend led with the stick by lining out two home runs. Wilhite, a new man, was tried at first for Nebraska and made good with a vengeance, fleiding his position without an error and cracking out three clean hits, one for a three-sacker. Bender's base running was a feature, five stolen sacks off the South Dakota catcher being placed to his credit. South Dakota was weak at the bat, Morse ho'ding them to five hits and pitching a game that entitled him to a shutout had he been accorded clean support.

PREPARATIONS ARE GOING ON QUIETLY

Last Season's Star Horses Are Absent from the List, but This Year's Best Will Run in the Event.

NEW YORK, May 27.-Eighteen thoroughbreds are named to start in the Brooklyn handleap tomorrow. The giants of the American turf of last season are missing from the entries, but the best of those that have made this year remarkable already for great racing performances will William C. Whitney's splendid filly Gunfire, will undoubtedly be the favorite with Com Paul, Articulate, Yard Arm Blues and Heno next to her in odds. Jockey Burns' flagrant disregard of orders in the race yesterday in which Injunction beat Whitney's Girdle caused his suspension by his employer and little Fuller will probably have the mount on Gunfire. Therehave been no phenomenal preparations for the event so far as the public is informed.

Names of Horses.

Francesco, 113 pounds, is making his first start of the season. He has done well in preparation. Colonel Bill may be scratched, permitting Rice to ride Fran-Old Herbert, 118 pounds, will undoubt edly be a factor at some point in the race. He seems to have lost, however, that invincible rush at the end of a long race, which made him a popular favorite In other years. Bonnibert, 115 pounds, McCue up, turned one and a quarter miles in 2:10% in his today's card at the Fair grounds. Retrial yesterday. He has been repeatedly beaten this year by poorer norses than he meets tomorrow.

Articulate, 114 pounds, might have been equal favorite with Gunfire but for his poor race with Oom Paul and Dorcaster. His defeat of Old England in the match race raised great hopes for him in the big handicap. Larson will ride him and he may be the winner. His trial was in 2:09, the mile in 1:42%. Heno, 113 pounds, will be guided by J.

He was worked privately in 2:08% on Tuesday. Igniter, 112 pounds, Haack in the saddle, is the hope of A. Featherstone, who won the Metropolitan and Brooklyn last year with Arsenal and Reina. Mr. Featherstone says Igniter's chances are second to none. He said that of Arsenal last year, but few paid attention to the prophecy Igniter gave Oom Paul seven pounds and a sound beating last year when both were at their best. Igniter's trial was one and one-half miles in 2:38. Royal III, O'Neil up, is regarded as outclassed at the distance. Gunfire III will be the queen of the day before the race at least, and many horsemen regard her victory as assured. Her tremendous speed in the Metropolitan, the gameness with which she broke, the courage of her challenges and her easy win at the end stamped her a natural favorite.

Irish Lad, 103, showed an unsatisfactory performance in his trial, 2:14, for the dis-DUBUQUE. Ia., May 27.—William Heer tance, and may be an absentee. Oom Paul, of Concordia, Kan., won first place in the 107, will have the services of Bullman, rider Gunfire must beat, according to all accounts. On Monday he turned the handicap in 2:08 with such ease that the trainers recent race he merely played with Blues. at Blues' own game of killing off competitors in an early sprint, and at the end are depled by the attending physician. He will also have a personal consultation galloped home after his rigid test over Morris park's trying hill. Brewer Pottery company. Yardarm, %, the entry of E. R. Thomas latest of the millionaire turfmen, will have many friends. Connell will ride. Yardarm's trial was in 2:09 and in his last race he ran the Withers mile in 1:40. He has never faced such horses as he meets tomorrow promoter of the first organization to use however. Sambo, 25, G. W. Guilfell's entry, is tipped quietly all over New York. He performed fairly well at St. Louis last year and may repeat Alcedo's victorious and unexepcted triumph for the west a few years ago. Cochran will ride. Sambo's trials have not been public.

Waswift, 105, with Wonderly up, has don nothing in the past to make him a strong factor at this distance, though he made City and came west early in life, residing the record for seven and a half furlongs, 1,640 1:33, at Morris park recently. Himself, 95, with Creamer up, will prob ably be 100 to 1 in the betting. If he wins his famous owner will probably be the most astonished man on the course. Injunction, 90, with Gannon in the saddle will have many followers. He is game and fast and has beaten most of the best horses shown this year. Hunter Raine, 99, J. Daly up, will represent the Shields stable. He has proven himself a most dangerous rival in any com pany with light weight at a distance. Absent from the race will be Hermis and Advance Guard, the public idols of last year. Pentecost is missing, too, in spite of his fine race recently. He may be added at the last moment. No rain has fallen or is promised to mar the Gravesend course, which is at its best.
