Volume of Irish Folklore that Sparkles with Wit and Humor.

REBELLION IN VERSE BY AN OMAHAN

"Bread and 'Lasses," by Emilie Blackmore Stapp, a Well Known Iowa Club Woman, Will Interest Children.

"Darby O'Gill and the Good People," by Herminie Templeton, sets forth the only true account of the adventures of a daring Tipperary man named Darby O'Gill among the fairies of Sleive-na-mon. They were related by Jerry Murtaugh, a first cousin of Darby's own mother and a reliable car driver between Kilcuny and Ballinderg. The fairies were known as "The Good People," and for many generations they never bothered any of Darby's kith or kin, but finally for some "mysterious rayson they soured on Darby and took the eldest of his three foine pigs" whom he "admired and rayspected." Nor were they satisfied until they robbed poor Darby of all his possessions. It was only by the most cunning strategy that Darby was able to recover his property, but he finally did so. To add to the trouble "his rivirence," Father Cassidy, did not believe in fairies, even though they played all kinds of pranks on him. But one night, in Darby's cabin, Father Cassidy met Brian Connors, the king of the fairies, and the meeting resulted in the "convarsion" of Father Cassidy, "his rivirence" taking a bowl of punch for "daycency's sake," while he wondered what his flock would say to see him drinking punch "wid a little ould pagan." The tales sparkle with wit and humor and are the brightest and best collection of Irish folklore produced in a long time. Published by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"The Better Way," by Charles Wagner, and translated from the French (which bears the title "L'Ami") by Mary Louise Hendee, is a volume of essays in the form of imaginary conversations. The book is one that will smooth over the dark places and help meet with courage and resignation the daily trials and struggles that come to all in the discharge of their duties in this life. "The main thing," says the author, "is to have a firm faith in God." It is published by McClure, Phillips & Co.

"Civil War Stories," compiled from official records, union and confederate, is the title of a new book, published by the Whittaker & Ray company, San Francisco. John T. Bell, formerly of the Second Iowa infantry, is the author. The book is compiled from the war records not long since completed, and gives the public an opportunity of becoming acquainted with many details of that interesting period. It opens with a telegram sent by President James Buchanan to the secretary of war on Chrjstmas day, 1860, and takes up many interesting and hitherto unpublished facts that transpired from that time to the close of the great struggle between the north and the south.

"Poems and Verses," by Carl Norton, is a book of poems, very earnest and thoughtful in their nature and distinguished for their spiritual quality. Published by Dana Estes & Co.

Rev. Stewart Sheldon in his book, "The Root of All Kinds of Evil," says that he "will try to show that 'money is a false circulating medium.'" The pamphlet is a plea for socialism, and the author is evidently very much in earnest in his ideas. Charles H. Kerr & Co., Chicago, are the publishers.

"Blue Arland, or The Wanderer's Return," is a tale of the rebellion in verse—"a memorable song to the loved ones so dear." It breathes the spirit of pure patriotism and is a beautiful testimonial to the "boys in blue," the soldier's prayer being especially tender and pathetic. Minerva Scott Shill of Omaha is the author and it is published by the Franklin Press, Franklin, O.

A very neat little book—verse—published by Doubleday Page & Co., is "Verses by a Mother and Daughter" under the title "Hand in Hand."

"The Certainty of a Future Life in Mars," edited by L. P. Gratacap and published by Brentanos, are the posthumous papers of Bradford Torrey Dodd. The author and his father worked in an astronomical station near Christ church, New Zealand. His father died and then the author himself died as the result of exposure and shock received during the receiving of a terrestrial message from his father. The book also contains a chapter in the planet Mars by Giovanni Schiaparelli.

"The Ministry of Love," by Irene Abbott, is a book of verse, in which the author writes feelingly to the great "middle class." In her preface she gives expression to the very laudable hope that some "heart would be softer and cleaner and better after my song." Published by Crane & Co., Topeka.

As the title indicates, "Bread and 'Lasses," by Emilie Blackmore Stapp, is a little book that will especially interest children, though those who are beyond the age of childhood will appreciate and enjoy the bright anecdotes and sketches contained in it. There is something suitable for all occasions, happy or sad, humorous or pathetic. The little folk are so natural and do such interesting things, one regrets the author does not tell more of them. The book is beautifully illustrated by P. J. Monahan of Des Moines. The home of the author is in Des Moines, and she is well known to Iowa club women as the editor of the Woman's club department of the Des Moines Mail and Times, the official organ of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs. George A. Miller Printing company, publishers.

"The Spoils of Empire" is a romance of interest, by Francis Newton Thorpe, in which the hero is Juan Fonseca Esteval, Cortez's youthful lieutenant and trusted companion in adventure, who is saved from the knives of the Aztec priests when about to be offered up on an altar as a sacrifice. He follows the cross through seas of blood to the attainment of wealth incalculable, and honors at the hand of his king, and wins for his bride Princess Dorothea, daughter of Montezuma himself, only to fall a victim to the inquisition, which breaks his body on the rack. He escapes the auto da fe only because he is supposed to be dead, but is permanently crippled, and in this condition, through the devotion of Dorothea and a few faithful friends, among them a Dutchman, is spirited out of Spain and into Holland. Physically incapacitated from the further pursuit of arms, he cultivates his wonderful talent for languages. He becomes famous as the "Scholar of Rotterdam," and his Spanish name is transformed into Jan van Estervelt—a name made glorious in the annals of the Dutch republic by his grandson of the same name, who fought by the side of William the Silent. Published by Little, Brown & Co.

"Washington, Its Sights and Insights," by Harriet Earhart Monroe, is a book of 183 pages, about the national capital, written by a public lecturer who understands the art of imparting information in an entertaining manner. The author not only tells the history, but the meaning of every monument and institution with patriotism and connects the spirit of all with that of our country. She also describes the architecture of the government buildings and explains the work carried on within and the system of administration in each department. Published by Funk & Wagnall Co.

"Wood Folk at School," by William J. Long, is the fourth volume in the "Wood Folk Series." The title of the book suggests the central thought about which the author has grouped some of his fascinating animal studies. Mr. Long lets us see the little wilderness learners at work and at play. He shows us vividly the deer teaching her dainty fawns, the moose directing her ungainly calf, the old bear leading her fat and whimsical cubs, the shy mother-heron followed by her stilt-legged youngsters on their first frog hunt—these and a score of other fascinating glimpses of animal life never before recorded. All these studies were made by the author from his tent door in the heart of the woods. Published by Ginn & Co.

"Trent's Trust and Other Stories," by Bret Harte, is one of the new books published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. There is in all seven stories, and they deal with the pioneer life of California. Mr. Harte's talent for short stories was very hard to equal, and this, his final volume, is one of his best.

"Bridge Rules in Ryhme," by H. C. Duval, and published by Pafraet's Book company, is a collection of rules for playing bridge, gotten up in rhyme. Possibly these words of the author best tell of the book: "Oh, muse, forgive me, critics all desist, my rhymes, tho' bad, perchance may teach you whist."

"The Republic of Plato," translated by Alexander Kerr, professor of Greek in the University of Wisconsin, is published by Charles H. Kerr & Co., Chicago. The price is 15 cents.

The above books are for sale by the Megeath Stationery Co., 1308 Farnam St.

TELL OF SWITCHMEN'S UNION

Omaha Delegates Return from Biennial Convention with Good Reports.

Dr. M. J. Ford and H. G. Stalder, who were delegates to the biennial convention of the Switchmen's union of North America at Indianapolis, have returned to Omaha, and say that the gathering was one of the best in the history of the organization, the rolls showing the largest membership ever enjoyed. The next convention will be held in the Hoosier metropolis, $5,000 being offered by the citizens for the privilege. A former Omaha man, M. R. Welsh, was honored by re-election as grand secretary-treasurer, it being done by acclamation upon motion of Dr. Ford. Mr. Welsh has served a little more than one term and makes his headquarters at Buffalo. Concerning the action of the union in declaring against sympathetic strikes, one of the returned delegates said: "This was simply putting on record a principle that the organization has long held. In 1888 we went on a sympathetic strike and were nearly wiped out of existence as a result. We learned that our interests are not identical with the interests of every other union and since then have been willing to extend moral support and financial assistance to striking brothers of other trades, but decline firmly to walk out in sympathy in order to help them win. We seek to make the union strong within itself and by following that course have gained the respect of the employers all over the United States."

Meteorological Summary for May.

The meteorological summary for May issued by the local weather bureau shows the following:

Temperature—The mean temperature for the month was 63 degrees; the highest, 84, on the 29th; the lowest, 35, on the 1st; the greatest daily range, 26, on the 3d; the mean for May for thirty-three years is 62 degrees.

Wind—The prevailing direction of the wind was south and the total movement 7,304 miles. The maximum velocity was 37 miles per hour, from the southwest on the 22d.

Precipitation—The total precipitation for the month was 8.32 inches, the average for May for thirty-three years being 4.15; the accumulated excess since January 1 is 2.16.

There were eight clear days, fifteen partly cloudy and eight cloudy. There was a heavy frost on the 3d and a killing frost on the 1st.

Trade Excursion Into Iowa.

The excursion of Omaha business men into southwestern Iowa on June 16 will be made as outlined in The Bee, assurances having reached Secretary Utt of the Commercial club that at least 100 merchants will participate. The trip will cost not to exceed $6 for each individual. All Omaha business men are invited, but those who go should notify Secretary Utt as early as possible in order that the proper arrangements can be made.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Why Board of Review Was Not Named Monday Night.

COUNCIL WANTS TO FORCE MAYOR'S HAND

Democrats Demand that Three Suspended City Offices Be Filled by Appointment Before They Will Confirm Anything.

The reason for the withholding of the appointment of the Board of Review at Monday night's council meeting leaked out yesterday. Under the law the city treasurer is directed to name one member and the mayor the other. Both the treasurer and the mayor were ready, but, at the solicitation of the democratic majority in the council, the naming of the board was deferred for one week. It appears that before voting to confirm the appointees the democratic majority wants some concessions from the mayor. In the first place, the democrats want George Dunscombe appointed street commissioner. Then they want the mayor to employ a plumbing inspector and a building inspector. For nearly a year City Engineer Beal has attended to the duties of these three offices besides looking after his own work, the mayor making no appointments to these vacancies, for the reason that he is saving the city money and the taxpayers are getting just as good if not better service than under the old system.

In order to conform with the provisions of the law the board must be appointed so as to be able to get down to work on June 15, as only ten days is allowed for complaints to be heard and the equalization of the taxes.

Last year the valuation returned by City Tax Commissioner J. J. Fitzgerald was $16,091,205. It was firmly expected by the majority of citizens that the valuation this year would reach $20,000,000. Neither the mayor nor the councilmen will talk for publication about the matter, but it is expected that a compromise will be effected before Monday night.

The Coal Situation.

As far as the packers are concerned the coal situation is practically unchanged. In order to tide over packers purchasing agents are buying any old kind of coal that will burn to keep the plants in operation. No coal was received here yesterday for the packers, but some shipments are expected today or tomorrow. One of the packers said that there is coal in sight, meaning that shipments are enroute, but he did not know where the cars are being held. Last night it was reported that there was a big shipment being held at Pacific Junction and an effort was at once made to find a way to get the cars to the yards here. Railroad officials are doing all they can to assist the packers in hurrying forward coal and it looks now as if the famine would be over by the end of the week unless there is a decided change for the worse in the weather.

Supplying Southern Trade.

South Omaha packers are taking care of the Kansas City trade and shipping packing house products into the territory usually covered by the Kansas City packers. This will continue until the packing houses on the Kaw are in operation again. No effort was made yesterday to send dressed meats to Kansas City, as meats are now being sent direct from Chicago to the stricken city. On account of the closing down of the Kansas City and St. Louis packing houses the South Omaha packers will be kept busy for some time to come supplying the southern trade. It is expected that many packing house employes from Kansas City will strike out for South Omaha as soon as they can get away and then the houses here will no doubt be run to their fullest capacity in order to supply the demand for meats and other products of the packing houses.

Seeking Information.

A committee composed of P. A. Wells, James H. Bulla and Charles A. Dunham has been appointed by the Commercial club directors to procure information and statistics in connection with the proposed bond issue. This committee will explain in its report just why South Omaha is in need of a new high school building, why a city hall is needed and why the sewers of the city should be extended. The idea of the directors of the club in appointing this committee is to place the matter before the voters in the right light. Some work was done yesterday by the committee and it hopes tha by Friday night it will have a complete report ready to submit. The meeting Friday night will be held at the parlors of the South Omaha club and a general invitation is extended to all interested in the voting of bonds for improvements at this time.

Charles Akofer Dead.

Charles Akofer died at his home, Twenty-fourth and K streets, at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The deceased was one of the pioneer residents of the Magic City. During the greater part of his residence here Mr. Akofer was engaged in the retail meat business. For over a year he had been ailing, but death came unexpectedly. The deceased was a member of the local lodge of Eagles and the Modern Brotherhood of America. The funeral will be held under the auspices of the Modern Brotherhood. A special meeting of the Eagles has been called for this evening at A. O. H. hall, 2311 N street, for the purpose of taking some action. Arrangements for the funeral will be announced later.

No Quorum.

Only two members, Chairman Vansant and Secretary Bergquist of the Fire and Police board, appeared at the council chamber last night and after a moment's conversation Chairman Vansant announced to those who had gathered to listen to the proceedings that there would be no meeting. It is presumed that the absence of Mr. Nolan from the city was the cause of there being no meeting.

Still Conferring.

Representatives of the packers and the labor unions are still conferring. Yesterday the conference devoted its attention to skilled labor, especially in the pork butcher and the casing departments. The best of feeling still prevails between the representatives and it is expected that all differences will be settled this week. Neither the packers nor the labor representatives will give out the scales submitted. This will not be done until the difficulty is settled, and then the scale to be paid will be announced.

Filling Vacancies.

Members of the city council are preparing to fill vacancies on the Board of Registration, which meets on June 20 for a revision of the registration books. Every one who desires to vote on the bond proposition must be registered. In addition to filling the vacancies on the board the council will select the places for holding the registration. Next Monday night the council will make a report on both of these matters.

Magic City Gossip.

Guy Collins of the Swift company here left yesterday for St. Joseph.

Vegetables are scarce in South Omaha and prices are rising every day.

The packing houses at St. Louis have shut down on account of high water.

John C. Carroll, formerly chief of police here, has gone to the Black Hills country.

William and George Kahnk of Bennington are in the city for a few days, the guest of John F. Schultz.

The county assessors will complete their labors on June 8 and make a report to the county commissioners on June 9.

J. Klein left last night for Chicago to meet his brother and sister, who are enroute from Germany to Omaha.

Mrs. Florence L. Moore and Miss Sarah Moore left last evening for a few weeks' visit with J. B. Waite at Marseilles, Ill.

There is a big washout at the west end of the Q street viaduct and the present retaining wall may fall in if the rains continue.

John W. Carlow, formerly a resident of South Omaha, but now located at Lyons, Neb., is in the city visiting friends for a few days.

Spreading street car rails at Twenty-sixth and N streets yesterday caused some little delay to traffic. The damage was repaired in a couple of hours.

These births were reported yesterday: Chris Buntzen and wife, Eighteenth and S streets, a son; Sam Greenberg and wife, 2401 W street, a son; James Sargent and wife, Twenty-ninth and I streets, a son.

T. W. Taliaferro, general manager of the Cudahy Packing company, and George Parks, superintendent of construction, returned yesterday from St. Joseph, Mo. The pair made an effort to get to Kansas City, but failed and were compelled to return.

SHORT LINE TO SIOUX CITY

President Harris Gives Assurance that Omaha's Interests Will Be Cared For.

The following letter from President George B. Harris of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway, which was read at the Commercial club yesterday, gave considerable satisfaction:

I have received your favor of the 27th inst., with the petition of a large number of the responsible business men of Omaha, who desire, in case we build a line to Sioux City, that the interests of Omaha shall be fully considered. I have to say that this will be done, and whatever may be done at first we expect to finally furnish Omaha with a practicable and convenient connection for Sioux City and the country beyond.

It is known that the Hill interests propose to build a line from Sioux City down into Nebraska to Ashland, with the idea of getting a direct route for Nebraska grain to the lake ports and the Hill water lines. If the connecting link is built, as it probably will be, it will only need the construction of a short cut off from Omaha to a point near Fremont to give this city a direct route to Sioux City and the country beyond. Omaha jobbers desire this very much, as it will increase their advantages in the competition with St. Paul and Minneapolis in the territory north of Sioux City, especially in South Dakota.

Aside from the letter, President Harris has given verbal assurance that when the Ashland extension is put in the cut off will be built. If Fremont is made the junction point that city will have another railroad to Omaha and the east, together with the new communication to the northeast.

APPEALS TO SUPREME COURT

John O. Yelser Seeks Writ of Habeas Corpus for Waiters of Omaha.

John O. Yelser returned from Lincoln last night, where he had been to present to the supreme court the matter of the application of the two members of the Waiters' union for writ of habeas corpus on appeal from the decision of Judge Estelle sustaining the city ordinance under which they were prevented from passing cards, having been convicted of the offense before Police Judge Berka. The supreme court advanced the hearing and the case will be heard upon briefs and oral arguments one week from today.

VASELINE NO GOOD FOR HAIR.

Dandruff Germ Thrives in It, as Well as in All Grease.

A well known Chicago hair specialist invited the Inter Ocean reporter to come to his office and see, under a microscope, how the germ that causes dandruff thrives in vaseline. The specialist said that all hair preparations containing grease simply furnish food for the germs and help to propagate them. The only way to cure dandruff is to destroy the germs, and the only hair preparation that will do that is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Without dandruff no falling hair, no baldness. Ask for Herpicide. It is the only destroyer of the dandruff germ.

Recipes.

A Standard Recipe for Deviled Crabs—Take a dozen heavy, hardshell crabs, Boil them five minutes then add a tablespoonful of salt and boil thirty minutes. Drain, open and pick out all the meat, wash and wipe the shells. Heat a cup of cream in a small saucepan. Rub a tablespoonful of flour, four of butter and a teaspoonful of mustard together and mix with the hot cream. Stir and cook three minutes, then remove from the fire. Add the crab meat, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, quarter of a grated nutmeg, salt and pepper to taste. Mix without stirring much or the meat will be stringy. Fill the shells and sprinkle well with crumbs. Put bits of butter over the crumbs and place the shells in a baking pan, bake in a hot oven until crumbs are nicely browned. Use parsley and the crab claws to garnish the dish.

Buttered Crabs—Remove the meat from large hardshell crabs, cut it up small and mix with bread crumbs in equal quantity a little minced parsley and season to taste with salt and cayenne. Pack into the shells that have been well cleaned; squeeze a little lemon juice over them, cover with bread crumbs and bits of butter and bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned.

Crab Ravigote—Take twelve good sized crabs to fill a half dozen shells. Boil, drain and let them get cold. Then laying them on a board with hard shell side down, cut the breast away, using a sharp pointed knife. Remove the meat, picking out any pieces of shell in it; season with a very little salt and pepper. Mix with enough thick remoulade sauce to bind nicely. Fill up the shells, cover with mayonaisse and decorate with fillet of anchovy and sliced gherkin. Serve on folded napkin with decoration of parsley and quartered lemon.

Crabs to the Queen's Taste—Boil twelve large, hardshell crabs and take the meat out in as large pieces as possible; place in a salad bowl with half a cup of sliced celery or shredded lettuce; toss over it a dressing of a tablespoonful of olive oil, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a pinch of pepper and a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. Put this mixture in half a dozen of the cleaned shells; cover each with a tablespoonful of mayonnaise dressing and sprinkle with hard boiled egg, the white chopped and the yolk put through a sieve, some lobster coral and minced parsley, using each one separately either in rings of color or in triangular sections.

PORTER IS KILLED BY TRAIN

Joseph Tolbert, Colored Missouri Pacific Employe, Meets Violent Death.

RUN DOWN BY UNION PACIFIC DINER

One of the Oldest Porters in Omaha, Having Put in Many Years on the Harriman and Gould Roads.

Joseph Tolbert, the colored porter of a Missouri Pacific Pullman sleeper, was run down and instantly killed last night shortly after 9 o'clock by a Union Pacific diner that was being switched into the Union station.

The accident occurred just west of the Tenth street viaduct. Tolbert had just finished his run, coming in on the belated Missouri Pacific train from Kansas City. He had left the car and was starting home. A. J. Donahue, the pilot of the Union Pacific train crew, saw him disappear in front of the Union Pacific dining car, No. 317, that was being backed into the station, and not observing him pass on to the other side, at once surmised the result. The dining car was stopped immediately and Tolbert was found lying just under the front trucks, lengthwise across the track. He had evidently been knocked down and rolled along the track by the trucks, which had also passed over him.

Police Physician Trostler was at once notified, and went down to the scene of the accident, finding Tolbert lying in the position described. With the aid of Captain Haze and one or two other officers the body was dragged from the track, the only visible injury being about the head. Coroner Brailey was summoned and took charge of the body.

Tolbert was carrying a bunch of flowers and a bowl when struck by the car. He was one of the oldest Pullman porters in Omaha, having been for many years a porter on the Union Pacific. For the last fifteen or twenty years he was a porter on the Missouri Pacific. He has a son living in Sioux City, but has been separated from his wife for many years. He is about 55 years old, and his home was on Thirteenth street, opposite the Millard hotel.

GOVERNORS MEET HUSTLERS

Ak-Sar-Ben Board and the Business Committee Lay Plans for Campaign.

For the first time this season the board of governors of the Ak-Sar-Ben and the hustling committee met together in full strength of the company at the Omaha club last night and made medicine and contrived organization in a manner to pump up the anticipatory enthusiasm of those subjects of Quivera who were in a position to be aware of the "doings which were being done."

The honorable governors did not by themselves do many noteworthy things, but the hustling committee went through a little preliminary signal practice and named Thursday next and the noon hour thereof as the time of meeting at the Millard hostlery for the purpose of appointing each other to districts of the city and thinking out the minor details of the plan for the active canvass which will begin at 1 o'clock of the afternoon following the meeting. The chairman and secretary of the hustlers will appoint committees and district the city before the next meeting.

J. D. Weaver was last night made chairman and H. F. Roberson secretary. The membership was the same as for last year and includes Frank Wilcox, O. E. McCune, Julius Rosenzweig, G. C. Kittering, R. C. Hayes, Max Goldsmith, N. S. Mann, Ed Wilcox, Frank Simpson, E. C. Hudder, F. M. Russell, Robert Haaker and J. C. Callahan.

"The indications point to better work than ever," said a committeeman. "The den is in splendid shape for this time of year and we will begin the active work there on Monday, June 15. We have had a preliminary trial or two, the first last Tuesday, and when we get started fairly the show will go splendidly."
