Rourkeltes are free men. For three years "Pop" Eyler has kept them from the consummation of their desires, and now he has been lambasted and put back again into the race with the others. No more shall we kowtow and bend before His Brennan Majesty, "Pop" Eyler. He is again of the earth and made of but common clay like the rest of the poor mortals. It all happened out at Vinton street park yesterday afternoon and six innings told the tale, cut short by J. Pluvius. Had there been more innings it might have been worse, but it is

So back to the scrapbook and the family album, "Pop," and blot those six innings from your memory and that of your chlidren and your children's children. Our emaciated league standing may look sickly, but it is well again and there will be many ragged days for the enemy.

all right at 2 to 1.

It was a good game and a pretty game and there was glory a plenty for the local brigade. They gathered enough medals in six innings to fit out delegates to a firemen's convention and a few extra ones to take home in the trunk for the children. Denver was in a dilapidated condition besides, over half of the team playing out of their regular positions, while Patterson, late of Omaha, held down first base for the Grizzlies quite creditably.

Pitchers Do Good Work.

Shafstal had the Grizzlies at his mercy all of the time and kept their few hits well scattered. Eyler was very effective, too, except in the second, when three hits gathered and scored the two runs.

Delehanty was the first man to face Shaistal and he banged the ball hard enough to send it scudding across the diamond into Joe Dolan's hands, and that was one down. Whitridge was next and flew out to Walter. Meanwhile Jones was planning great things and started by smashing a hot one into Dolan. Dolan grabbed it by the scruff of the neck and whirled it over toward "Red," but it went wild and there was one on base, but Hartzel could not help.

In the second it started out nice with McHale's erasure at first and Patterson's duplicate trick. Then Radcliffe scratched and Lattimer followed with a double. Radcliffe started home like a cottontall, but stumbled over his feet just off of third and was caught trying to recover the bag. That made it three out and again things were smilling.

When Dolan went to the bat in the second everyone asked for a home run and he immediately went out at first. "Red mountered up to the bat in a sort of unconcious effort and hit at the ball and it sailed out into the soft ethereal blue, while he slipped onto first. Walter Preston was the next victim and he waited for his chance, but got hit on the ankle while waiting. Wright was getting chesty loafing around second and they got him between Radcliffe and Delehanty and began playing ante over with him, but Radsliffe fumbled the ball and "Red' was on third, with Preston on second. Meanwhile Hickey was worrying with "Pop's" curves and at last made a stab at one which let Wright in while he was going out at first, Gonding helped it along by brin ing Preston in with a single out in the right garden and Shafstal put another of the same brand on the other side. But Carter couldn't reach first, so it was all over so far as scoring was concerned.

results; the admirer of artistic work likes to see them for they are usually of the subjects that are most difficult to conquor in drawing; and the general reader likes to see them for they are "so different" in all respects and so attractive. The Bee has made these pictures a distinctive feature of its illustrations from the beginning. Pictures that show something has been the aim always; not mere poses or landscapes, and the results have been so uniformly satisfactory and so very gratifying from an artistic standpoint that the additional expense has been more than justified. Every improvement in photographic methods has been adopted as soon as it was shown to be practical, with the result that 'The Bee's field work is admitted by even its competitors to be unapproachable. And readers of The Hiustrated Bee get the benefit of this acknowledged superiority once each week.

HORSES IN MOTION PUZZLE PEOPLE was to their movements. Watching a swiftly moving racer gives an observer but a slight and generally confused notion of how the animal moves. The camera solves and usually disputes the preconceived notion of the horse's movements. In the next number of The Illustrated Bee will be found a double page of the finest plctures ever made of horses in motion. They are made from photographs taken especially for The Bee by its staff photographer, and show the best driving horses in Omaha at their best speed, driven by their owners. The work is particularly fine in every respect, and will be of great interest to iovers of fine photography as well as to lovers of fine horses.

Grizzlies Score One.

Meanwhile the Grizzlies were dubbing along hitting the ball occasionally until the fourth, when they got started. Haftzel scratched and McHale sacrificed him on me. Patterson stood up to the bat and did his popular repertoire in stopping the ball with his padded slats. Then Radeliffe fell on the ball and there was about to be a nassacre, but Shugart fumbled the ball and Hartzel dropped in. Patterson was on third in the meantime and started to come in when they were throwing the ball around second, but he was cut off at the plate by a few miles. Lattimer was easy and the scoring for the day was over.

There wasn't much doing after that exept for the single that Preston drew off of one of Eyler's wide floaters that he teases the batter with and the catch Ratcliffe made of Wright's liner. With the beginning of the seventh it began to rain, but the game progressed and the Griz-slies were sent back to their cage with nothing doing. The rain grew stronger, so the game was called off. Score: OMATTA
